Japan Launches Furious Attack At Nankow Pass

Takes Offensive After Chinese Threaten Communications.

Planes, Guns Lead Way Against 89th

Powerful Nanking Army Defends Positions at Great Wall.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo (Thursday), Aug. 12—Japanese infantry began an offensive at Nankow Pass, northwest of Peiping, under the protection of aerial squadrons early today.

The Domei (Japanese) News Agency said the advance began at 5:30 a. m. (4:30 p. m. E. S. T. Wednesday).

Furious fighting was in progress.

The Japanese opened up with heavy artillery against the Chinese force—the Eighty-ninth Division of the Nanking (central government) army. The Chinese had held firmly to positions along the Great Wall since early Wednesday. (Tientsin dispatches earlier reported the warning of the Japanese command that aerial and motorized units would be thrown into fight if Chinese turned southward toward Peiping. The Japanese then were on the defensive.)

Stuffed Figures Foil Gunners.

The Chinese, Domei dispatches asserted, were using stuffed scarecrow figures of armed soldiers on mountain tops to foil the Japanese gunners.

The Chinese were powerfully armed with trench mortars and artillery to defend their positions.

And while the fierce battle was caried on in the mountains about Nankow, Japanese forces launched a second offensive near Changping—just to the south of Nankow, in Hopeh Province.

The two armies met at Nankouchen, Domei said, and Japaneses occupied the village of Lunghutai.

(It was not at once clear whether the Nankouchen battle was to offset a possible Chinese effort to recapture Peiping, over which the Japanes army established full control last Sunday.)

Pass to Manchukuo.

The Japanese took the offensive after Chinese troops attacked in an effort to seize control of Nankow Pass, through which Japan has been able to move troop reinforcements from Manchukuo, over which she exercises a protectorate.

The Domei News Agency said Japanese artillery set Nankow aflame after the Chinese eighty-ninth division from Shansi Province clashed with Japanese troops.

This report said the Japanese occupied positions in the environs of Nankow, but Chinese continued stubbornly to hold their main entrenchments.

Unconfirmed Chinese reports persisted that the Japanese had suffered disastrously near Nankow Pass in an engagement with heavy Chinese forces. A mechanized Japanese column, equipped with tanks, was reported to have headed for the sector yesterday.

War on Four Fronts.

Shanghai (Thursday), Aug. 12 (U.P.). Warships of Japan's third battle fleet swung on the tide off Shanghai, prepared to enforce a Japanese demand that Chinese armed forces be withdrawn 12 miles from this great metropolis at the mouth of the Yangtze River.

The Chinese-Japanes war had spread to four fronts—along the Peiping-Suiyuan railway, to the northwest of Peiping; along the Peiping-Hankow railway, to the southwest of the "northern capital;" along the vital railway which leads south from Tientsin, through Shantung Province, to China's central capital in Nanking, and in the Shanghai area, at the entrance to the valley of the Yangtze.

A Japanese column from Manchukuo's Jehol province, meantime, was fighting its way through Chahar province in an effort to cut the Chinese lines along the Peiping-Suiyuan Railway and make the last Chinese positions around Nankow untenable.

Americans in Barred Town.

Shanghai (Thursday), Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Militarized Chinese police barricaded Kiangwan village, just north of Shanghai, today against the possibility of attack from the reinforced Japanese garrison and refused to allow the American community or other foreigners to depart.

The United States consul general was making frantic efforts to contact Mayor O. K. Yui of greater Shanghai to gain consent for evacuation of the stranded Americans but was meeting with no success. The village of Kiangwan was the scene of bitter fighting in the Sino-Japanese war of 1932.

7 Dead, 2 Missing In New York Storm

New York (Thursday), Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Discovery of the body of Joseph Coral, 38, early today raised to five the death toll in the collapse of two houses in New Brighton, Staten Island, last night as a result of excessive rains. A Manhattan youth and a Paterson (N. J.) man were killed by lightning in storms which swept the metropolitan area yesterday. A youth and a girl were missing on Long Island Sound and feared drowned.

Nazi Paper Hurls Hints of Scandal At Alien Newsmen

Berlin, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels' newspaper Der Angriff jumped into the British-German press dispute today by accusing a "large number" of foreign correspondents of helping anti-Nazi groups.

Under the caption "How Many Foreign Correspondents 'Work' in Germany?" the paper said many were engaged in providing foreign publicity for anti-Nazi statements.

"Many of these persons, if they knew what we know about them, would take the next train out of the country," Der Angriff warned.

"What do I get out of all this?" he inquired, smiling broadly as pictures were snapped. He laughed heartily as one interviewer suggested Clark Gable, the movie star, never drew so much attention when he sailed.

George VI Halts Scout's Flirtation With Princesses

London, Aug. 11 (U.P.). — King George VI squelched an incipient childhood flirtation between his daughters, the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, and an unidentified Scottish Boy Scout at Balmoral Castle, the magazine News-Review revealed today.

The boy, attired in scout uniform, went for a ride last week on his bicycle along the road paralleling the River Dee.

At a window he noticed both little princesses gazing out. He pulled out his handkerchief and waved to them. They waved back. For some time the three interchanged signals. Then a man came over the bridge with a "message."

The Boy Scout sprang up to attention, saluted and left. Later he confessed: "The man said his majesty hoped I wouldn't mind, but he'd rather I didn't stay any longer."

Hull, Welles Defend Ship Rental Plan

Brazil Lease Criticism Declared Result of 'Misunderstanding.'

Senator Hiram Johnson Attacks Proposal in Committee.

By William V. Nessly.

Increased criticism of the proposal that this country lease six decommissioned destroyers to Brazil yesterday found the State Department maintaining its position that unfavorable reaction was due to misunderstanding of the plan.

One Argentina paper, meanwhile, upheld the warcraft proposal as "a serious warning" to Germany and Italy, which it said had been seeking "succulent morsels" in both Argentina and Brazil.

State Department officials sought to clear away the impression that anything more than an application of the "Good Neighbor" policy might be involved, as the Senate heard Senator Hiram Johnson, (Republican), California, denounce the proposal, and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee prepared to act today on the Administration request that the warcraft leasing be authorized.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, who long has specialized in South American affairs, conferred with President Roosevelt and later called in Senor Don Felipe A. Espil, Ambassador from Argentina, in whose country press criticism of the plan has been particularly emphatic, and Senor Don Manuel Trucco, Ambassador from Chile.

Contracts Awarded.

Incidentally, the Navy Department, in the course of the day, awarded contracts for construction of four new destroyers, at an average cost of $4,953,750 each. Four other destroyers, to be built in navy yards, have not yet been allotted.

However, a published complaint in Argentina to the effect that while the United States expressed willingness to lease similar vessels to any of the South American republics, it was a matter of the "first comers" getting the ships, apparently was effectively removed. Navy Department figures revealed that there are 158 such destroyers available, apparently plenty to fill any requests.

Recapture Clause.

Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, called a special meeting of the committee for today to consider the Walsh resolution authorizing the leasing program. Pittman made it clear that while the resolution would not restrict the use of the destroyers, terms of the leases the Government would grant would prohibit their being used for combat purposes.

This country would not permit them to be used in any way that would violate any treaties to which the United States is a party or any of the United States' international obligations, he has said. Both he and Senator Pittman reiterated that Brazil wanted the six destroyers for training purposes. Pittman insisted there was "no justification" for the concern expressed by the Argentine press.

However, Senator Johnson was caustic in his remarks concerning the undertaking.

"It is essentially 'Good Neighbor' justice," he said, "to furnish one of our friends in the South with some destroyers that will enable them to blow some of their friends out of the water or prepare their young men for war.

"It is in keeping with the policy preached so long, so loudly and so often of 'peace.' We'll preserve it by letting one of our South Ameri-

Senate Approves Sale of Helium To Other Nations

Export of helium from the United States would be permitted under a measure passed yesterday by a Senate vote of 36 to 26. The measure now goes to the House for consideration.

The bill, reported by Senator Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah, authorizes the establishment of a Government monopoly for the production of helium, and would permit foreign countries to buy the gas for use in commercial lighter-than-air craft.

Such exports were urged by Dr. Hugo Eckener, famed dirigible veteran, after the destruction in May of the hydrogen-inflated Hindenburg.

While his mother and police searched frantically Terry, who lives at 2020 Portner place northwest, and his girl friend, Teresa Haris, 6, 2013 Portner place, sat serenely through two movies and enjoyed a prolonged luncheon and afternoon tete-a-tete.

Going first to a picture house on Ninth street where the program boasted three feature attractions, they saw the entire show twice.

Teddy suggested lunch in some quiet spot after the show. Topping a delicious lunch consisting of candy, peanuts, soda pop and ice cream with a glass of milk, the two decided upon another show.

By this time Mrs. Roberts had become uneasy about Teddy and notified the police.

After police had broadcast a lookout for the missing two, Teddy and Teresa returned home—tired and unaware of the excitment they had caused. At his home last night, Teddy was too sleepy for an interview.

Bill to Improve D. C.'s Airport Passes House

The May bill to improve Washington Airport was passed yesterday by the House and sent to the Senate.

The measure finally agreed on provides that Military road shall be eliminated, and $25,000 paid to Arlington County by the Airport Corporation for construction of a new highway, skirting the commercial air terminal. The Government will retain title to the Military road right of way, but the airport will be permitted to use it for a period of 25 years.

The measure also directs the Secretary of Agriculture to lease 53 acres of the Agriculture farm to the terminal firm for an annual rental to be agreed on with officials of the airport company.

Representative Jack Nichols, of Oklahoma, attempted to amend the measure to provide that the lagoon on the edge of the landing field could be filled in as a starting point for an additional runway. The motion was defeated.

The measure finally accepted was piloted by Representative J. Mark Wilcox, of Florida, a stanch supporter of the plan to improve the local terminal. Pointing out that the May bill was a compromise measure designed to remove the most dangerous hazard from the center of the runways of the air terminal, Representative Wilcox declared, "up to this time there has been no tragedy over there, but tragedy has been narrowly averted on several occasions. Our idea is to close the road and remove what we think is the principal hazard to the safety of the travelling public."

72 Shot in Far East as Japanese Spies for Wrecking Trains.

By the United Press.

Moscow, Aug. 11.—The President, the Premier and nine other high officials of the Turkmen Republic of the U. S. S. R. have been dismissed from office and denounced as "enemies of the people," it was revealed tonight.

Denunciation, in most cases, is a prelude to trial and execution.

The revelation was made in the August 6 issue of the Ashkhabad newspaper, the Turkmen Askaya Iskra (Spark), which arrived in Moscow tonight.

Turkmen thus became the fourth Soviet socialist republic in recent months to have its leaders dismissed. Others are in the republics of White Russia, Tadjikistan and Azerbaijan.

Turkmen is in Asia Minor and is bounded by Persia, Afghanistan and the Caspian Sea.

Those dismissed included Nedyrbrai Aitakov, president of the central executive committee of the Turkmen Republic; K. S. Atabaiev, premier of the council of people's commissars; Kourbone Sakbatov, vice president of the council of commissars, and eight members of the central executive committee.

Seventy-two Executed.

Moscow, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Death of 72 alleged railroad wreckers before firing squads today brought to 320 the executions in Russia's Far Eastern campaign against "Trotskyists."

The Irkutsk newspaper, East Siberian Pravda, reported the executions. It described the band as Trotskyist, rightist terrorists who operated along the Siberian railroad for the Japanese secret service with the aim of weakening Soviet transportation in case of war.

They were charged with causing a train wreck in which 14 persons were killed and many injured.

Drenching Rains Bring No Relief To Heat Sufferers

By the Associated Press.

Heavy rains drenched broad sections of the Nation yesterday, but failed to bring general relief from heat and humidity.

The downpours, measuring more than 2 inches in some places, drenched parts of the East and Middle West.

The fall reached cloudburst proportions in western New York. Silver Creek splashed over its banks, temporarily marooned 42 families in the village bearing its name and washed out the municipal water chlorinating plant. Highways were flooded near Rochester.

Rain measured 2.85 inches in the Austin area of Minnesota, 2.6 at Williamsport, Pa.; 2.2o at Osage, Iowa; 2.21 at Muncie, Ind. 1.24 at Sioux Falls, S. Dak., and 1.19 at Rochester, N. Y. One of the heaviest showers of the season swept Detroit.

Filibuster Threatens As Lynching Bill Gets Right of Way in Senate

Sugar Bill Letter Also Complication

President Reported Displeased By Compromise Measure.

A farm duel between the President and Congress yesterday further complicated the rush toward adjournment, as Secretary of Agriculture Wallace cast his lot with the President in opposing crop loans without accompanying crop control.

The situation was further tangled by a letter the President sent Chairman Pat Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee last night, reputedly regarding the "compromise" sugar marketing bill as worse than the bill that passed the House. He has threatened to veto the House measure, and veto was implied in the Harrison letter.

Earlier Wallace said at a press conference that changes made by the Senate Finance Committee in the sugar control bill would permit an "airtight monopoly" for sugar refiners. Echoing reported contents of the President's letter, Wallace said some of the alterations were worse than the House measure. Harrison's office declined to release the letter.

The farm tangle yesterday found the Senate Agriculture Committee asking immediate crop relief through loans, but postponement of general farm action. The President insists on holding up loans until assurance of crop control.

Wallace, meantime, told reporters that if Congress wants loans on this year's crop it should "remain in session or come back before next year." That could mean only a prolonged summer session, or an extra farm session in the fall.

Crux of the dispute was Senate action Tuesday to delay the general farm program by instructing an agriculture sub-committee to study control this summer and report back the first week of the next session.

To provide immediate relief for farmers faced with declining prices, a Senate agriculture subcommittee recommended mandatory price-pegging loans on five crops, including cotton. The proposal, which faces a probable veto, would force loans which the President does not want to make until crop control is assured.

The full committee delayed action until hearing the views of Secretary Wallace this morning. The subcommittee bills would compel loans of 10 cents on cotton, 70 cents a bushel on wheat, 50 cents a bushel on corn, 8 cents a pound on tobacco and 65 cents a bushel on rice.

Another resolution has been introduced by Senator Tom Connally, providing a subsidy of 2½ cents per pound to cotton farmers, and will come before the full committee today.

The cloudy adjournment sky meanwhile cleared slightly in spots, only to darken in others, as the complexity of ramified legislative developments kept Administration leaders and committeemen on the hop.

A sudden rift in the clouds appeared in the reorganization sector. Following a White House conference, Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, chair-

Fire Sweeps Ship Used as Hospital by Italians in Spain

The ship, of 7,156 tons register, has served in Italy's military service for years. Most recently, it has plied between Spain and Italy, bringing back wounded Italian soldiers from the arena of the Spanish civil war.

Woman Seized In 3 Cincinnati 'Poison Deaths'

Others Tell of Illness After Eating Food She Supplied.

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, Aug. 11.—A pretty 31-year-old woman was arrested tonight by police investigating a series of "poison parties" that left three men dead and resulted in the serious illness of four other persons.

Fugitive warrants against Mrs. Anna Hahn, charging murder and larceny, were filed by Detective Walter Hart, of Cincinnati, on behalf of Colorado authorities investigating the death in Colorado Springs of George Obenoerfer, 67, well-to-do Cincinnati cobbler.

Mrs. Hahn, blonde wife of a Cincinnati telegrapher, was being questioned by Cincinnati authorities investigating the deaths of two other elderly Cincinnati men and the illness of two women and two men.

She had been charged with grand larceny by one of the men, George Heis, 63, who Acting Detective Chief Patrick Hayes said told a story of having become critically ill after drinking beer with Mrs. Hahn. Hayes said he is professed to have lost the use of his legs as the result of his illness.

Oberndoerfer died shortly after his arrival at a Colorado Springs hotel. Police Chief Eugene T. Weatherly said: "We believe the death may have been due to poisoning."

Hayes said he learned from Mrs. Hahn that she accompanied Obendoerfer on a part of the trip West after meeting him in a Chicago railroad depot.

She admitted, Hayes said, that she attempted to obtain the transfer to a Denver bank of $1,000 from Obendoerfer's account in a Cincinnati building and loan company.

Two other Cincinnati deaths under inquiry are those of Jacob Wagner, 78, and Albert Palmer, 72.

A death certificate filed March 27 gave the cause of Palmer's death as influenza and heart disease. Coroner Frank M. Coppock ordered a chemical analysis of the contents of Wagner's stomach after relatives had insisted on an exhumation of the body and a police investigation.

Hayes said police learned that Mrs. Hahn unsuccessfully attempted to obtain $1,000 from Wagner's bank account on the day he died, June 3. He said a bottle that had contained poison was found in Wagner's home.

Prosecutor Dudley M. Outcalt said police had learned that Obendoerfer, Wagner, Heis, another man and two elderly sisters, all of German descent, each had become ill suddenly, apparently shortly after making the acquaintance of Mrs. Hahn.

He quoted Mrs. Hahn as saying, "I like old Germans."

Garner 'Forced' By Rules to Put It Ahead; Imperils Program.

Barkley Suffers First Bad Defeat

By Robert C. Albright.

The Wagner-Van Nuys-Gavagan antilynching bill—with infinite filibuster possibilities but enough votes in the Senate to pass it—was shoved to the top of the Senate calendar yesterday by an unexpected series of leadership reverses.

Efforts by Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley to displace a motion to call up the measure went down to defeat in two Senate roll call ballots. It was Barkley's first serious drubbing as Administration leader.

The motion to consider the anti-lynching bill and debate it to passage or defeat will still be before the chamber when it meets at noon today. A protracted fight, that could easily extend the session or end in a stand-pat Southern filibuster, appeared in prospect.

Garner Disrupts Program.

It was a ruling by Vice President John Nance Garner that upset Administration legislative plans and recognized Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), of New York, to call up the measure.

Over protests of Barkley, Garner insisted he had no other choice than to recognize Wagner, who alone in the Senate was on his feet.

There followed an impassioned denunciation of the bill by Senator William E. Borah, Idaho's Republican lion. Borah is opposed to filibusters, but he threatened to talk to the limit of his endurance if necessary to stop a measure he considers unconstitutional.

Resorting to a parliamentary maneuver, Senator Barkley interrupted Borah to move for adjournment of the Senate. If carried, the Barkley move would have blocked Wagner's anti-lynching attempt by clearing the Senate record. But it didn't carry.

Adjournment Defeated.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark, Missouri Democrat, and an expert on rules, was on his feet at once explaining the Barkley motion would sidetrack the bill. He was followed by Wagner, who further exposed the leadership strategy. Net result, the motion to adjourn was defeated 27 to 35.

For the first time this session Senate Minority Leader Charles L. McNary turned the tables on the Administration leadership By immediately moving for a recess. That motion left the anti-lynching move undisturbed. And by a 36 to 23 vote, the Senate recessed, with the anti-lynching bill at the head of the calendar.

Flushed, after three reverses, Barkley left the floor without his usual post-session talk with reporters. Following the adjournment defeat, one Democratic regular had rushed up to Barkley and asked how to vote on the McNary recess motion.

"Don't ask me, ask McNary," Barkley was reported to have replied. "That was a hell of a harmony dinner." (Senate Democrats staged a "harmony" dinner tribute to Barkley Tuesday night.)

His Farewell Coup.

McNary's coup was a farewell one for the minority leader. He has Senate permission to return to Oregon today.

It was the third attempt this session to get Senate action on the anti-lynching legislation, already passed by the House. Wagner's colleague, Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, twice tried to make it a rider on other measures.

The bill makes every governmental sub-division of a State, to which police functions have been delegated, responsible for lynchings within their jurisdiction.

Counties Would Pay.

In failing to prevent a lynching, or seizure and abduction followed by lynching, counties and cities would be liable to victims or next of kin for sums ranging from $2,000 to $10,000.

Garner's recognition of Wagner for the anti-lynching motion caught the leadership completely off guard.

Barkley said he had no objection to consideration of the bill, but said he felt it would take some time. He protested a program for the afternoon already had been agreed upon, and memoranda explaining it was on the Vice President's desk.

Barkley said the "program" called for recognition of Senator William

Old Babe, the most ancient and probably the best beloved elephant in captivity, was buried last night in a large grave dug for her behind the zebra house at the Washington Zoo. She died at 11 a. m. yesterday.

Keepers and watchmen who had made her last days comfortable and who had long admired her dignity followed the big truck that bore her 8,500-pound body up the hill to its final resting place.

Ernest P. Walker, acting director of the Zoo, was in attendance. Dr. William M. Mann, the director, was on his way home from Sumatra with a load of rare new animals—none of which will compensate him for the loss of the 99-year-old animal he accepted from a circus three years ago and who became his true friend.

Small boys passed and repassed the house in which Babe lay dead yesterday afternoon. Until Sunay, many of them had never visited the Zoo without offering peanuts and apples to Babe. They could scarcely believe that old Babe was lying on her side, never to rise again.

Until Babe stumbled on a doorsill Sunday morning, she had not laid down in nine years—afraid to get off her tired old feet lest she be unable to get on them again.

Her last days were filled with contentment. Soft food and kind attention were lavished upon her and she seemed relieved to be lying down again.

"She was a grand old lady. The Zoo is for live animals, and it is not our custom to hold services when one dies, but Babe will be missed more than most," Mr. Walker said.

Smithsonian Institute experts prepared Babe for burial and jotted down many events in her life for their record. At first mounting was considered for her, but this was vetoed as the institution decided just to make a study of her physical condition at death.

Babe, America's most photographed animal and who trouped for more than a half century as a circus queen, retained her good disposition until the last.

Her death leaves the zoo with only two elephants—Ketchal and Jubina, 21 and 26 years of age, respectively. A large new elephant house costing more than $300,000 is almost ready for their occupancy.

Mrs. Stranska Appeals to U. S. In Battle for Diplomat's Child

The right of a foreign diplomat, not accredited to this country, to remove his child from the custody of her American mother was the subject of a conference last night between an attorney representing the woman and R. Walton Moore, counselor of the State Department.

Charles Pickett, partner in the law firm of Barbour, Garnett & Pickett, and counsel for Mme. Anna Stranska, beautiful estranged wife of Dr. Pavel Stransky, Czechoslovakian diplomat, admitted he had called on the State Department official to discuss the legality of the possibility of the husband removing the child from the country.

The child, storm center of court litigation since last November, was taken Tuesday from her Falls Church, Va., home, where she had lived with her mother since last August, when Mme. Stranska brought her here from Singapore, where the diplomat was stationed.

Yesterday, James R. Murphy, Washington attorney, who represents Dr. Stransky, revealed that the child, 6-year-old Mary Peyton Stranska, was safe and well and in the custody of her father. He said the father admitted taking the child and that both were "somewhere in the city."

"We hope to effect a reconciliation between the principals," he said. "My client is willing and Mme. Stranska has indicated she will cooperate if there is no other way she can be with her daughter."

Attorney Murphy, though declining to reveal the whereabouts of the father and daughter, said he had

Wage-Hour Bill Hits New Snag In Committee

Backers Gain Delay When House Labor Group Threatens Measure.

By Sidney Olson.

The battered wages-hours bill took another lusty beating at the hands of the House Labor Committee yesterday even as House leaders stalled off a feared knock-out blow by hastily postponing a scheduled meeting of the Rules Committee.

Under leadership of Chairman Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, the Labor Committee agreed, when and if the bill reaches the floor, to slash from it a series of controversial amendments.

Meanwhile, Chairman John O'Connor (Democrat), New York, of the Rules Committee, had moved swiftly to postpone indefinitely the slated session of the group—without an official reason. The committee after weeks of pull and haul, was supposed to meet to consider whether to give the wages-hour bill a favorable rule, so that it may go to the floor.

Postponement Asked.

House leaders and envoys from the White House, suddenly learning at least half and perhaps more of the 14 committee members were prepared to vote against giving the bill a rule, rushed to O'Connor and asked the postponement until more pressure could be applied to the opposition.

O'Connor immediately announced the postponement, but later, on the floor, in answer to a query, stated he is "heartily and enthusiastically in favor" of the bill.

The indefinite postponement threw the entire adjournment and legislative situation into utter confusion—a confusion so great as to cast its paralyzing shadow over the rest of the day's session, and to cause leaders to mutter "Nobody knows!" to all questions.

Meeting Called Off.

Cloakroom gossip focused on the exact sentiments of the 14 Rules Committee members. Sifting the numerous and generally conflicting reports, the situation seemed to be that when the committee meeting was called off, the vote would have been six for, six against, and two very doubtful. A tie vote would not have been sufficient to grant a rule.

By nightfall, however, it was learned one of those believed to be against the granting of a rule, Martin Dies (Democrat), of Texas, actually will not only vote for the rule but for the bill and may even make a speech on the floor in favor of the measure. A close friend in the House vowed Dies would act thus.

It was further learned that Lawrence Lewis, of Colorado (doubtful), and J. Bayard Clark, of North Carolina (against), both Democrats, were certain "aye" votes when faced with the final count.

May Get G. O. P. Aid.

This trio, added to O'Connor, Adolph Sabath, of Illinois; Arthur Greenwood, of Indiana; Byron Harlan, of Ohio, all Democrats, and possibly Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Republican), Massachusetts, would insure the granting of a rule.

But the closeness of the vote and the fact that Martin, lifelong Republican, would be needed to break the tie, illustrated the desperation of the leaders. Despite what is termed in the House lobbies "the heaviest White House pressure yet" for this key Administration measure, the President is in a position where the favorable vote of a Republican is needed to save the major part of his program at this session.

Even then, Clark, a Southerner, could throw the measure back into a tie if he were to go against the Administration.

Banded solidly against the bill on the committee are all but one—Clark—of its Southerners: Democrats, E. E. Cox, of Georgia; William J. Driver, of Arkansas; Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, and Republican J. Will Taylor, of Tennessee. Republicans, Donald McLean, of New Jersey, and Carl Mapes, of Michigan, also are expected to vote against a rule.

Floor Leader Rayburn, of Texas, and Chairman O'Connor said they did know when the Rules Committee will meet on the wage-hours bill. This was taken as symptomatic of the leaders' fear of a wage-hours vote until a clear majority is demonstrable.

Twenty-five other Congressmen, meanwhile, met and formed themselves into a "steering committtee" to consider ways and means of assisting passage of the bill.

Proposed Amendments.

The amendments favored by the Labor Committee yesterday are:

To insert a comma in a sentence exempting salesmen for local retailers from the act's operations, so as to remove the belief local retailers come under the act.

Expansion of an exemption for employes of motor carriers to include private and contract carriers' employes.

Omission of the controversial amendment which barred women and minors from working the "graveyard shift"—from 12 midnight to 6 a. m.—and omission of the amendment requiring time-and-one-half overtime pay for male "graveyard shift" workers in "continuous process" industries, on the grounds that "continuous process" is not exactly and satisfactorily definable.

Insertion of an exemption to Federal convict labor after an advisory opinion from the Justice Department that the present law would apply to Federal penal institutions.

Omission of the Borah amendment adopted by the Senate, which would have exempted employes of dairy co-operatives from the hours regulations of the bill.

Coal Hearings Delayed.

By the Associated Press.

The Bituminous Coal Commission yesterday postponed until August 31 yesterday hearings on the applications of seven subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation for the exemption of "captive mines" from commission regulation.

President's Absence From 'Harmony' Party Emphasizes Discord in Democratic Ranks.

By Franklyn Waltman

EVERY time the Democrats hold a "harmony" party, they advertise how widespread and how deep the dissension within their ranks really is. Thus it was with the ridiculous three-day Jefferson Island seance and so it is with the "harmony" dinner in honor of the new Democratic leader, Senator Alben W. Barkley.

WALTMAN.

No wonder Seenator Barkley asserted "that was a heluva harmony dinner" yesterday when the Senate voted down his effort to adjourn that body and thus sidetrack the anti-lynching bill. More Democrats voted against Mr. Barkley than with him.

It was to be expected the Democrats would split over the anti-lynching bill, harmony or no harmony. Thus, that is hardly significant of what has happened to the Democratic party since its glorious and overwhelming victory last November.

What is significant, however, is the fact that the party is in such a condition that President Roosevelt felt his presence at a Democratic harmony party at this time would be distinctly a discordant note. That is the reason he stayed away—not because he had some affairs to consider. The President always has affairs to consider. Whenever he does not wish to accept an invitation he pleads pressure of busisness.

Mr. Roosevelt felt that if he went to the "harmony" dinner he would be the loser, no matter what happened. In the first place he would be expected to make a speech. If he did not, or if he talked about the weather he would be a disappointment. If he talked about current issues, he would step on some toes and only add to the anger already felt against him on Capitol Hill.

Mr. Roosevelt is too smart a politician not to know that the Jefferson Island affair damaged him and his party. In that instance he had dignified and had given importance by his presence to a "harmony" effort. The fact the effort availed nothing and that the next week the Democrats were again at one another's throats became the more glaring because the effort had been made.

Mr. Roosevelt did not want to be placed in that position again—so he just decided not to go to the Barkley dinner. The Senate Democrats reciprocated. Not one referred to "our great President" or "our illustrious leader" in his remarks. Instead, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis expressed his disgust for the White House's attachment for fellows who were neither Republican nor Democrat — fish nor fowl. It was believed he was referring to Mr. Roosevelt's affection for the LaFollettes and Norrises.

The naked truth about the situation within the Democratic party is that there can be no harmony as long as President Roosevelt insists on measures of dubious constitutionality or of such an experimental nature as to make them questionable.

Nor can there be any harmony as long as the President continues to run with the hares and hunt with the hounds—which is exactly what he is trying to do when one day he encourages the left-wing elements in his party and the next day seeks to comfort the conservatives by minimizing what he told the other group. Nor can he expect harmony when he tells one group he is strongly for an anti-lynching bill and then tells his floor leaders to let the matter go over.

In the past many of the party wheel-horses went along with Mr. Roosevelt for various reasons. One was that he was bravely fighting a severe economic depression and it was conceded extraordinary circumstances called for extraordinary measures. Another was that Mr. Roosevelt generally was trusted. Even those who disagreed with his proposals defended his intentions. Since the President projected his scheme for reorganization of the Supreme Court this is not true.

As a result of that proposal, Mr. Roosevelt is now regarded with suspicion by many of the party conservatives and regulars who previously trusted him. In view of that proposal, charges of dictatorship do not appear as silly as they did previously. The belief grows daily that Mr. Roosevelt is nursing third-term aspirations and that occasional declarations in favor of a third term coming from his satellites are not altogether casual.

Thus Mr. Roosevelt is being judged against this new background, plus the very important fact the emergency which justified much he did in his first term has ended. With it has gone the militant popular support for any proposal that might be uttered by a starry-eyed poultry professor. Before there is peace and harmony, either Mr. Roosevelt will have to change and clear up a few matters—or he will have to drive a sizable bloc out of the Democratic Party.

* * *

Some folks cannot understand why the Senate Agricultural Committee is considering the Thomas bill for creating the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System into a monetary authority with power to manipulate the volume of currency. That is easy. Is not Dr. George F. Warren, author of the gold system on which this country is now operating, professor of farm management at Cornell? And did not Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau publish the American Agriculturist for nine years before he came to Washington?

* * *

A group of Washington correspondents the other day were discussing the President's frequent contention in press conferences that the country demands this or that or some other undertaking he has proposed. One asked how Mr. Roosevelt knew what the country demanded when there had not been any reference of such proposals to the country.

Senate Inquiry Into Monopoly In Radio Urged

By the United Press.

A resolution for Congressional investigation of the Federal Communications Commission and the Radio Broadcasting industry, reported earnestly opposed by the Administration, was favorably reported by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today.

The resolution, sponsored by Senator Wallace H. White, jr. (Republican), Maine, authorizes the committee to determine whether the acts of the commission in broadcasting cases have been influenced by matters "not apparent in the public records."

Montana's Senator Burton K. Wheeler, who no longer sees eye to eye with the President on New Deal legislation and who helped scrap the Supreme Court reorganization program, is chairman of the committee.

Monopoly to Be Sifted.

The resolution also authorizes the committee to investigate charges:

1. That the commission has been controlled by political and other influences.

2. That there has been developed a monopolistic concentration of control fo stations in the chain companies.

3. That the commission licensing authority has permitted concentration of stations in certain areas and failed to give equitable service to other communities.

4. The control of licenses and frequencies has passed to others than the original license, without written permission of the commission or in disregard of the aims of Congress.

5. That the licensing authority had, in effect, recognized vested property rights of value in licenses and in frequencies contrary to the letter and spirit of the law.

Roosevelt In Field.

The resolution was brought out coincident with persistent reports that the commission is in for a housecleaning, which President Roosevelt wants to defer until he can install a two-fisted chairman to succeed the late Anning S. Prall.

There has been considerable criticism of activities of the President's own family in the radio field. It reached an even higher crescendo recently when Charles Michelson, publicity director of the Democratic National Committee, took a job as consultant with the Crosley Radio Corporation. His salary with the Democratic committee is $22,500 a year.

Elliott Roosevelt, the President's son, is vice president of a radio concern, and he and his wife both have purchased stations, subject to communication commission approval.

WPA Seeks Return Of $24,000 Grant

By the Associated Press.

The Works Progress Administration said yesterday it was taking steps to recover a grant of about $24,000 made to the town of Ellisville, Miss., to aid in building an industrial school.

Officials said they learned the school, intended for training workers for industry, was being used for commercial production of socks.

The grant was made, they said, with the specific understanding no commercial use would be made of the building. Wade Allison, WPA administrator at Jackson, Miss., has been instructed to seek return of the grant.

I. C. C. Approves Merger Of 6 St. Louis Railroads

The Interstate Commerce Commission approved yesterday the consolidation of six St. Louis terminal railroads into the Illinois Terminal Railroad Co.

The consolidated company was authorized to acquire the properties of the St. Louis Terminal Railway Co. and the McKinley Bridge across the Mississippi River at St. Louis. The new company will operate over this bridge.

Coal Group 'Harmonious.'

U.S. Regulation Welcomed by Rail Magnate

By the Associated Press.

Robert R. Young, who recently bought control of America's biggest railway network, told Senate investigtors yesterday he would welcome legislation to put his giant holding companies under Federal regulation.

The Senate Railway Finance Committee, winding up its six-month study of the so-called Van Sweringen set-up, heard the youthful financier promise to eliminate "certain evils," which he said afflicted the 23,000-mile system before he took control.

He testified he would "welcome the opportunity" to work with the Interstate Commerce Commission in reorganizing the complex pyramid of more than 100 corporations "in the public interest."

When Young left the witness stand, he learned the first step in his reorganization plan was being challenged in the Federal District Court at Baltimore.

An injunction to block the merger of Young's chief holding companies—Alleghany and Chesapeake corporations—was sought by two New York investment trusts, Tri-Continental and Selected Industries, Inc.

Both firms hold large minority interests in Chesapeake Corporation common stock, which they contended would be unfavorably treated by the reorganization.

The proposed merger was viewed with frank skepticism by Acting Chairman Truman (Democrat), of Missouri.

Max Lowenthal, committee counsel, declared the committee's inquiry had revealed "false bookkeeping, false reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and false loan applications to the Reconstruction Corporation" by the Van Sweringen system's major line, the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway.

New Tax Drive Begins Against Hidden Wealth

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

The Treasury has begun an intensive drive to collect income tax deficiencies allegedly owed by wealthy men and women investigated by the Senate in the drive to plug loopholes in the revenue laws, was learned last night.

The opening wedge was filing of a clai mfor $157,580, including a 50 per cent penalty, against Richard M. Cadwalader, jr., and his wife, of Fort Washington, Pa., owners of the yacht Savarona which figured prominently in the recent tax avoidance hearings.

Other officials said the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which falls under Magill's supervision had been instructed to "give everyone a square deal."

Cadwalader protested that the bureau wrongfully assessed both the claim for $105,053 and the penalty of 50 per cent, amounting to $52,527. His contentions were:

1. That the Treasury erred in increasing his assessable income for 1932 by the amount of dividend payments received by the Savarona Ship Corporation. He said these belonged to the corporation and were included in its own income-tax return.

2. That the Treasury had erroneously refused to allow him and his wife to deduct a net capital loss of $730,400 sustained by Mrs. Cadwalader in 1932 from the sale of securities, including 400 shares in the stock of the incorporated yacht, valued by Cadwalader at $647,124.

3. That the Treasury had erred by adding to Cadwalader's income sums received as interest by the Savarona Ship Corporation on securities owned by it.

4. That the Treasury had mistakenly included in his own taxable income dividends which were actually received by the yacht company and reported on its return.

Cadwalader informed the Board of Tax Appeals that 400 shares in the ship corporation had been sold by Mrs. Cadwalader in March, 1932, to Thomas Campbell for $40,000, and that they had cost her $687,124. He claimed he should be allowed a deduction of 12½ per cent on this loss.

Guild Line Broken By Seattle Drivers

Seatttle, Aug. 11 (AP).—Continued publication of the Seattle Star was assured today when men wearing Teamsters' Union buttons escorted union printers into the newspaper plant and forced American Newspaper Guild pickets to retreat a block and a half. Three men were arrested and several injured in a seires of fist fights.

Earlier only half of the newspaper's mechanical force had reported for work. The others, Foreman Ralph Cunningham said, were unable to pass the picket line.

The group wearing teamsters' buttons remained near the plant to see that trucks leaving the building with newspapers were not halted.

N. F. F. E. Session Set Next Month

Extension and strengthening of the merit system in the Federal Government will be the highlight of discussions at the twentieth convention of the National Federation of Federal Employes in Springfield, Ill., next month, it was predicted yesterday by Luther C. Steward, N. F. F. E. president.

"It is clear," he said, that our membership is convinced that present conditions in the Federal service demand immediate reform to extend and strengthen the scope of the civil service laws and regulations."

He said that if the tone of resolutions at hand are any indication, "action will be taken at Springfield to continue the work which the organization has been carrying on so effectively for the past two years."

Officer Ejects Holzworth at House Meeting

Lawyer Thrown Out When He Tries to Address District Group.

Five days after he was arrested on the Capitol steps, John M. Holzworth invaded a meeting of the House District Committee yesterday, and, after a tumultuous word battle with two members, was thrown out by a police officer.

Holzworth, who has been trying to get the District Committee to investigate the Police Department and the United States attorney's office, tried to speak at yesterday's meeting, but Chairman Vincent L. Palmisano cut him short.

Palmisano said the committee had been called to consider specific bills and that if Holzworth had anything to say it would be taken up under "new business."

Arnold Asks Ejection.

"It isn't new business," Holzworth shouted. "I want to talk about a matter that has been before your committee for two and a half months."

Palmisano told his secretary to summon a policeman to "throw" Holzworth out.

"You're nothing but a fixer and a go-between," Holzworth yelled, "and you have been ever since you've been chairman of this committee."

Arraignment Pending.

Arnold advanced toward Holzworth, reinforced by Representative Sacks (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, and Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal. But just then Police Capt. Jeremiah Sullivan came back in the room. He had been there to testify and was on his way out of the building when Palmisano's secretary caught him.

Capt. Sullivan grasped Holzworth, escorted him to the elevator and told him to get out and not come back.

In a statement issued late last night, Holzworth said he had a two-fold purpose in asking permission to be heard by the House District Committee. The statement read:

"First, I wished to urge some action be taken on the criminal subcommittee report, which has been lying on the table two and one-half months without any action.

"Second, I wanted to file with the committee a letter from Superintendent Peak, of Lorton, stating I still was barred by order from contacting personally or by letter clients who have paid fees on account, and whose proceedings I am unable to carry on without contact.

"No explanation ever has been given of that order and the prisoners are deprived of their constitutional right to counsel. It is a matter for the District committee to look into."

Holzworth is to be arraigned in Police Court a week from today to answer charges of "displaying propagadna" and disorderly conduct in the Capitol steps last Friday. Several months ago, Holzworth attracted national attention when he uncovered evidence that led President Roosevelt to save Thomas Jordon, convicted killer, from the electric chair.

House Group Votes To Oust Jenks and Seat His Opponent

By the Associated Press.

A House Elections Committee voted yesterday to recommend that the House unseat Representative Arthur B. Jenks, Republican, and find Alphonse Roy, Democratic nominee, was elected in the First New Hampshire Congressional District.

The vote was cast on strictly party lines. Five Democrats voted against three Republicans to seat Roy. Formal report probably will go to the House today and come up for action later in the week or early next week. The Republicans are expected to file a minority report.

Roy contested the findings of former Gov. Bridges of New Hampshire that Jenks was elected. The New Hampshire ballot law commission had reported Roy the victor.

Jenks subsequently was awarded the seat when he protested the commission had not counted 34 ballots in the town Newton.

Competition Drops Md. Melon Prices

Annapolis, Aug. 11 (AP).—Anne Arundel County truck farmers marketing their cantaloupe crop are feeling the effects of competition from sections which recently have taken to raising cantaloupes, it was learned today.

Stanley E. Day, county agent, said the farmers have "an average crop of excellent quality, normal as to volume, but are not making much out of it."

He said farmers in the section, principally North Carolina, were sending a large quantity of cantaloupes to the local markets. Some of these shipments come in bulk by truck.

Stransky's Wife Appeals to State Department After Diplomat Takes Child From Va. Home

Mother Now Expected to Sue for Divorce in Few Weeks.

"She seemed in fine spirits," he added, "and was happy to be with her father."

The possibility of reconciliation, however, was scoffed at by William Price Keith, Washington attorney associated with the Barbour, Garnett & Pickett firm. He said such a thing was "out of the question."

Keith further said that after a conference with his client he is of the opinion that she will file suit for divorce at the expiration of her one year of residence in Virginia—which will be in another few weeks.

Feared Her Husband.

In her petition for custody of the child filed November 23 last before Judge Walter T. McCarthy in Arlington Circuit Court, Mme. Stranska contended she "cannot continue" to live with her husband because his "treatment" of her was "seriously affecting her health." She further charged she "lived in constant fear" for the safety of herself and her child.

A motion to dismiss the petition was then filed by the diplomat through his attorney. In this the defendant set forth that he was a citizen and resident of Czecholslovakia; that the child was "abducted by the plaintiff" without his "knowledge, consent and against his wishes" and that "the infant was brought to this country unlawfully as an immigrant."

The defendant further charged the court lacked the jurisdiction to pass on the case.

No action was taken by the court but the case was scheduled to come up before the fall session of the Arlington County Court.

The 6-year-old center of the domestic wrangle is a citizen of Czechoslovakia, both sides admit. Her parents were married in England, June 29, 1927. At that time Dr. Stranski was first secretary of the Czechoslovakia Legation here.

Noted Virginia Family.

Since her return from Singapore, Mme. Stranska has made her home with her father, the Rev. J. B. Henry, a retired minister who now devotes his time to raising poultry. On her mother's side she is a descendant of the Peyton family, one of the oldest and noted in Virginia.

The bizarre events of Tuesday afternoon were related yesterday by Province Henry, 30-year-old brother of Mme. Stranska.

According to Henry, two sedans suddenly drove into the long driveway leading into the Henry farm. The older Henry, his son and little Mary Peyton Stranska were alone on the farm.

In the front sedan were two men wearing dark glasses, according to young Henry's story. In the second car was another man, similarly disguised.

Recognized the Father.

Both cars stopped, Henry said, and a man beckoned to the child. He recognized the man as the child's father. Before he could interfere, he stated, the other man jumped out, grabbed up the little girl bodily and placed her in his automobile.

Henry said he pursued the automobiles a short distance but was soon outdistanced.

When notified at a Falls Church physician's office where she works, Mme. Stranska hurried to the Czechoslovakian Legation where she was closeted with Vladimir Hurban, Minister from Czechoslovakia to the United States.

Attorney Murphy yesterday denied his client took the child by force. He said:

"Mme. Stranska took the child without the knowledge or consent of Dr. Stransky in Singapore a year ago and returned to Virginia.

"As soon as he could obtain leave from his diplomatic post he came here, and yesterday he took the child as the mother had done.

Impatient at Delay.

"There was litigation pending in Virginia for custody of the child, but apparently Dr. Stransky was dissatisfied with the delays and feared he could not remain here long enough for court action.

"On Tuesday, acting without advice, he went to Virginia and took the child. Then he telephoned me what he had done."

Attorney Murphy revealed Dr. Stransky arrived in Washington a week ago. He was en route from Singapore to his native city of Prague. The attorney further said he was of the opinion that the father is the sole custodian of the child, under Czechosolvak law.

This opinion was contradicted by a spokesman for the Czechoslovakian Legation who said that mother and father have equal custody rights under the laws of his country. The spokesman denied knowledge of the diplomat's whereabouts.

Federal Funds To Aid Crippled Are Lying Idle

D. C. Could Increase Its Facilities, Health Official Says.

No crippled children in the District are suffering from lack of care, despite failure of local authorities to take advantage of Federal aid offered them, Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, assistant health officer, said yesterday.

Social security funds in the amount of $27,966 have been standing idle during 1936 and 1937 which could have been used to augment hospital facilities, he said, if the District government had found means to match the Federal grants dollar for dollar.

The $27,966 could have been used to purchase new hydro-therapeutic and electro-therapeutic devices, and more modern braces, and other aids for the District's 1,000 crippled children.

An addition of $24,156 in 1938 will bring the total up to $52,122 in social security grants.

The Health Department was first designated to work out plans to make use of the new social security funds in 1935. Under its plan Washington would receive only $4,000 annually, inasmuch as that was all Washington was spending in accredited hospitals. The main portion of the local $25,000 a year allowance to this type of work was being spent in Gallinger and Children's Hospitals. These institutions were not eligible to participate in Federal grants.

Next the crippled children's program was put in the lap of the welfare Department. Assistant Director of Public Welfare Paul Kirby said yesterday that after one slate was drawn up, it was changed, resulting in a summer-long delay.

Then Congress wanted to transfer hospitals from the Public Welfare Department to the Health Department. Finally in June, 1936, Congress switched its hospital appropriation from Welfare to Health.

Now the Health Department once more must go through all the mechanical operations it began in 1935 Its plans must again be approved by District Commissioners and later by the Children's Bureau. When this is done, the crippled children of the city will be eligible for supplemental aid—provided the District can find money to spend in equal amounts with the Federal Government.

Senate Facing Filibuster on Lynching Bill

H. King, of Utah, and his District airport bill; Senator Morris Sheppard, of Texas, and his Army housing measure, and Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, to call up a naval bill.

Garner gently tapped his gavel.

"May the Chair make a statement?" he said.

Garner added he was familiar with Barkley's program, but was obliged to comply with Senate rules.

"The Chair looked down at the Senator from Utah, and he was in his seat," he said. "He looked down at the Senator from Texas, and he was in his seat."

The Vice President said he "had no choice" but to recognize Wagner, who was standing.

"Over in the other body (the House)," said Garner, "it is not at all unusual to call a member to his feet if he is sitting, but that is not permitted here."

Barkley said he meant no criticism of the Chiar, but thought the anti-lynching bill should not be used to block an emergency measure, and suggested Wagner was "unfair" in calling it up.

Wagner said he had no desrie to "dissarrange" the program, but before he could complete his retort he was interrupted by McNary. The minority leader said it was "unpleasant when plans go awry," but the fact remained the Wagner bill was before the Senate.

"That motion cannot be withdrawn except by unanimous consent, and I shall object to withdrawal," said McNary.

That settled the matter, and Borah, violently opposed to the antilynching measure because of Constitutional implications, took the floor against it.

Blow at Local Government.

"If you can go into a State and take charge of an individual or individuals who have committed a crime, and bring them under the Federal Government's jurisdiction," Borah said, "then the last vestige of local government will have disappeared."

He said it would enable the Federal Government to supervise the conduct of every State officer, and punish failures to perform their duty in preventing lynchings, although making no such provision for other forms of violence (gang killings).

"If these provisions remain in the bill, we will have a long debate," Borah warned. "As long as I am physically able, I shall never consent to authorizing the Federal Government to bring suit against a county or city, where the people may be perfectly innocent, and have them punished for the crimes of two or three.

Silent on Filibuster.

Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), Indiana, cited the Scottsboro case, involving colored Alabama criminal assault defendants, and the Supreme Court decision they should have a new trial because colored jurors were excluded, Borah retorted it had "no relation whatever to Federal legislation."

Southern Senators have fought the bill to the death on every previous attempt to pass it, but if they had plans for a filibuster they did not disclose them last night. Some are opposed to an extended fight. In one quarter it was said the bill would "put the President on the spot in the South" if it is passed and sent to him for his signature.

The 27-to-35 vote against adjournment was hailed by Senator Clark as a test of sentiment for the measure, and "assuring its passage." Clark said he had counted 75 votes for the bill in the Senate.

Student, 17, Gets Life For Attack on Girl, 9

Chicago, Aug. 11 (AP).—John Ardelean, 17-year-old high school student, was convicted of rape by a criminal court jury today and sentenced to life imprisonment for his attack on Lorraine Hundreiser, 9. The jury deliberated less than an hour.

The little girl, recovering from 37 stab wounds suffered during the attack in Ardelean's basement July 8, was the State's principal witness.

'Chute Jumping Dog Dies in Los Angeles

The dog, half wolf and half police, was brought here from Mexico 14 years ago by Arrigo Balboni, who taught her to jump. Annie has jumped from airplanes at least 600 times.

D. C. Man Named Head Of National Colored Bar

William L. Houston, former member of the Board of Education, has been named as head of the National Bar Association, composed of colored attorneys, it was announced yesterday.

Houston now is a member of the efficiency committee of the District Commissioners. He was the founder of the Washington Bar Association, which he headed at the time of his elevation to president of the national group, which numbers about 1,200 lawyers.

In this tremendous grave, in the rear of the zebra house at the Zoo, the remains of "Old Babe," beloved 99-year-old elephant, who died Sunday, was buried last night.

Bill to Improve Capital Airport Passes House, Is Sent to Senate

the House had been successfully completed, Representative Wilcox pointed out that the bill the committee had recommended for passage has been stripped of its more controversial provisions.

"Maybe the lagoon should be filled," he said, "but the National Capital Park and Planning Commission objected to that feature, and several of the witnesses before the committee declared that it was unnecessary anyway. This measure which has just passed the House is a beginning from which to build. It may be necessary in the future to remove other hazards in the vicinity of the airport, such as the towers at Arlington, but this bill will make the field safe for use at the present time. If we had included the various controversial provisions which were desired by some of the witnesses who appeared before us the bill would certainly have been defeated in the Senate if it managed to pass the House."

Representative Andrew J. May, of Kentucky, sponsor of the measure, expressed gratification that House action had been favorable. He indicated that he thought the Senate would take a similar course. "The imperative need for the improvement of the airport is so great," he said, "that I believe we will get favorable consideration of the measure in the Senate. Ever since I have been in Congress there has been talk about airport improvement here. I think we have started something this time that will finally get somewhere."

Support for the measure also was expressed by Representative R. Ewing Thomason, of Texas, who has advocated Government ownership and operation of Washington Airport. "I want to see the finest airport in the world here at the Nation's Capital. This is a step in the right direction. I am glad that the Government will retain title to the road. I didn't want to see the Government get plumb out of the airport area. I want the Government to spend some money over there and develop a real commercial airport. By retaining title to the Military road right of way the task will be made much easier when the time comes to act."

The Senate yesterday failed to reach the two bills on its calendar concerned with the airport question. Senate leaders indicated that the measure to improve Washington Airport and another to build a great commercial terminal at Camp Springs would receive consideration within the next few days.

Hazen Asks toKeep All Local Powers

The District Commissioners have asked the Senate section of the Joint Committee on Reorganization to prevent the transfer of any of the District government's functions to the Federal Government in the bill reorganizing the Federal structure.

A delegation composed of Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen and Dan I. Sultan, Auditor Daniel J. Donovan and Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal proposed several amendments to prevent tampering with the municipal government. A written statement was submitted which said:

"Should such transfers be made, the Commissioners would have no control over such functions of the District Government transferred to the Federal Government, although responsibility for local administration would still be theirs."

Ship Steward Held As Dope Smuggler

New York, Aug. 11 (AP).—Thirty customs agents sprung a trap yesterday after nine months of vigilance, and arersted Johann Murken, 49, a bedroom steward, as he came ashore from the United States liner Manhattan charged with carrying 22 pounds of narcotics worth $150,000.

Officials said Murken, a cabinet maker, had hidden the narcotics in a false panel of a stateroom locker. Customs men had watched the ocean liner Manhattan twice last November when they received information that narcotics were to be smuggled off the ship.

Welfare Cases Mount.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 11.—There are 149 cases on the Frederick County welfare rolls, it was learned today from Mrs. Eulalia Nalley, superintendent. Eight new cases were added during the past month.

9 More Okapis, In Name at Least, Found at College

Coeds at the College of William and Mary have challenged The Sunday Post's statement that there is only one okapi in America. Nine girls there, while claiming no relationship with the 16-inch-tongued creature of the Congo, named themselves a year ago the Order of Overworked Okapis.

They became okapis quite accidentally. Members of different sweet societies, they decided to band together in a new organization. The title stumped them for a while. They knew they were the Order of Overworked something, and for the sake of consistency, ran through the dictionary's list of obscure nouns beginning with "o." "Okapi" seemed just the thing.

Miss Mollie Waters, of Germantown, Md., is their president. The prospect of more native okapis is indicated by the formation of chapters at Hood College (Frederick, Md.) and Fredericksburg State Teachers College.

Committee Votes ColeReinstatement

The House District Committee yesterday approved a bill authorizing reinstatement of Amos B. Cole to the police force. Cole was dismissed because he took $18 worth of unclaimed clothing and silverware from the station and turned them over to a patriotic society for a rummage sale.

The committee acted on the recommendation of a sub-committee which had found that Cole's record was good. It found, too, that he removed the property with the consent of a detective.

On recommendation of the subcommittee, the committee rejected a bill to reinstate James F. Day, another dismissed officer.

man of the Senate Reorganization Committee, announced final reorganization action will not come until next session.

A modified House reorganization bill had been reported to the House Tuesday, and is slated for consideration late this week. Chairman John J. Cochran, of the House Reorganization Committee, and Representative Lindsay Warren (Democrat), North Carolina, handled the new House measure, accompanied Byrnes to the White House.

After the conference, they appeared resigned to delay of reorganization until next session. Senator Byrnes is said to have promised Senate Minority Leader McNary and Senator Harry Flood Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, he would not seek passage this session. But he will attempt to report out the Senate's omnibus bill next week.

But the President's letter to Harrison, and Wallace's objections to the "compromise" sugar marketing measure added another high barrier to the many adjournment obstacles.

The Senate had planned to call up to day the sugar "compromise," which sets refined sugar quotas for both Continental and off-shore refiners at peak levels.

Wallace Scores Loans.

The President had threatened to veto the House bill, because he thought it discriminated against Puerto Rico, Hawaii and other island refiners. Wallace contended yesterday the Finance Committee "compromise" would not eliminate the discrimination.

Wallace at his press conference also criticized the mandatory crop loan bill before the Senate Agriculture Committee. He estimated Federal farm subsidies might mount as high as $490,000,000, if the Government agreed to pay farmers up to a "parity price" of 17 cents. He said the program might cost $1,280,000,000 for corn and cotton, and if wheat, tobacco and rice were included as proposed, expenditures might go "up to the cost of the plan the Republicans advocated last year."

Wallace will appear before the Senate Agriculture Committee today, although Chairman Ellison D. Smith said the group had indicated full approval of the loan proposals.

Meantime, the new wheat crop insurance bill, approved by a narrow margin in the House Agriculture Committee, was passed over without action by a House Rules Committee, undetermined as yet what to do with it.

Taking the floor of the House yesterday, Chairman Marvin Jones, of the House Agriculture Committee, told members his group will continue efforts for general farm legislation. He said he thought it unnecessary to hold Congress in session until a bill is ready, but said he had no objection to a special session.

Jones warned that crop loans to tide farmers over a bad marketing season probably would be vetoed by the President unless accompanied by general farm legislation.

Primary Is Urged In Arkansas Race

Miller, who is in Washington, made the suggestion in a telegram.

Directors Dissolve Last Relic of Vast Morgan Rail Trust

Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 11 (AP).—The Northern Securities Co., last vestige of J. P. Morgan's gigantic railroad trust, was dissolved today at a special stockholders meeting.

The company was one of the first to feel the effects of "trust-busting" in the Theodore Roosevelt Administration, and since the Supreme Court, in 1904, held it a combination in restraint of trade, its corporate structure has been practically useless.

Its holdings of Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railroad stock were distributed to the stockholders after the Supreme Court ruling, and about all that was left of the once great holding firm were blocks of stock in the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad and in the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co.

The stock on hand, valued at about $6,000,000, will be distributed among the remaining shareholders as result of today's action.

D. C. Cab Driver Hunted in Murder

Metropolitan police last night were searching for a former Washington cab driver, wanted in Greenwood, Pa., in connection with a murder.

The man's name was given as Elvin Homer Gates, jr., alias Lester Compson and Leroy Carson. Police said he drove a taxi here two years ago, and lived at 1715 Pennsylvania avenue. That address is now a business place. He is believed to be visiting his wife, whose name was not given.

Police reported Gates was sought following a murder, committed during a robbery in the Pennsylvania city July 27. Local officers had been looking for him several days, and did not publicize the lookout until last night.

Labor Survey Report Is Given to President

By the Associated Press.

Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, said he had reported to President Roosevelt yesterday on the "state of the Nation as far as labor disturbances are concerned."

Just back from a trip to Philadelphia, Cleveland and New York, McGrady told newsmen at the White House:

"Everything at the moment is about normal except silk where there is a strike for better wages and hours. I don't look for any great disturbances."

Mussolini Exalts 'Ever-Increasing' Arms for Italians

Before 100,000 cheering Sicilians, Il Duce exalted "ever increasing military preparation of the people" as the only alternative to misery and slavery.

"History shows that when a people does not want to bear its own arms, it is forced to bear the arms of someone else," Mussolini declared. "Count on your soldiers and have faith in the future of your fatherland."

Il Duce is in Sicily to supervise mock warfare, to begin Friday, to test the vulnerability of western Sicily against invasions from the sea.

Seven Men Escape From Elkton Jail

By the Associated Press.

Elkton, Md., Aug. 11.—A gang of seven escaped prisoners—accused of crimes ranging from homicidal assault to robbery — was hunted throughout Maryland tonight.

They sawed their way today out of the Cecil County Jail here, where they were awaiting action of the grand jury.

Prisoners who escaped and charges against them were Hampton Hall, 30, holdup and attempted murder; Gilbert Faulkner, 18, colored, robbery; Bradford Mayberry, 25, assault with intent to kill; Adolphus Campbell, 18, assault with intent to kill; Blaine Burchett, 24, robbery; Sigman Yarmust, 18, robbery; Edward Rider, 25, robbery.

Baltimore, Aug. 11 (AP).—Following a tip that the Brady gang had a package delivered to a building in the business district here, police late today found an arsenal of grenades and machine gun ammunition.

Saccardi Named Head Of Social Agencies Unit

Vincent Saccardi was appointed chairman of the corrections committee of the Washington Council of Social Agencies, it was announced yesterday. Saccardi, manager of the local Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., succeeds Ray I. Huff, who resigned recently to become superintendent of District penal institutions.

Saccardi was one of the backers of the "clinic to the court" movement, which advocated that a physician and a social worker act psychiatrist, in co-operation with the District courts. It is expected that his appointment will bring about a renewed drive for the establishment of the clinic.

French Planes and Troops Move on Kurd Tribes in Syrian Revolt

Bands Pillage Towns and Fire On Authorities

Three Concentrations of Rebels Bombed From Air.

By the Associated Press.

Deir-Ez-Zor, Syria, Aug. 11.—French bombing planes and motorized infantry went into action today to suppress a rebellion of Mohammedan Kurds against French rule in Syria.

Several Christians were injured, villages were pillaged and civil authorities who tried to restore order were fired upon by bands of wild Kurdish tribesmen in northeastern Syria.

The French were concerned over the origin of large shipments of cartridges and other munitions, found at Aleppo, and consigned to the rebellious tribesmen.

Specific reasons for the uprising were concealed under official censorship.

Three motorized infantry units and squadrons of warplanes took the field against the Kurds. Troops rushed the village of Amouda, near the Turkish frontier, where two officers who attempted to restore order were fired upon, but the Kurds had evacuated it.

Bombing planes attacked three villages where important concentrations of Kurds were observed.

At Aleppo, a bomb was thrown into the home of Dr. Hassan Fuad, deputy of the political party known as the "National Bloc."

Henry Mevrier, acting high commissioner in the absence of Count Damien de Martel, who is in France, flew to the scene of the disorders.

(There have been various disorders recently in Syria, attributed to restlessness over the transition from French rule to independence. Riots and strikes, deaths and arrests have accompanied the organization of a government intended to relieve France of the League of Nations mandate it has held for 15 years.

Soviet North Pole Camp (by wireless to Moscow), Aug. 11 (AP).—Soviet Russia's polar campers found today that their ice floe had sailed a zigzag course of 176 miles since May under the influence of wind, the ocean current, and the rotation of the earth. The floe on which they are camped has drifted steadily downward from the pole in the direction of Iceland.

German Ocean Survey Plane Reaches Lisbon

Berlin, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—The 16-ton flying boat Nordmeer, classed by Germans as the world's largest airplane, landed at Lisbon today, Lufthansa officials announced. The rest of a survey flight to New York will be via the Azores. Eight surveys are to precede what Lufthansa officials expect to be an air service between Germany and New York.

Warship Lease Plan Defended By Hull, Welles

Reich Hits Proposal.

From Berlin and Buenos Aires, Assciated Press dispatches reported the emphatic disfavor with which Germany and Argentine papers greeted the proposal, but the Critica, in the latter city, took the opposite stand.

Critica said the proposal "has symbolic value, adding:

"European Fascist powers which see in northern Brazil and Argentina's Patagonia succulent morsels have received with the Hull offer a serious warning.

"Upon extending the proposal made to Brazil to all Latin American countries, North America contributes to reaffirm sentimental solidarity in the face of any menace from European Fascists."

The paper said German and Italian diplomacy had been "working without interruption to attain penetration of Brazil."

Envoy Seeks Data.

German papers, linking the destroyer plan with the recent monetary and trade gareements between the United States and Brazil, saw an attempt by this country to throttle German-Brazilian trade.

Ambassador Espil said he had received on instructions from the Argentine government in relation to the controversy, but that up on reading of the unfavorable press comment in his country he had undertaken to obtain any available information on the situation.

Ambassador Oswaldo Aranha, of Brazil, was quoted in a United Press interview as asserting Brazil's intention to lease destroyers from the United States for training purposes is not a military move against any country. He added friendly comment intended to allay editorial apprehension in Argentina.

Move Defended.

Brazil, considering size and population, is the least armed country in the world, the ambassador said, adding his view that Brazilian acquisition of destroyers to improve naval education and training would be a step militarily so insignificant as not to justify alarm abroad.

"Alarm of any other country over the naval position of Brazil would be as though a man armed with a machine gun were afraid of a man with a pocketknife," he said.

The National Council for Prevention of War, in a statement, said leasing of destroyers to South American countries would not further the Administration good neighbor policy.

Farmers Debate Teacher's Guilt in 'Evolution Trial'

Waynesburg, Pa., Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Grave-faced farmers and their wives argued tonight whether they wanted their children to be taught by a 42-year-old country school teacher charged with expounding the theories of evolution and enforcing discipline with a ball bat, a buggy whip and an iron poker.

The school board's hearing of the charges, brought by several pupils, was in adjournment, and Mrs. Laura Elms Morris, mother of two children, was out of a job—at least temporarily.

At the board's first hearing, Jack Jones, one of Mrs. Morris' pupils, testified that "in front of an ancient history book was the picture of a hairy man. She said he was a monkey who had lost his tail."

Mrs. Morris, fighting to regain the position she had held since 1914, denied the charge, as well as the assertion she used a ball bat or iron poker to enforce discipline. She admitted she once had used a buggy whip on a pupil.

Loyalist Drive Fails in North, Rebels Assert

Franco's Machine Guns Mow Down Asturian Miners, Report Says.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 11.—Spanish insurgent authorities in Irun today announced that Generalissimo Francisco Franco's troops have smashed an attempted government offensive on the Austrian front in northern Spain.

Government losses were described as "extremely heavy."

The insurgents said battalions of Austrian miners swept out of their trenches in the sector near Oviedo and west of Santander, and charged their foe's positions.

The rapidity of the attack carried the miners far enough forward to hurl grenades into the opposing lines, but, the insurgents said, Franco's machine gunners then mowed them down.

Insurgents reported that half of the attacking band was killed and the survivors forced back to initial positions.

Heavy insurgent troops movements in the north were reported by government sources in Santander. They foresaw possible renewal on the drive on Santander.

In eastern Spain, the village of Frais de Albrarracin fell to the insurgents who are trying to cut through the strategic Madrid-Valencia communication lines.

The insurgents were reported massing troops for a big drive in the direction of Reinosa from the south. They said government fliers observed long columns of reinforcements coming to the northern front through Burgos.

5 Killed By Egyptian Who Commits Suicide

Glasgow, Scotland, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Upindari Biswas, Egyptian student, ran amuck tonight and killed his wife, child, three others and himself.

Biswas fatally wounded his wife with a revolver as she stood in the doorway of their home, and killed a taxi driver who intervened. Then, while police pursued him, he ran upstairs and killed his father-in-law, sister-in-law and his own child. He killed himself before police could reach him.

Zionists Vote To Negotiate on Partition Plan

Will Ask Exact Terms of England Before Acting; Rabbi Wise Beaten.

By the Associated Press.

Zurich, Switzerland, Aug. 11.—Overriding bitter opposition, the World Zionist Congress voted today to negotiate with Great Britain on the royal commission's scheme to partition Palestine.

Despite protests from a faction headed by Rabbi Stephen Wise, of New York, delegates voted 304 to 158 to explore further the proposal's possibilities and ascertain its exact terms.

Cautioned on Duty.

"Thousands of years of Jewish history is being crowded into this brief vote. Remember your duty."

But after the tumult had subsided Jewish leaders who lost their fight on this initial issue announced that their parties would remain integral parts of the world organization.

Rabbi S. Hoffman, of Palestine, spokesman for Mizrachi, and Eliesер Perai, spokesman for Hashomer Nazair, said their parties would continue opposition to division of the Holy Land into separate Jewish and Arab states and a third section under British mandate, as proposed by the British commission.

The vote did not authorize executive officers of the World Zionists to approve or turn down the commission's proposed partition.

Wise Accuses Weizmann.

Rabbi Wise accused Zionist president Chaim Weizmann and other leaders of overstepping their authority in advocating the majority resolution for negotiations to establish full facts of the partitioning scheme. Wise claiming the support of a majority of American Zionists and Jews, opposed any split of Palestine.

The adopted resolution blamed trouble in Palestine to uncertainty over British policy as the mandate power, and added:

"The Congress reaffirms its previous declarations expressing the readiness of the Jewish people to reach a peaceful settlement with the Arabs in Palestine, based on a free development of both races with mutual recognition of their respective rights."

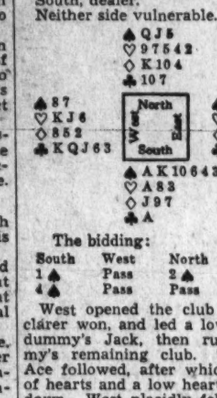
Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Bargains Are Expensive.

I have always maintained a scrupulous silence on the perennial argument "which are better bridge players—men or women," nor do I intend to break my rule at this time. But I am going to make an admission on behalf of my own sex: the bargain-seeking instinct in women does not work out well at bridge. It may have been a coincidence, but the West player in the hand shown below was thoroughly feminine.

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the club King; declarer won, and led a low spade to dummy's Jack, then ruffed dummy's remaining club. The spade Ace followed, after which the Ace of hearts and a low heart were laid down. West placidly followed suit—playing the six of hearts on the Ace and the Jack on the next round.

I greatly fear that millions of players, regardless of sex, would do likewise. But from the defenders' point of view, an unfortunate situation immediately developed. East, having played the heart ten on the Ace, now was forced to overtake West's Jack and could not exit without presenting declarer with a vital trick. A club lead would afford declarer the discard of a heart while ruffing in the dummy, whereas the lead of two rounds of diamonds would hold the defenders to one diamond trick. A little vigilance plus a little imagination on West's part would have avoided this calamity. These were the facts she should have noted:

At the time the second heart was led, both declarer and dummy were out of clubs. From the bidding, from the fact that only two rounds of trumps had been drawn, and the final fact that East had played the spade nine on the second round, West could be sure that East was now out of trumps.

Now for the point of imagination! Obviously, there were no spade or club tricks for the defenders, and two heart tricks would be the limit; therefore, two diamond tricks would be necessary to defeat the contract. If declarer had started with the Ace and Queen of hearts, surely he would have attempted a heart finesse since he could not have known where the King lay. Thus, the failure to try such a finesse was eloquent proof that declarer did not hold the heart Queen. The danger was that East, after one heart lead, had the Queen blank and would be forced on lead, with no safe exit. The play of East's heart ten on the Ace was further warning, if West had only had the vision to interpret it.

But, as I said originally, West was a lady with a strong bargain instinct, and the thought of expending the King on a trick that could be won with the Jack was a bit too much for her, I suppose.

Maryland Farmers Advertise 'The Worst Road in United States.'

Farmer Guarded From Crowd on Charge of Killing Son

Leads Officers To Decapitated Body in Woods

Mississippian Yields to Search Threat, Follows Buzzards to Spot.

By the United Press.

Belzoni, Miss., Aug. 11.—Authorities took precautions to protect H. E. Barnett, a cotton tenant farmer, from an angry crowd of neighbors tonight after he had been indicted on a charge of murdering his 11-year-old son, Jordan, and exposing the body to buzzards.

Barnett, barefooted, was led into Humphrey County grand jury room and indicated on three charges—bigamy, assault and battery on a child and first degree murder.

The crowd muttered angrily at Barnett. He had followed the buzzards to the body of his son after neighbors threatened to search for the missing youth. The body was badly mutilated.

Before the grand jury took action, Granny Richards had reported seeing buzzards flying over the Barnett farm on August 2, three days after Jordan disappeared.

"I went to Barnett's on Tuesday morning and told them if they did not find the boy within an hour I would follow the buzzards to where he was," she said.

Within the hour Barnett led officers to the decapitated and partly decomposed body.

The grand jury first heard testimony of Levoid Barnett, 15-year-old daughter of the barefooted farmer, and Claude McKee, foreman of the corner's jury which held an inquiry in the woods near where the body was found.

Levoid told of how she and her younger brother suffered continual beatings by her father and stepmother.

"He whipped us," she said. "He wore out a cane whipping Jordan, then he grabbed a rope and whipped me with it."

The bigamy charge accused Barnett of leaving his wife in Alabama several years ago and going to Leake County, Miss., where he married again. Trial was set for the week of August 23.

Bottle Sails Down, Jolson Challenges Gallery to Battle

Hollywood, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Al Jolson, "mammy singer" of the stage and screen, challenged a whole balcony full of prizefight fans to "come down and fight" at the Olympic Auditorium last night. There were no takers.

The challenge came as the result of a whisky bottle being tossed out of the upper shelf during the main event of a boxing card. The bottle presumably was aimed either at one of the contestants or at former heavyweight champion Max Baer, the referee, but Jolson immediately stood up and roared in a clear, musical voice:

"Coward! Coward! Come down and fight like a man!"

Nobody came.

Jolson was sitting with his wife, Ruby Keeler, and Mr. and Mrs. Chico Marx when the bottle smashed against a ring post. Splinters of glass showered on ringsiders, including Lupe Velez and Frank Fay.

Girl, 9, Describes Assault, Stabbing

Chicago, Aug. 11. (AP).—A girl of 9, Lorraine Hundreiser, related from the witness stand yesterday how she had been ravished, stabbed and left to die in a basement boiler room last July 8 by John Ardelean, 17.

Ardelean, also indicted for assault to kill, was on trial on a charge of rape. Conviction would carry a sentence of one year to life.

Lorraine testified the youth lured her into the boiler room, struck her on the head, ravished her and then stabbed her with pruning shears and an ice pick. The prosecutor said she had been stabbed more than 30 times.

The child's mother and father were in the courtroom. A few weeks ago the father had stolen into the police station where Ardelean was confined and had fired five ineffectual shots into the man's cell.

Sinking Valley Swallows Up Fields Before Farmers' Eyes

Large Plot in Idaho Drops 150 Feet in Two Weeks; Geologists Say Subterranean Cavern Absorbing Surface Earth.

By the Associated Press.

Buhl, Idaho, Aug. 11.—Awed farmers watched their rich fields literally drop from under them today in southern Idaho's new "sinking valley."

Muffled rumblings and billowing dust clouds marked the mile-square area where normally flat fields and huge slabs of lava rock are sinking like a huge fallen cake to form a new canyon 8 miles north of here.

Geologists said the phenomenon probably was caused by the earth's surface dropping into a subterranean cavern.

Five acres of valuable crop land on the farm of H. A. Robertson dropped 125 to 150 feet in two weeks. Twelve others are cracking up and Robertson expressed fear his 180-acre farm would be converted into useless canyon-bottom land.

Farmers who said they could "actually see the land sinking" dropped a 200-foot weighted rope into one of the giant fissures breaking across the area and said it failed to reach bottom.

Because of the "acute danger" curious spectators were barred from the region. Special deputies prepared to police the zone.

Horton B. Abell, Idaho geologist heading an investigatoin of the "sinking valley," said he believed the disturbance resulted from the alleviation of pressure in a cavern far below the earth's surface.

As the land drops away a new canyon is being formed, separated by a 30-foot granite wall from a deep gorge that carries waters of the south fork of the Salmon River.

Dr. Mann Sails With Animals For DistrictZoo

Promises Wild Life Fans Rare Treat With Specimens From Orient.

Bringing 'em back alive, Dr. William M. Mann, director of the National Zoological Park, sailed Monday from Medan, Sumatra, with a boatload of strange and unusual creatures of the Orient sufficient to make a complete zoo in itself the National Geographic Society announced yesterday.

The large collection of wild creatures, many of which never before have been in zoos of the United States, will be placed on exhibition in the Washington Zoo. All of the new animals were obtained in Sumatra and other islands of the East Indies, and from nearby regions of the Asiatic mainland.

The National Georgraphic Society, which sponsored the expedition jointly with the Smithsonian Institution, said that Dr. Mann and his wild cargo would arrive in Baltimore about the end of September.

Some of the animals not accustomed to civilized ways had to be carried on a special train and at night, too, so as to minimize the discomfort of the ride and to frighten the animals as little as possible.

In a brief cable announcing the expedition's departure for home, Dr. Mann did not say just what type of animals he was bringing back.

House Passes New Court Bill In Dull Style

Drama Lacking as Measure Is Voted and Sent to President.

A few unavailing and scattered shouts of "no" sounded weakly in the House yesterday afternoon, and the curtain fell on the last act of the long-drawn-out court bill drama for this session.

The measure, stripped of its Presidential authorization to appoint another justice for each Supreme Court member of more than 70 years of age, now goes to the White House for signature of the President.

Debate was brief and perfunctory. Representative Hatton W. Sumners (Democrat), Texas, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, engineered the agreement yesterday with full and hearty approval of the House.

Four points are covered in the bill:

Direct appeals from lower courts to the Supreme Court in cases involving constitutionality of acts of Congress; intervention by the Attorney General in lower court cases cases involving constitutionality of Congressional acts; three-judge lower courts to sit in suits for injunctions to block enforcement of Congressional acts; transfer of judges within judicial circuits to move against congested calendars.

Union Solicits Unchallenged At Ford Gates

U. A. W. Literature Passed Out Peacefully as Police Stand By.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 11.—Pushing its campaign to organize the Ford Motor Co.'s 150,000 employes, the United Automobile Workers of America distributed union literature at the gates of the vast Rouge plant today without disorder.

A score of union leaders were beaten when the first distribution at the Ford gates was attempted on May 26.

At the change of shifts between 3 and 3:30 p. m. today, 40,000 persons jammed Miller road, paralleling the east side of the huge factory.

Officials Look on.

On the sidelines as observers were representatives of the State police, the Wayne County sheriff's department, the National Labor Relations Board, Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea and civilians.

More than 1,000 volunteer distributors operated under emphatic instructions "not to lose your temper," to remain on public property at all times, and not to force upon any reluctant Ford employe a copy of the newspaper which was being passed out.

The distribution ended when the last of the late-day shift had entered the plant. Many of the Ford workers displayed a marked reluctance to accept the newspapers.

Rail Conference Opens.

Chicago, Aug. 11 (AP).—Representatives of the five operating railroad brotherhoods carried demands for a 20 per cent wage increase to a conference with spokesmen for the Nation's carriers today. The 350 union delegates, empowered to call approximately 300,000 members out on strike if they fail to reach a satisfactory settlement, met 15 negotiators for the rail lines management in a closed session.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 11 (AP).—Signed agreements between the C. I. O. and employers brought a back-to-work movement in parts of Pennsylvania's silk and rayon industry today while the union's demand for higher wages prevented a quick strike settlement with many mills in the local Passaic Valley.

Canton, Ohio, Aug. 11 (AP).—Foremen at Republic Steel Corporation's Massillon plant considered it "part of their job to break up the C. I. O. in the mill," Joseph Morton, president of the C. I. O. lodge there, testified at a national labor relations board hearing here today.

Elkins, W. Va., Aug. 11 (AP).—Hammers and saws will break the silence over the Tygart Valley homesteads tomorrow, bringing normality again to the resettlement community which was stilled by a strike two weeks ago. W. H. Eubank, resident engineer, said Washington ordered work resumed after both sides to an inner-community dispute had "buried the hatchet."

3 Women, Man Held In 'Numbers' Raid

Three women and a man, all colored, were seized yesterday in a raid on an alleged "numbers" establishment in the 1700 block Corcoran street northwest.

Led by Sergt. George Deyoe, police confiscated "numbers" slips, 235 new books, two adding machines and a "black" book which showed a daily play of more than $600.

Officer Called to Find Sister Killed Husband

Chicago, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Policeman Julius Gebhardt and another officer answered an emergency call yesterday and found George Werelein, 47, a carpenter, dead of five bullet wounds in the dining room of his apartment.

"Mommy shot daddy when he choked her," said 9-year-old Shirley Werelein when the hysterical mother could not explain the tragedy. An argument over financial matters started the quarrel.

The wife was Officer Gebhardt's sister.

Indicted for Slaying.

New York, Aug. 11 (AP).—A first degree murder indictment was returned today against Arthur H. Chalmers, 34-year-old mounted policeman, for the shooting of Irma Louise Pradier, French domestic.

Death Fall

Scene where Antoine C. Givaudan, 48, plunged to his death yesterday. He stood on ledge (b) and would not heed pleas of his stepson, Paul, who stood by his bedroom window (a) and begged his stepfather not to jump.

Father Spurns Stepson's Plea, Leaps to Death

Spurning the pleas of his 14-year-old stepson "not to jump," Antoine C. Givaudan, 48, of 1232 Monticello avenue northeast, yesterday plunged 20 feet to his death from a kitchen roof of his home.

His wife, Margaret, 41, gave birth to a fourth child Friday. She still is in Gallinger Hospial and has not been notified of her husband's death.

When the son, Paul, awoke this morning, he saw his stepfather standing on the roof of the kitchen immediately below his window. He talked with the man for about 15 minutes.

Finally deciding to summon aid, Paul went downstairs and out to a neighbor's house to call police. When he returned, his stepfather still was on the roof.

Policemen W. R. Smith and H. M. Hildrut arrived in the boy's bedroom just in time to see the man leap. A Casualty ambulance was called, but the man died before it arrived.

The other children, Charlotte, 11, and Dorothy, 10, were asleep, in another bedroom. They were not awakened. The children are being cared for by relatives.

3 Questioned In D. C. Death Face New Case

While police continued their investigation into the death of Anthanasius P. Econom, the District grand jury yesterday indicted four 17-year-old youths who were named in robbery presentments handed to Justice James M. Proctor late yesterday.

The four, Cecil R. Kennedy, George Waterholter, Chester A. Geesling, and James W. Frady, were accused of strong-arm persons from whom they took small amounts of valuables. Kennedy, Geesling and Frady were said by police to have been involved in the case of Econom, a WPA writer who was robbed of a small amount of money south of the White House last July.

Kennedy, Geesling and Waterholder were named in an indictment alleging they robbed Maurice E. Moore, of Chicago, and Frady, Waterholter and Kennedy were named as the trio that robbed Andy Evans, 921 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, a few days later.

Charged with robbing two of the Tom McAnn shoe stores, Charles Walter Luttrell and Joseph Thomas were named in two indictments. They are said to have trussed up the managers of the two stores after robbing them of small sums of money.

The grand jury returned 91 indictments in which more than 100 men and women were named.

Also, Matthew Novack, Hugh Wilson, David Gunner, Charles Morris, Charles H. Franklin, Eugene Freeman, Ernest Williams, George Willis, Charles Atkins (3 charges), Claude Weaver, Homer Bryan, Edgar L. Barber, Edward E. Davis, Charles Stewart, grand larceny; Robert J. Anderson, Jimmie Knight, Joseph E. Bright, and Charles Stewart, joyriding; Cecil R. Kennedy, James W. Frady, George Waterholter, Chester A. Gessling, William Simms, Walter Bell, Charles Walter Luttrell, Joseph Thomas, Wilber H. Grimmett, and Eugene Fox, robbery.

Also, James Taylor, Edward Bolling, Rufus Bolling, John Hiter, William F. Coachman, Thomas Reed, and Ambrose F. Young, assault with a dangerous weapon; Willie Davidson, bigamy; Harry R. Moir, George Mass, Arthur J. Allen, false pretenses; Charles A. Nolan, embezzlement; Raymond E. Zell and Helen K. Pifer, forgery and uttering; James Simms, violation of section 30, Title 6, D. C. Code; Hezekiah Bryant, violation of section 1162, Title 26, U. S. Code; William V. Curry, violation of section 215, U. S. Penal Code; James M. McGill, assault with intent to commit rape; Edward Mopp, rape; James R. Griffin, Jr., Charles Wilson and James H. Brisbon, manslaughter.

And James Booth, Deloris Garcia and John Henry Joseph, second degree murder; Edward Giffans, Albert Coleman, Joseph L. Pollard, Claude C. Branch, and Nathaniel Berry, first degree murder.

Mutilated Body Found in La. Vault

Raceland, La., Aug. 11 (U.P.).—The dismembered body of a man with head and legs crudely hacked away, was found tonight in a new cemetery vault on the shores of Bayou Laforche.

French fisher folk of this village could provide no clew to identity of the victim or to solve the mystery.

The Gentleman From Fairfax.

An outcome of the recent Virginia primaries of more than local interest was the selection, by a substantial majority, of Francis Pickens Miller as the Democratic nominee from Fairfax County for the House of Delegates. Since this nomination is customarily equivalent to election, the indications are that Mr. Miller will represent his county at Richmond. If so, he will bring there a wealth of experience and an intellectual equipment very different from that of the conventional local politician.

As a graduate of Washington and Lee, as an artillery officer in France during the war, and as a Rhodes Scholar afterward, Mr. Miller's training in formative years was much broader than that of the run of those who seek the road to political preferment through State legislatures. And his activities have continued to broaden with the passage of time.

Mr. Miller has held important administrative positions with the Y. M. C. A., has been a lecturer at Yale University, and of late has come to the fore as one of the founders, and as the present executive secretary, of the National Policy Committee. This stimulating group, counting such men as Richard Cleveland, Raymond Buell, Herbert Agar and George Fort Milton among its members, has as its fundamental purpose "the formation of affiliated groups of responsible citizens whose common desire and purpose are to work toward the development of governmental policies by democratic means, on the basis of the general interest rather than of any special interests."

There is something of the political tradition of old Virginia in Mr. Miller's decision to go into politics from Fairfax County, where he has lived for several years. And it would be to the national advantage if more men of his type, well informed without being bluestocking, politically minded without being politicians, were willing to seek the suffrage of the voters for those local offices which so largely determine the character of our whole political system.

Tax Evasion.

The hearings on tax evasion have revealed some very grave abuses.

Legal methods of extraordinary ingenuity have been exposed and the need for remedial action is conclusively demonstrated. The House Ways and Means Committee has been taking testimony preparatory to drafting a bill designed to close some of these loopholes in the income tax law. To guide its labors, the recommendations of the Joint Committee on Tax Evasion and Avoidance are available. But even with this help the Ways and Means Committee may well hesitate to press for reform legislation during the closing days of the current session.

Representative Woodruff pertinently asked Undersecretary of the Treasury Magill why the Treasury had not suggested earlier that tax loopholes be closed. And having delayed, he wanted to know why immediate action is necessary if it will close "only some" of the avenues of escape. In reply Mr. Magill explained that it is desirable to close four or five windows against a storm even though one or two may let in the rain before they can be reached.

If our tax system were a well-constructed house, the analogy would be apt. But Mr. Magill ignores the fact that the Treasury is trying to protect a rather crazy edifice against leakages. The recommendations for plugging loopholes are directed at abuses that in many cases arise from defects in the system. They are efforts to treat symptoms rather than attempts to eradicate the evils of tax dodging at their source.

By November, Mr. Magill says, the Treasury will be ready with recommendations for a general revision of the tax structure. Possibly that means proposals for modification of the inequitable capital gains tax, for revision or abolition of the tax on undivided corporate profits, and for a more rational distribution of the income tax burden. The logical order of procedure certainly would be to make the first consideration a reform of those inequalities and injustices which put a premium upon tax evasion.

Secretary Morgenthau, in testifying before the Joint Committee, admitted that the task of keeping up with the tax dodgers is a rather desperate game which finds the Treasury sadly handicapped. Its small band of field agents is confronted by a veritable army of attorneys and accountants, paid high fees to invent new devices for reducing their clients' taxes.

And, as Mr. Morgenthau points out, the "attitudes" which create this continuous task of inventing new tax-avoidance devices cannot be legislated away. The publicity given to some of the most flagrant methods of tax dodging ought, however, to have a salutary restraining effect, for the time being, by discouraging resort to what the Secretary of the Treasury calls the "more fantastic methods" of tax avoidance.

That being the case, the argument in favor of postponing consideration of a tax-evasion measure until next year seems stronger. Perpetual tinkering with the tax laws, especially when the result is to complicate an already complex system, means more lucrative employment for the expert tax advisers. The way to end tax evasion is to simplify our tax laws and in so doing make them easier to administer and harder to evade.

Governmental Reorganization.

The second of four bills dealing with governmental reorganization has now been reported upon favorably by a special House committee. It would re-enact the economy act of 1932, giving the President blanket powers to consolidate, reorganize and abolish executive agencies.

However, it imposes limitations upon executive authority not found in the earlier act, by exempting most of the important independent commissions from the reorganization program. The bill also creates a new Department of Welfare, charged with the promotion of public health, education and welfare activities of the Government. Presumably the Social Security Board and a number of other agencies rather out of place in the existing set-up would be transferred to this new department.

Limited to strictly administrative reorganization and shorn of controversial recommendations affecting the status of major regulatory agencies, the House bill provides a reasonable approach to a much-needed reform. It is generally admitted that if economy and efficiency are objectives the executive, in business or government, must have extensive discretionary powers to effect changes. As the committee report on the proposed bill states, "The constitutional functions of the Congress are exercised in the determination of the policies and limitations of such reorganization, and the consideration of executive orders before they become effective. The detailed provisions are properly left to the Executive."

By exercising the authority that would be conferred upon him under the House bill, the President could not only raise the efficiency of the executive establishments but also reduce their cost by eliminating waste motion and cutting out superfluous agencies. The development should make it much easier to abolish emergency relief organizations, such as the WPA. In fact, all sorts of temporary agencies and activities which a politically minded Congress hesitates to legislate out of existence could be dealt with effectively, if the President were empowered to abolish or reduce their functions.

The Committee on Reorganization recommended the creation of a Department of Public Works and a permanent national resources board to serve as a central planning agency. Neither suggestion is incorporated in the House bill and it would be interesting to know the reasons for the omission. There appear to be strong arguments in favor of a separate department for the planning and execution of large-scale public works. And it is certainly desirable to continue the useful work that the National Resources Committee has been doing, in co-operation with State and local planning agencies, to assure proper utilization and conservation of our national resources.

Any thoroughgoing reorganization plan requires slow and careful application. And it is even now doubtful whether such a plan could be carried out during the limited lifetime of the present Administration. The House members supporting the reorganization bill are urging prompt action, therefore, because they believe that delay will jeopardize the chances for real accomplishment.

Queer Marks.

A century ago a London publisher received a manuscript bearing the title "Stenographic Soundhand," which he marketed for the nominal sum of fourpence a copy.

The text was unreadable to all but a limited few. And the author insisted upon giving away copies to people who appeared to be interested in everything about the book but buying it. Today, though it is still impossible for many to make sense out of its contents, the original book is a treasure sought by bibliophiles. The young author's name was Isaac Pitman.

Isaac Pitman, like Samuel Goldwyn, had his own ideas about words. Mr. Goldwyn quit the glove business and rolled up a reputation by putting words to more original, if not better, usage. Mr. Pitman, likewise, deserted his job in a cloth factory and what he accomplished with words is soon to be celebrated the world over by business schools and stenographers—the Isaac Pitman shorthand system.

Young Pitman was a boy after Horatio Alger's own heart. He was an ardent teetotaler, detested smoking, persevered in his studies, worked 15 hours a day for many years, and at 24 had published a book which represented sounds by signs almost as accurately as figures are portrayed by numbers. Out of his concentration came the shun-hook, the ster-loop, and the ing-dot. It was Greek to the layman, but a boon to business.

In 1887 a monument was unveiled to Sir Isaac Pitman, as he became, to honor the fiftieth year of the "Life of Phonography." But the memorial was scarcely needed. His efforts shine anew in the activities of every little stenographer who uses his system to write down:

Queer marks that represent each word
That she, mechanically, has heard.

Rented Warships.

The proposal to lease obsolete destroyers to Latin-American countries raises some fundamental questions of foreign policy. Evidently the Department of State is sincerely trying to be helpful to the Brazilian government. But in doing so, it has become involved in a tangle of implications not entirely compatible either with the good neighbor policy, or with the traditional American attitude toward arrangements which smack of military alliance.

Argentina is plainly annoyed by the project. Possibly the Argentine government places too much importance upon the seeming favoritism to Brazil. Under the agreement the six destroyers designated for that country would be used only for training purposes. The Department of State emphasizes, also, the general nature of the offer. Yet the fact remains that the policy was adopted for the specific benefit of a single Latin-American power. "I would urge again," said Secretary Hull at Buenos Aires last December, "the wisdom of avoiding discrimination in our commercial policy." Why not in our diplomacy, too?

If the proposal is to be considered on its general merits, various other questions arise. The United States has 158 over-age destroyers which are kept in condition as a reserve force. The Navy would use them in case of emergency. Brazil wants only six. Presumably the others would be available to Latin-American countries for a general strengthening of their naval forces, and their incipient naval rivalries.

The Department of State likes to claim credit for this country as a leader in the movement for world disarmament. It will be harder to do so effectively if we are now to pursue a policy of encouraging naval expansion among countries that heretofore have wasted very little of their substance in building up fighting squadrons.

That unpleasant aspect of the destroyer-leasing policy is not eliminated by the fact that these ships would be used primarily for training purposes. Training for combat is a vital part of any armament program. Moreover, it is difficult to see how the United States could retrieve the leased destroyers in case the lessee went to war. No country will give up any advantage it may have when hostilities once break out. In event of such a war, the United States would have to choose between retaking its vessels by force and showing favoritism between the belligerents.

It is suggested that Brazil needs additional naval strength to protect her coast from foreign aggression and as a safeguard against possible revolution. But if Brazil is really in danger of attack, the agreement reached at Buenos Aires last December should call for consultation among the American republics and possibly joint action. In no circumstances would it be the responsibility of the United States, acting alone, to fortify Brazil against either internal or external strife. To do so is to go a long way toward forming an alliance with the present Brazilian government.

Secretary Hull insists that the proposal would not violate the London naval treaty of 1936, forbidding signatories to sell or transfer war vessels to any foreign navy. Each lease would contain a "recapture clause" permitting the United States to recall the ships at any time. Whether or not that would satisfy the literal requirements of the treaty, its effect upon its spirit would clearly be destructive. For the treaty stipulates that signatories shall not "by gift, sale or any mode of transfer" dispose of warships for service "in any foreign navy."

Words Of Warning.

Chairman Kennedy of the Maritime Commission has repeatedly expressed a desire to bring about an overdue improvement in the wages and living standards of American seamen. His known sympathies with the aspirations of maritime labor make his warning against factional disputes especially impressive. Obviously referring to unsettled labor conditions he states that "no one is going to invest in an industry which is subject to such costly and prolonged interruptions as those which have characterized shipping during recent years."

Mr. Kennedy postulates two conditions as essential for the upbuilding of a privately owned and operated merchant marine: first a stable, predictable government policy and secondly, a peaceful labor policy. There is plenty of capital and shipping revenues "are picking up" he says. But investors want reasonable assurance of stable operation before they put their savings in any industry.

Insofar as an individual can, the chairman of the Maritime Commission has strengthened confidence in the Government's policies by the frank methods adopted in dealing with the shipping interests. Perhaps he will also succeed in convincing the maritime unions that it is to their own interest to cease the futile quarreling that has scared capital away and brought the shipping industry to its present low estate.

Should the appeal to reason fail, however, there is a distinct hint of more direct and forceful action contained in the assertion that the Government "cannot permit factionalism and disloyalty to jeopardize our position in international shipping."

"Officials in the nomenclature section of the Department of Agriculture can't decide whether to call a tomato a fruit or a vegetable," a stray item informs us. They're welcome to use our system. We've been calling it a tomato for years and haven't run into any complications yet.

The Palestine Problem.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Because of my esteem for many Jewish friends in Washington and elsewhere, I ask space to reply to the communicaiton of Rabbi Loeb in The Post's issue of August 8.

Since 1910, I have made tours to Palestine at least every two years. I saw the country under Turkish rule, when Jerusalem, like old Constantinople, was a cesspool of filth. I saw Zionism build its first colonies, and remained with Col. Kish, the Zionist leader then in Jerusalem, seeking his viewpoint on the subject. I visited the Jewish colonies under his advice and guidance. I later had long conferences with the Jerusalem Arab leaders—Christian and Moslems—and got their reactions on the incoming Zionist Jews.

I went to the Holy Land in company with Hon. Oscar Straus in 1924, than whom I have never known a finer man. His views on Zionism coincide with mine exactly. I visited Geneva to get the views of the officials there, particularly on the Palestine mandate. If Rabbi Loeb has taken this much pains to get the truths concerning the Palestinian situation, I give him my hand in congratulation. Certainly when the editor of The Post goes to Germany to get the rock-bottom facts about that country, he is not to be called names and spoken of as giving "tirades" and "harangues" because his reports are not just what the public prints have given the American people.

The Palestinian question has been distorted by propaganda. The truth is now beginning to come out. The Zionist congress has practically agreed (in principle) to the British idea of partitioning the country. The Jews purchased the only already cultivated land in the country, which is the Esdraelon Valley and the coastal plain from Haifa to Gaza. In 1910 both these sections of the country were in a high state of cultivation, but by obsolete methods. Little or nothing has been done for the bulk of Palestine's territory which is mountainous.

The British made fine roads, patrolled the country to make tourists safe, and above all, just as they had done in Egypt, cleaned up the land and made it sanitary. The Zionists settled in their various colonies, built Tel-Aviv as a purely Jewish city on the Sharon plain and established schools for their own people. This was all creditable, and the proposition to give the Jews all of the land they have settled upon, which is the very best, is quite fair to them. There will be loss of money spent.

Rabbi Loeb and I cannot agree, probably, on interpreting the Bible. But for his sake and for the sake of others interested, I may say: The world has outgrown any religion of merely racial groups. As a Christian, believing in Rabbi Loeb's Bible, I cannot see that the mere physical possession of Palestine fulfills the words of the prophets, when it is said that the seed of Abraham should be as countless as the sands of the seashore. Little Palestine, with 150 miles of length and 35 miles in breadth, could not accommodate even the Jews of New York. Why not take the larger view and say that every man who has the faith of Abraham (which I have) is a true "son of Abraham?" Oscar Straus said to me: "I'm as good Christian as you are;" and I replied to that sort of spirit, "I'm as good a Jew as you are." J. O. KNOTT.
Washington, August 9.

On Palestine.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The tirade of Rabbi Loeb in The Post of August 8 must have amused Mr. Knott. The rabbi says, "It was the Jews who conquered Palestine anew." I have talked with New Zealand and Australian soldiers who painfully remembered having had something to do with that event. Then, too, most of us had supposed that Viscount Allenby happened in at an opportune time.

The rabbi bravely talks of citing "the facts in the case" by claiming that Palestine "was pledged to the Jews through the issuance of the Balfour Declaration." But he very carefully omitted the most important clause of Balfour's declaration, namely, "It being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine."

Rabbi Loeb to the contrary notwithstanding, the British never promised to drive out the majority of the Palestinian population to make an exclusive home for the Zionists. E. V. WILCOX.

The Horst Baby.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems we need a law to protect innocent babies from the cruelty of the law.

Why should the little Horst baby be imprisoned in an orphanage away from the tender care of the foster mother that raised him? No doubt this incarceration of the child in an orphanage will make a nervous wreck of it for life. Why should the foster mother be denied seeing the child to try and comfort it? If the woman who bore the child wanted him back could she not go to law? No, it seems her preference to do the illegal thing.

Let the little one be restored to the foster parents for the child's sake, for at least during the time of litigation. There should be an end of making babies the scapegoat of selfish parents. M. M. S.

Lives Vs. Economy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Daily the cry is being raised in all the local papers for some way to reduce the traffic toll, but it seems to get no further. The reader glances over the headlines to see if the latest victim was a friend or relative of his, then promptly forgets till the next edition with its 24-point headlines of "Victims 64-65-66." The newspapers might at least print a few photos of a mangled victim occasionally to illustrate the "And Sudden Death——"

From local observation the police seem to be asleep on the job—or else the Commissioners above them. There aren't enough officers to patrol the District of Columbia as it should be. Is it any wonder there are collisions by the dozen every day and night, and hold-ups by the score?

Drivers and thugs need not the "fear of God," but the "fear of the law," drilled into them by the sight of a hundred or so more metropolitan cruisers continually patrolling all parts of the city. I slow down when I see one. Virginians slow down on their highways when a white coupe bobs up on the horizon. With more officers on the streets of Washington I'm sure there will be a material decrease of these needless accidents and petty crimes.

Every ordinance in the traffic book is violated daily because motorists, private, taxi and truck drivers know they can get away with it. Scores drive without lights, on the avenues, especially; one-way streets are cluttered with parked trucks (Q and R for instance); and more local than out-of-town drivers go the wrong way on all the one-way streets; delivery trucks and motorcycles dart in and out in heavy traffic at high speed. Nine out of ten drivers get going before the red light changes to green, and the pedestrian has about as much chance as the proverbial snowball.

The remedy, as I see it, is: More policemen, more cruisers and more enforcement! Or does economy mean more to the District of Columbia than the lives of its citizens? Would that I had the authority to take down the number of every violator I see and turn it in to the Police Department for apprehension of the driver!

A PEDESTRIAN-MOTORIST.
Washington, Aug. 10.

Noise And Smoke.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is high time that Washington citizens protested the intolerable noise, smoke and fumes emitted by her motor vehicles. It is absolutely imperative that Washington's motor vehicle population, dense as it is, be more adequately regulated in the interest of the health of citizens.

Excessive noise is contributed chiefly by horns. Blaring, blasting, ear-splitting trumpet horns should be banned and only those which make sufficient noise to serve their purpose should be permitted.

It seems that motorcycles go unregulated in the District of Columbia. Most of them travel at excessive speed and with open mufflers. The authorities should certainly crack down on that irresponsible type of ruffian who roars down a street in a residential section with wide open cut-out. It is well nigh impossible to get the license numbers of these offenders.

Another source of excess noise on D. C. streets are trucks, particularly old ones. I have seen some of the oldest, ramshackle trucks in Washington that exist anywhere. Some of them are positively unsafe to operate and are a menace to others; also, many of them seem to have no mufflers and make a hideous din.

The bus companies are two-fold offenders. I have noticed the excessive noise made by many of the buses, especially in low and second gear. However, this item is overshadowed by the large quantities of choking fumes emitted by buses. One is almost gassed by fumes from buses if he walks down a street where they travel during rush hours. Also, how many of us have traveled down a street in our cars and found ourselves behind a bus giving off fumes in great quantities which fill the interior of our cars? Something should be done immediately to compel the transit companies to control these poisonous fumes.

Motorists who drive cars which emit excessive quantities of smoke should be warned and then given citations if they do not correct this practice. Taxicabs are particularly guilty in this respect and the vast number on our streets makes particularly necessary the elimination of this evil. Even police cars have been observed as excessive "smokers."

Other cities are taking steps to regulate their motor vehicle traffic in these important respects in the interest of the health of its citizens. I urge others to write to the newspapers and the authorities demanding elimination of these evils.
NORMAN MATHIAS.

Votes In The Capital.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A recent senatorial investigation revealed the fact that of practically all civilized countries, only three deny the residents of their capital city participation and representation in municipal affairs. The survey included countries having their capital on federal territory, as well as nonfederal. These three are the United States, and those two notoriously Fascist bulwarks, Germany and Italy. (Senate Document No. 12, Seventy-fifth Congress, first session.)

Contrary to common belief, the Constitution contains nothing denying District of Columbia residents such rights; in fact, it was assumed by the founders of our Constitution that the residents would manage their municipal affairs, with the ultimate power in the hands of Congress. James Madison, who was the recorder of the constitutional convention and the various constitutional debates, wrote that "a municipal legislature for local purposes, derived from their own suffrages, will, of course, be allowed them" in direct reference to the District of Columbia (Federalist No. XLIII).

It is directly because the District has been forced to rely upon the occasional and passing interest of Congressmen, who have no incentive whatever to fight for our rights except as motivated by philanthropic spirit, that our problems of relief, hospitalization, crime, and so on, have been aggravated.

Apple Orchards.

IN THE country I know it seems to be that people are not setting out new apple orchards any more. It has been a long time since I have seen a young orchard, except in real fruit-growing sections like the Ontario and Shenandoah regions. But I mean on the average farm.

It used to be that every farm had an apple orchard. Apples were a crop to be reckoned with. I have heard my mother tell how my grandfather used to pack hundreds of barrels of them for shipment every fall, and that was in a primarily dairy country, not a fruit region.

I remember the big orchard on the farm where I was born in western New York. A year or two ago I drove past it and regretfully noticed that not half a dozen trees were left.

There was one kind of apple in that orchard I have never seen anywhere else. We called it snow apple. It was small, white as snow inside and red outside, tart and luscious, and you ate it right down to the last seed, skin and all. There must have been ten bushels on that one tree. Then there was another kind we called oil apple, which had a yellowish, greasy skin and a flavor that was indescribably good. But how can one describe a flavor, anyhow?

Down the road a couple of miles was another orchard that my grandfather had owned. There were ten acres of it, and it had chiefly Baldwins, Greenings, Northern Spies and Russets and a few Ben Davis. Even after we moved to town we would make an annual expedition to the "Crandall lot" to gather the apples. Someone would climb the tree and give it a few vigorous shakes, and then we kids would pick them up into gunnysacks, and they would be hauled away to the press to be sold for 25 or 30 cents a hundred pounds and made into cider.

This would go on for a week or so, until we were stiff and lame from bending over and crawling along on our knees. On frosty autumn mornings we could hardly work fast enough to keep warm. By fall, too, the weeds had grown pretty tall, since the orchard was not cultivated, and so it was not always easy going. There were a few trees of Pound Sweets, a huge variety of late sweet apple; we always picked these, and mixed with a few bushels of Baldwins or other sour apples had them made up into a big crockful of apple jell, which would last us all winter. It too had a flavor, and we thought it a hardship if we had to eat a slice of bread without a spread of it.

I doubt if there is a single tree of that orchard left now. When we moved to town, with only a four-acre place, even there we had an orchard. Probably not more than 50 trees were in it, but they were healthy, young, and bearing. Some of the biggest Baldwins I ever saw grew in this orchard, and there were also one Spitzenberg tree, a King or two, and a few other odd varieties. Usually we picked them all, put them down cellar, and during winter peddled them out in a nearby city at a fairly good price, about $1 a bushel. That was before so many western apples were shipped in.

There were two kinds, I remember, that we didn't have. One was the Red Astrachan, which got ripe in August and was good for early apple pies but, as I recall, was rather colicky, for being so early it was apt to be eaten in intemperate quantities before our stomachs were enured to the pomaceous diet that would last from then until spring. Our neighbors usually had Red Astrachans.

Nor did we have any Gillyflowers. They were a purplish-red, somewhat conical-shaped apple, and my mother would do almost anything to get a peck or so of them, she liked them so much. Just mention to her that someone had a tree of them, and see what happened. I should like to know whether Gillyflowers are grown any more, for I haven't seen one in 20 years.

Spitzenbergs and Kings, too, I can tell you, were something to eat. I used to buy western Spitzenbergs on the apple stands in Washington, but the past two or three winters I have not been able to find a single one. You can't buy a Baldwin in Washington either, though when I was in Pittsburgh last fall I saw the markets full of them.

• • • •

One of the first things I did when I bought a lot in Arlington County, Va., was to plant a King apple tree. It is now seven years old, and if the wooly aphids don't kill it I hope to live long enough to see it bear. But Virginia, I surmise, is no place for a New York winter apple.

It saddens me to think that none of the old orchards I knew are being replanted, and I wonder what it is that has taken the place of the orchard in the lives of the people. Louise Darcy has written:

I pity those who have not known
An apple orchard of their own.
And so do I. But I think what this country needs is another Johnny Appleseed.

Fascist Vs. Communist.

THE EASIEST WAY to annoy a Communist or a Fascist is to say that one is as bad as the other and that they have so many identical vices as to be generally alike. That makes them wild.

Yet both deny freedom of speech and of the press for the same reason—which is to prevent their subjects from learning about or even giving consideration to any other system. Both find it necessary to govern by terror and espionage. Both are highly militaristic and both believe that honor is served by an act, however vile, which can be construed as an act in the service of the cause. So all agreements by either of them must be regarded as containing a mental reservation. It is impossible to trust either on oath.

The Communists loathe the slave press of Italy and Germany and have little more affection for ours, but if it is crazy to imagine an article in an Italian or German paper admiring democracy or Communism it is just as crazy to imagine an article in a Moscow paper even hinting that Fascism or the American system might have some merit. An Italian or German who attempted to deliver a public speech in praise of Communism would be executed or exiled, and the same would be likely to happen if a waiter in a restaurant should overhear a private conversation to that effect. The same risks exist for the Russian under Communism, so the ordinary citizen is no better off in one country than in either of the others.

PRIVATE INDUSTRY was protected in Italy and Germany in the beginning, but after a while it began to lose its rights as the government was forced to assume control, and nowadays the state has final authority in everything relating to business. Meanwhile in Russia, according to the Trotsky Communists, a great betrayal has taken place and the present regime represents nothing but a dirty capitalistic travesty defiling the fair name of Communism.

The really hot Communists turn out copy in which Josef Stalin appears to be no better than a Tom Girdler or a J. P. Morgan, while the ordinary Moscow Communists violently insist that the Trotsky Communists are no better than Adolf Hitler and are, in fact, plotting with him to overthrow the perfect state and deliver the spoils to the capitalistic oppressors, although Hitler doesn't let the capitalists get away with any oppression now.

Mussolini will not permit a man to quit a job to loaf or look for another, because that would be sabotage, but the same is true in Russia, and, of course, strikes are absolutely out under both systems on the ground of the national welfare. In neither country does the workman have the right to strip the gears, pour ink or acid over cloth in work or mucilage and sand into the machines and then walk out to enforce a demand for more pay or shorter hours. Communists here admire these methods and delight to promote riots, knowing, however, that anyone who did that in their fair Communistic land would be stood up against a wall and . . . BR-R-MP* Take him away, men!

The Italian or German taxes and compulsory contributions would drive an American middle-classer crazy, and Americans are so indignant at officious government intrusion in private affairs that a lot of our people would punch some bum in uniform right on the nose—and then get executed, under Fascism.

• • • •

IT WAS THE SAME in Italy and Germany in the early days, but the power of the dictators was so great and their tough guys were so murderous that the middle-class just surrendered. Now they aren't allowed even to think non-party thoughts, but have to pretend that they believe any idiotic idea that is prescribed for them, and there is no fun being middle-class under those conditions.

You don't have to take any outsider's word as to the Communists. Just listen to the Trotsky Communists working out on the Moscow Communists and Joe Stalin, and then listen to the Moscow Communists on the subject of the Trotsky type. Then add them up, divide by two and see if Fascism, Nazism and Communism don't give the same result.

18th Century Plays

By William Lyon Phelps

Three Survivals.

It is an interesting fact that during the whole eighteenth century in England, which can perhaps truthfully be called the Golden Age of acting, only three plays survive; they were all comedies, and they came within a period of six years. Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" appeared in 1773, Sheridan's "The Rivals" in 1775, and his "The School for Scandal" in 1777.

These three comedies survive because they have everything—brilliant situations, living characters and literary merit.

Dr. Johnson had had a quarrel with Sheridan's father and wished in vain for a reconciliation. But Sheridan, the son, paid the doctor a magnificent compliment in the prologue he wrote for a play by Savage, and Dr. Johnson proposed him for membership in the Literary Club, saying: "He who has written the two best comedies of his age is surely a considerable man."

It is a pity that nowhere in Boswell's "Life of Johnson" have we any record of Johnson's being present at these two plays by Sheridan or of his feelings when still warm with excitement. This omission seems to me remarkable.

But in Johnson's comment on "She Stoops to Conquer," he not only paid a charming compliment to his friend, he said exactly the thing that everyone who writes or produces a new play today wishes with all his heart might be truthfully said of his own efforts. This remark by Johnson should be considered in estimating the value of every new play. Johnson, shortly after seeing "She Stoops to Conquer," said, "I know of no comedy for many years that has so much exhilarated an audience, that has answered so much the great end of comedy—making an audience merry."

Exhilarating, making an audience merry—surely one play during the season of 1936-1937 accomplished this far above all others—I mean the comedy "You Can't Take It With You." Exhilaration is the word, and the audience was merry from the first curtain to the last.

It will probably run right through the coming season; it is running now. Do you wish to be merry for one whole evening? You can be.

Changes In Oil Well Depths

Unless you know something about oil field history, the changes in the average drilling depth by years may not seem impressive. The average depth of new wells drilled last year was 3,052 feet, the highest since [illegible] when the average was 3,100 feet.

This may not seem a spectacular increase from the 2,800-foot average level attained in 1926. But what has kept the average down is continuing discovery of shallow pools; for example, Yates Field in West Texas, where several of the world's biggest producers of crude have been struck at 1,400 feet or less.

Another factor is that many of the older, shallower fields, which seemed on the verge of exhaustion, are yielding to new technology; for example, Bradford in Pennsylvania, first tapped in the 1880s where they are using streams of water and compressed air to drive the last pools from remote pockets.

All this notwithstanding the industry as a whole has had to drill deeper and deeper for its crude. A decade or so ago a 5,000-foot well was regarded as about the maximum commercial depth for drilling or pumping. Now 10,000-foot tests are fairly commonplace.

Shanghai Correspondent Reports Chinese Nation Convinced Time Has Come For Showdown With Japan In Northern Provinces.

By Mark J. Ginsbourg.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Shanghai.

SIX YEARS after the amputation of Manchuria, aroused China is actively preparing today for a holy war on Japan. Hundreds of thousands of troops are being rushed north from all parts of the country. China's modern air force is being concentrated at points close to the prospective battlefields. The government is preparing to enforce the newly promulgated general conscription law, which aims at giving military training to 40,000,000 men. Strategic centers, from Chengchow in the north to Canton in the south, are feverishly strengthening their defenses.

Meanwhile vocal groups—students, teachers, Communists and national salvation associations—are intensifying their campaign to arouse anti-Japanese frenzy in the breasts of the apathetic masses. For once, they are fully supported in this task by government leaders and the press.

The general feeling, voiced in private conversations, in speeches at monster anti-Japanese rallies, and in the press, is, "The time has come to settle our accounts with Japan."

"This is the final crisis," declares a Nanking daily, "and we must no longer entertain vain hopes for peace. We must expect no diplomatic settlement.

"Japan's encroachment upon North China is like a cancer, gradually eating its way into the vital regions of China. The country, therefore, must summon all its fortitude for a major operation in order to uproot the disease once and for all."

North China Incident Called Prediction Of War.

ANOTHER DAILY, describing the latest North China incident as a forerunner of new Japanese aggression in this country, urges the Central government to demand payment of an indemnity by Tokyo and an official guarantee that similar incidents would not recur.

And in an article entitled "Peace or War?" the official Central Daily News warns Japan to withdraw her troops from North China "immediately and unconditionally" to avert a war, "Which China is striving to prevent." China, declares the journal, has definitely decided to accept no unreasonable Japanese demands and adds, "with peace-loving China ready to fight to the last man once all hopes for peace are crushed, it is entirely up to Japan whether there shall be peace or war in the Far East."

Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, who last December kidnaped Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, China's "strong man," in an avowed effort to force the government to adopt an anti-Japanese policy, asks permission to take the field against the aggressors, to "atone for my misdeeds."

In the south, the Kwangsi warlords, who camouflaged their revolt against Nanking a year ago with a cloak of anti-Nipponism, pledge their undying devotion to the Central government.

"Our country," declares their telegram to Nanking, "is in peril, which permits of no delay. We ask permission to send three divisions north. We are all ready to sacrifice our lives in a war with Japan."

In Shanghai, Nanking, Canton, Hankow and other major cities, mass meetings are daily passing resolutions calling on the government to hesitate no longer and to open hostilities on the "imperialist invader."

China's leading educators, including Dr. Hu Shih, the internationally famous philosopher, assembled at Kuling to confer with Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, abandoning their scholarly restraint, also vote in favor of war. The only fly in the academic ointment is their demand that the government should grant freedom of speech and press.

Nanking Views Prospects With Undoubted Pessimism.

NANKING undoubtedly views the prospects of war with Japan with acute distaste. Gen. Chiang Kai-shek is a realist, who knows well both the strength of the Japanese juggernaut and the unsteadiness of loyalties professed by petty warlords in South, West and North China.

But for once Nanking has no choice. Fanned by Communists and other active groups, the anti-Japanese movement has assumed proportions which preclude the possibility of effective suppression or indifference to its demands. The Sian coup of last Christmas was a grim warning which Gen. Chiang cannot ignore.

Had Tokyo been more conciliatory, Chiang could have probably arranged a compromise. Japan's adamant stand, however, adds fuel to the anti-Japanese feeling in China, forcing Chiang Kai-shek to resist Japan.

Nanking's discomfort is enhanced by the fact that he is held responsible for events in Hopei and Chahar provinces, over both of which it has little control. With the last vestiges of its authority in North China destroyed following the Sino-Japanese clashes of 1935, the Central government has been recently maneuvering to restore its power. These moves were bitterly resisted by the Japanese army, which described them as "anti-Japanese intrigues."

The two provinces, which form the crux of the current dispute, are governed by the semi-independent Hopei-Chahar Political Council, created in November, 1935, to satisfy Japan's demand for an autonomous administration in North China.

Gen. Sung Che-yuan, chairman of the council, and most of its members are officers of the Twenty-Ninth Army, whose relations with the Japanese have never been marked by excessive amity.

In 1933, the army stubbornly resisted the Japanese advance across the Great Wall and Gen. Sung was regarded as practically a "national hero." But when, under Japanese pressure, Gen. Sung was removed from the chairmanship of Chahar province, he immediately acquired a touching friendship for Japan.

In apparent reward for this, Gen. Sung—a poorly educated and coarse but able soldier—was promoted to chairmanship of the new semiautonomous administration in Hopei province, which includes the immensely rich cities of Peiping and Tientsin. His army was pleased by its transfer from barren Chahar to the Hopei pastures, but did not entirely dispense with its dislike for Japan.

Last summer there were new skirmishes between the Twenty-Ninth Army and Nipponese troops, the most notable of which was in Fengtai—today an important Japanese military base.

These incidents revived the old animosities. While Gen. Sung and other divisional commanders continued to flirt with the Japanese, helping the latter to strengthen their control over the region's economy, the younger officers began to speak of resistance.

Twenty-Ninth Army's Readiness Is Significant.

IT IS IMMATERIAL who was responsible for the original Lukouchiao incident on the night of July 7. What is significant is that the Twenty-Ninth Army appeared to be ready and capable of resisting the powerful Japanese military machine.

The latest reports from the north indicate that while Gen. Sung and a few other high officers are continuing to negotiate with the Japanese on various "reforms" in North China, their subordinates miss no opportunity to take a shot at their Japanese adversaries.

Thus neither Nanking nor Gen. Chiang Kai-shek controls this force of 120,000 strong, in whose power it apparently lies to plunge China into war or to seriously embarrass the Central government by withdrawing from their present positions.

One of the demands which Japan was reported to have made to China was for the withdrawal of the Twenty-Ninth Army from the province. At the time of writing, the army appears to be in no mood to comply with this demand.

If hostilities open, Nanking will be obliged willy-nilly to come to the aid of the Twenty-Ninth Army. This will be tantamount to an open Sino-Japanese war, for Tokyo only yesterday informed Nanking that it would not tolerate the entry of the Central government's troops into Hopei province.

Hostilities in the north are bound to be immediately reflected in anti-Japanese acts in other parts of China, with the inevitable and severe Japanese reprisals.

If the leaders of the Twenty-Ninth Army succeed in formulating an agreement acceptable to Japan and simultaneously manage to retain control over their own anti-Japanese troops, the current incident might yet be settled amicably.

But in this case the force of public opinion will compel Nanking to repudiate publicly any agreements reached between Japan and the local authorities in North China.

Moreover, with the Foreign Office in Tokyo officially demanding a "showdown" on North China and the army leaders asking the nation to be prepared for "any grave emergency," Japan appears to be determined to play the current North China game to the end. In this decision, domestic considerations apparently play as important a role as a desire to add North China to Japan's rapidly growing continental empire.

The China-Japanese War of 1894-5.

IN THE PREVIOUS WAR between China and Japan, in 1894-5, the West expected China to win easily, because she was so large and Japan was so small. The war occurred over Korea, then theoretically an independent buffer state tributary to China. At the time Japan had completed about 25 years of internal reorganization. Russia was casting longing eyes at Korea, and a strong foreign move would settle the internal political crisis in Japan. China was in a periodic regime of backward-looking, opposed to modern changes. The army and navy were largely untrained, were decentralized, lacked modern equipment. Only a few miles of railroad and telegraph had yet been built in China.

Korea had long been subject to disorders. When a new outbreak occurred in 1894, China and Japan each sent troops to quell it. Then Japan requested that China sign a joint demand on Korea for administrative reforms. China refused. Japan delivered an ultimatum to Korea; captured its capital, Seoul, almost without resistance; and took the King prisoner. China prepared to protect Korea, and China and Japan declared war against each other on August 1, 1894. Both asked the United States to protect their respective interests in the other's territory.

EVEN BEFORE war was declared, Japanese warships had sunk a convoyed transport carrying Chinese re-enforcements to Korea. The Chinese troops in Korea went about war preparations with the utmost deliberation, Japan also was slow, but sure. When Japanese forces came up to Chinese at Asan, the Chinese fled almost immediately. The same story was told at Ping Yang on September 15, and Japan was master of all southern Korea.

On September 17 the two fleets met at the mouth of the Yalu River, separating Korea from Manchuria. China had 2 armored battleships, 10 unarmored cruisers, and 4 torpedo boats. Japan had 12 ships, each smaller than the two Chinese battleships, but all armored and equipped with rapid firing guns. Result: four Chinese ships sunk, another grounded; two Japanese ships damaged; the sea controlled by Japan.

Japan sent one column into Manchuria, another against Port Arthur. The first met little resistance, except occasionally in the mountains. The Chinese troops came chiefly from the northern provinces, and were militia rather than professional soldiers. The generals almost without exception showed little courage, less leadership, no co-operation. The three southern Chinese naval squadrons stayed out of the war, sending only a few vessels to help the northern squadron.

THE BEST TRAINED Chinese troops were in Port Arthur, but they did little better than the untrained ones, and Port Arthur was taken after a little resistance. Wei-Hai-Wei, on the Shantung peninsula, was attacked by land and sea. Chinese war vessels did not dare leave the protection of land batteries. When these were silenced, the Chinese commander surrendered the fortress, gave up the warships still afloat, committed suicide. The way was open to Peking by sea, and China sued for peace.

By the peace treaty of Shimonoseki, signed on April 17, 1895, China was to pay an indemnity; open up four more treaty ports; give Japanese vessels access to certain rivers and canals; cede Formosa, the Pescadores islands, and the Liao-Tung peninsula. Russia, backed by France and Germany, forced Japan to forego the Liao-Tung peninsula, in return for an increase in the indemnity. Today no western power is likely to make Japan give up any fruits of victory over China.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Red Man Holds a Reunion.

The United Indian Tribes of America have just held a week-end powwow on Long Island. There are only a few Indians left, and they showed they are as brave as ever by spending a week-end there in mid-summer.

• • • • •

The Indians came out of it alive, but this may have been largely due to the fact that they kept off the arterial highways, ate no buttered popcorn, and didn't try to get to a public bathing beach.

• • • • •

The tribes were the guests of the Shinnecocks. The Shinnecocks once held sway over a large section of Long Island. That was away back when a bow and arrow were considered all a man needed for protection.

• • • • •

The bear, wildcat and rattlesnake were his chief perils, and he could go any place on Long Island he pleased without being ambushed by a ferris wheel, attacked by the "hot dog" or routed by a truckload of heat-maddened picnickers.

• • • •

• • • •

Every year the United Indian Tribes hold a convention or powwow somewhere, and they were doing nicely until they hit Long Island. The east end, where they finally assembled, wasn't half bad, but getting through those congested week-end traffic lines on the other hand was terrible.

• • • •

It made the braves yearn for the old days when an Indian could leave his tepee and get back the same day, barring blizzards and the United States cavalry.

• • • •

On the tribal grounds of the Shinnecocks the assembled Injuns smoked the pipe of peace, dodged those radio cigarette ads, sent no messenger for hamburgers and meditated upon the spectacle of the highly civilized Pale Face indulging in what he considers a good time.

• • • •

They sat in silence observing the superior white man trying to enjoy the beauties of nature in full flight with his eyes full of dust, his nose full of monoxide gas and his mouth full of peanuts.

• • • •

• • • •

Tom McCarthy

To Reno On A Box Car.

RENO, NEV., Aug. 9.—It began prosaically enough, but I'll never forget that ride atop a freight car, across the Great Salt Lake cut-off, bound for Reno. There were jobs to be had in Salt Lake City, but an infusion of tramp psychology or pure laziness made me decide to strike out for Reno before going to work again.

TOM McCARTHY.

I hitched a ride out of Salt Lake to Ogden, the railroad center. A co-operative service station attendant allowed me to park my knapsack while I went into the railroad yards to see what the chances were for hopping a freight. I had learned from hoboes along the road that, properly approached, the workers around the yards would help you out in this matter.

"Any freights bound out for Reno?" I asked one of those blue clad gentlemen whose mysterious calling requires them to walk about with a hammer, hitting at the wheels.

"This one's going out any minute," he told me.

I asked him if there were any "empties" and he told me that they were all empty, though sealed. However, I could ride in the "reefer." I told him that I'd be glad to ride in the "reefer" I had only a hazy idea as to what a "reefer" might be. It developed that I was to ride in the freight car's ice box. It further developed that it was a 24-hour run, by freight, to Reno. Those two facts gained a painful significance, later.

• • • •

I CLIMBED to the roof of the freight, opened the hatches through which ice is lowered and dropped into what was to be my living quarters for the next 24 hours. There was no doubt about it, the "reefer" had been built to accommodate ice rather than transients.

About 3 feet wide and 7 feet high, my prison was lined with galvanized iron and floored with what appeared to be inverted gutter pipes. You could stand in comfort only by placing your feet across several of the "gutter pipes."

I sat down in the corner and awaited developments. First there was a dull metallic growl, and then a crash which nearly threw me off the seat I'd improvised from my knapsack. The cage sung with the metallic clamor which ran through the cars.

Looking up through the hatches in the roof, I could see that we were under way, but slowly. Just as I had watched a fragment of cloud out of sight there was another crash which sprawled me on the floor. Then I could hear the engine panting up ahead and we began to move again.

Looking out through the openings in the roof, I could judge our progress by the telephone wires which swam by overhead. We passed under the viaduct and then began to pick up speed. Right then and there I began to have my doubts as to the advisability of riding freight. My prison began to heave and jump. It hopped and bucked like a broncho.

I hadn't foreseen the possibility that one could get sea-sick riding freight, but I began to examine that possibility as the train gathered speed. The cage shook and trembled. I was tossed about as relentlessly as a pair of dice in a "hot" game.

After a while, when the train had gained its speed, the riding was a little easier. I decided to climb up to the roof and take a look at the countryside. The moment my head cleared the hatch, I was rewarded with an eyeful of cinders. Defeated, I returned to the ice box.

AFTER A WHILE the train seemed to be slacking in speed, so curiosity prompted me to try it again, cinders or no cinders. This time, the coast was clear. The engineer had seemingly reached an amicable agreement with his engine, and we were rolling along smoothly over the Great Salt Lake cut-off.

The sun was an indefinite golden haze in the West, as the train clanked over the 30-mile cut-off which crosses the lake. There was a cool breeze off the water and I sat atop the box car in solitary splendor.

The great dark lake was streaked with white salt foam, and, as the sun sank lower, it wore a golden trail across the water. The hills, which rimmed the lake, unmarred by human habitation, changed every moment in the lowering rays of the sun. To the West, the great peaks stood out grimly in silhouette and, to the East, they sprang skyward like golden shafts of light, even while purple shadows filtered into the folds in the hills.

To the north of the cut-off the lake stretched out as calm as a mill pond and to the south of the dividing line the breeze whipped the dark water into angry waves. A lone seagull drifted across the trail of the sun.

At midlake we passed three houses, built for railroad employes. Green-roofed, and yellow, the houses clung desperately to the earth and rock fill over which the tracks had been laid. As the freight rolled by, a few of the midlake exiles waved their hands.

WHEN WE REACHED the farther shore, it had grown dark and I reclined on my box car throne watching the stars come out. The train sped onward into night, over the Great Salt Desert. A vast and desolate expanse of sand, it stretched out on either side, giving eerie purple and silver tints, by the half light of early evening.

Soon, a full darkness descended on the desert, and the sky hung heavy with stars. Far ahead, down the track, the signals winked out their green, red and amber warnings. As the train would round a curve, the red glare from the engine would flare wildly for a moment and then give way to the thin pencil of light from the headlight.

Mile after mile, we rolled across the desert and, secure on the little walk atop the box car, I watched the stars wink past. Occasionally, we would come upon the friendly gleam of light from a single house, and then it would be left behind, as we roared onward toward the dark outline of the hills.

Not even sagebrush grows in this section of the Great Salt Desert. When, occasionally, the engine light would pick up the outline of a clump of trees, a water tank would be the explanation. The water tank seemed the sole oasis in an otherwise arid waste.

We rolled through a little railroad settlement, lights gleamed from the windows of houses converted from box cars and pullmans. The train screamed to a halt and I could hear the rush of feet on the gravel outside.

Down the walk atop the cars a man came swinging a lantern. When he reached my car, I said, "Good evening." I guess he wasn't expecting me, because he jumped, started to return my greeting, thought better of it, and growled, "Get down in that reefer, and don't come up here again!"

I guess maybe he was afraid I'd fall off. I returned to my ice box cage until we pulled out of the station. Then I resumed my perch on the roof. After a while, I became sleepy and decided to go below before I did fall off.

$5,791,603 Earned By Reserve Banks

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday current net earnings of the 12 Federal Reserve banks were $5,791,603 during the first half of this year.

The total was $1,827,199 in excess of dividends paid. For the first six months of 1936, the banks' current net earnings were $3,277,988, or $643,358 less than dividend payments.

The banks reported total earnings of $19,758,606 and total current expenses of $13,967,003 for the period this year, against earnings of $19,129,646 and expenses of $15,851,658 in the first half of 1936.

Of the earnings this year, Government security holdings accounted for $18,627,456 and industrial advances for $591,341. Last year these earnings were set at $17,615,195 and $843,212, respectively.

Salaries to officers this year totaled $1,156,528, compared with $1,245,366 in the first half of 1936. Salaries to employes were $8,114,334 and $6,874,173 in the respective periods.

Camera Picketing Urged to Curb Vice

Los Angeles, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Vice crusaders tonight introduced a new wrinkle in their battle against moral turpitude, proposing to set up klieg lights and movie cameras to photograph all patrons of houses of ill fame.

The proposal was presented informally to the board of supervisors and was received by members of that body with chilly silence.

Clifford E. Clinton, head of the citizens' vice investigating committee, suggested movie cameras be set up in front of such places and gay blades of the town would find themselves involuntary movie actors. The movies would be shown free to anyone who cared to see them.

All Raiment Designed to Show Height

The following article is the first of a series on fall fashion trends by The Post Fashion Editor who is now in the New York markets surveying the fall collections at their important sources. In this series, fashions will be discussed particularly as they will affect Washington women.

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Your fall headcovering is "high hat" not only in name this year, but has a real and distinctive background! Whether it happens to be a Paris creation, an American adaptation, or is all-American in designing, it is bound to show traces of the Directoire. Oriental or 1900 influences. In viewing a cross-section of the fall collections in the market, from glamorous evening gowns through smart winter suits, coats, daytime and spectator sports frocks, and accessories, it was evident to me that hats led the style parade and were among the most interesting items of the entire fashion picture.

All hats, regardless of the costume they are to accompany and the occasion for which they will be chosen, stress height in some form. Sometimes this skyward trend is introduced in the brim and sometimes in the crown; both are sharing honors equally as the season advances. There are tall hats that go skyrocketing upward at dizzy angles, others with more gradual swoops, and many that feature an outsweeping height in the brim. All styling features sophisticated height—it is a trend showing much planning and subtle designing, producing some of the smartest hats that have ever been shown in any season.

Black Versus Bright Color.

While the monotone costume is still considered chic and many fastidious women are appearing in all-black ensembles, there is a decided trend this fall to introduce brilliant color into the costume. In talking with a number of the well-known American designers, I found they all expressed the desire to contrast the dark frock with bright-colored hats, rather than matching it in color tone. This idea, they claim, is particularly effective for mid-season, or until it is time to don fall coats. Another smart fashion this year is the dark hat accented with brilliant trimming; in this event, gloves usually repeat the gay hat trimming.

The style and material for your first fall hat will, of course, be in harmony with the type of frock or suit it is to complement. Black antelope, velvet, velour and felt, styled in sophisticated toques, berets and the new adaptations of the calot, are grand toppings for the new fall silk crepe, satin, or sheer wool frock. For the suit, there are brimmed affairs with outsweeping brims, tall crowns, or dashing small hats featuring toques and berets in interesting new versions. There are numerous ways of planning color harmony between suits and hats for fall; the hat may either match the suit or accessories, as both interpretations are considered equally smart and effective.

There is no such thing any more as a matronly hat or a hat for the older woman, say the designers and stylists, as all hats this season have youthful and flattering lines. Another important thing to remember about fall hats—it is the way they are worn that gives a chic appearance; the most expensive headgear that you can buy will loose caste and look like nothing at all, unless adjusted at the proper angle to flatter your features. With "profile" hats so rampant throughout all millinery styling, one's coiffure should always be neat and smartly styled; it is a season when hat and coiffure must be in complete harmony or the very chic modern topping, stressing sophistication is entirely lost.

Tomorrow: How to Be Glamorous.

The hats shown here give an idea of the diversity in the fall millinery collections. Regardless of shape or material, all hats show a definite trend toward height, and upsweeping movement. The directoire influence is noted in the chic turban of black antelope (left) with large buckle of black patent leather, designed by Lilly Dache. An original model (below) by Chez Jean Patou, Paris, of black felt, trimmed with velvet in the new shade named shocking (bright red.)

Hats with handles are a startling Paris novelty for fall. The chapeau (below) designed by Mme. Simone, and made of auburn brown velour, has two striking handles arched over the high-pointed crown.

Poor Manners Often Displayed By Tennis Fans

Players Also Should Live Up to Code While on the Courts.

By Margaret Wallace

THE SUMMER season brings out many displays of bad manners at tennis courts both on the part of players and spectators. The galleries at many of our country clubs never would be guilty in their homes of the discourtesy they display when watching games.

The well-bred spectator will be quiet while the game is going on except for the type of applause acceptable at that particular kind of sports event. The spectator who hoots and who calls witticisms to the players is annoying to all those who take a real interest in the game. That kind of fan manners may be acceptable at a baseball game, but not at club tennis courts.

Should Remain in Seats.

Guests who form a gallery for any kind of tennis game should remain where they are seated. Recently I saw two girls who wanted better seats walk across court, interfering with the play and digging their high heels into the court to the chagrin of players and spectators alike. These girls were as rude as if they had entered a friend's drawing room with muddy shoes.

There are rude players, too, who jeer at their opponents and disconcert them with their sallies. This is rude even when the sallies are pleasant. A query as to whether the partner or opponent is ready, or an appreciation of a good play such as "good" or "splendid" is allowable in our best tennis circles.

It is bad manners to engage in argument or indulge in open criticism of any player or to become angry. Well-bred players will make no comment if the other player or players are unfair or showing lack of regard for the rules. Their redress is to refuse to play with the opponents again.

If the use of the tennis court is the privilege of many persons, no player or players will usurp all the tennis playing hours. On courts that are public or semi-public or on club courts, it is considered good for as a rule to play three sets of tennis, or for an hour. This will give other persons a chance to play.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

NOT SO LONG AGO we wrote a little column about a letter from Mary T. who lived in a house with a dining room opening onto a tangled garden. And then we received a letter from Agnes K. who didn't have a house like that but wanted one. "If I could only get a place like that I know my nerves would quit jangling and I'd be more pleasant to my husband and little girl. My husband works hard but we don't make much and in the last 11 years I have never been satisfied with my home because even when we've rented expensive places they haven't been what I wanted. I just feel sure that you can give me a suggestion as to how I can create a home where I'll really be happy. I hate envying anyone but I don't see why I can't enjoy life. I don't ask for much—not a fine house but I do want it to have beauty and graciousness. I feel sure you can help me."

Lady dear, we can't give you a recipe for happiness. In fact we've never been quite sure what it is. Only we know it isn't a matter of a garden or a pretty house or any actual things. It's an intangible quality that some people manage to bring to life and others don't. That's why many a woman of wealth is miserable and complaining and we don't think moving into a house many a wife of a poor man is happy, and vice versa.

But feeling as you do toward life, with a tangled garden will help any to settle your nerves. Have you ever seen a woman in a one-room shack who made an art of home-making? And noticed all the ways she could add charm to everyday living . . . or listened to her singing as she went about her work?

A lovely home is important, of course, but it's usually something that emanates from the lady of the family . . . something dependent upon what of gayety and graciousness she brings to it. That house with the tangled garden is happy because of the lady who lives there. And we have a good notion that she'd be happy in a three-room cottage.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

Dr. Logan Clendening.

Constitutional Invalid.

THE LARGE GROUP of humans we mentioned yesterday who are born with a weak and inadequate body build, and who suffer all sorts of symptoms and discomforts from that bodily build, have been treated in many different ways at many different times.

They do have an unhappy time in life, and those of us who enjoy good health most of the time cannot probably understand them very well. They are never quite sick enough to go to bed, and never quite well enough to do a stretch of hard work. They have weak backs and weak stomachs and fleeting pains. No wonder they are so often discouraged, and embrace eagerly any new method of treatment that is suggested.

One way in which improvement has been made in handling them is that radical measures of surgery have long been given up. In the excited days of 40 years ago in medicine, when surgery had learned to be safe and at the same period the X-ray and many other laboratory tests came in, diagnostic workers in the latter departments found many tempting things for the surgeon to experiment on.

Especially was surgery tempted to work on these constitutionally inadequate frames. Here was a person with a thin, sagging body line, and it was found that there was some stoppage in the movements of the large intestine with stasis there. All sorts of bands and adhesions were discovered to account for this. Surgeons, at least some of the more enthusiastic, thought removal of the bands, or operations for partial removal of the large intestine itself would help, and they performed these operations by the thousands. They performed enough of them to show that only in rare instances did it do any good, and in most hospitals today such operations have been given up.

Floating kidney was another example of a condition naturally associated with this type of body build. The kidney does not have to be in a definite fixed place; it is always a little movable and may "float" quite a distance without doing any harm. Thirty years ago surgeons sewed floating kidneys into place all the time. Now only when it gives trouble by twisting on itself and producing cramps is this considered necessary.

Chronic appendicitis was another condition frequently ascribed as a cause of many of the symptoms of the chronic invalid of this type. The trouble with the diagnosis of chronic appendicitis is that even after the appendix is out the discomfort still persists. It doesn't seem reasonable to have symptoms of chronic appendicitis after the appendix is gone. So, though it may be a cause of pain and indigestion in some instances, most surgeons do not perform this operation very frequently any more.

All of which is a good thing for the constitutionally inadequate invalid. He is learning that his salvation will come through a way of life, not by a sudden stroke of magic.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Aug. 11.

WE ARE ABOUT to pay off the biggest season of outdoor music our 7,000,000 swing-addicts have ever known. So vast and varied has been our assortment of tunes under the stars (at times) that it has been almost impossible to venture into the open without bumping smack dab into an operetta, orchestra or brass band.

ALICE HUGHES.

Two operetta companies have been reviving old scores—one in a municipal stadium, the other on a huge float in the Atlantic off our superb Jones (swimming and loafing) Beach. Every park has had a band tooting for dear life, and our Philharmonic Symphony has been attacking the classics at Lewisohn Stadium of City College—mixing straight and orchestral dishes with ballets, famous solo performers and excerpts from Wagner's music-dramas.

It takes something special to fill the 15,000 seats at Lewisohn—Beethoven unadorned won't do it. Two events packed 18,000 people into the place—the solo appearance of Jascha Heifetz and the great memorial concert of the works of Gotham's late idol, George Gershwin, with Ethel Merman singing several of his songs that she sang on Broadway stages.

Naturally, the bitter enemy of all al fresco musicales is a downpour. I'll not forget a performance of "The Chocolate Soldier" at the St. Louis wonder theater in Forest Park during a cloudburst, with the merry villagers thumping on the wet stage and their posteriors while trying to dance. Such a torrent fell on Jascha and his Strad one night this year. Rains are bad, but they are acts of God. Aviators loafing in the sky above a beautiful concert are not. They are acts of cads, and succeeded in drowning out Wagner this summer, the beasts!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN — Libby Holman, ace 1937 glamour girl of the Broadway first nights, insists she will croon no more, but wants to appear in a drahma next season—and no doubt has plenty of money to back the show. Even so, Lib warbled her old "Moanin' Low," the hymn that made her famous, for the coronation crowds in London. That was probably her farewell to croons.

A tidy little job of housecleaning is going on here in town. The Commodore Hotel, next door to Grand Central Deppo on Forty-second street, is already doing over the place, with the fair of '39 in mind. Simple little chore. Redecoration of 2,000 rooms, new trimmings on the three ballrooms, the whole thing to cost $750,000. Those crowds had better pour in two years from now, or Mrs. Commodore will feel right seedy! . . .

• • • •

Doris Duke, that girl with all that money, and Jimmy Cromwell, her husband, have divided up the domestic work nicely. When the press leaps at them, as always happens, James meets the boys and girls, while Doris, who hates cameras, lurks out of sight. The pair, just back from a foreign trip, are splitting pro tem—Doris being unable to wait to get to her old Honolulu home so far away.

• • • •

Another summer is practically past without the Nation's most eligible young bach, Alfred G. Vanderbilt, being knocked off his solitary perch by a love-or-money-maddened sister. He likes to trot about with pretty girls, but when it comes to the serious business of hinting at matrimony, young Al is tough stuff indeed. Potting mothers must look upon the lady as Social Enemy No. 1, and remember his stubborn-in their nightly curses!

• • • •

The season of the Thank-You Present is now at its horrid height. Departing house-guests are enjoying their annual nervous breakdowns trying to think up what to give their late hostesses. One local store, hearing their screams, has pulled a fast one by opening a special bread-and-butter gift department, containing about 25 such contributions. I noted huge paper-doily sets, ornate tins of bath powder, fancy collections of soap-cakes, and tricky card-cases. Ah, it's a problem! How often I've longed to give a trying week-end ness in their nightly curses!

Chill in cold water and cut in pieces, discarding the tubes and membrane. Force through food chopper enough carrot to make ¾ cup. Put into saucepan with 3 tablespoons butter and 1 teaspoon scraped onion and cook 10 minutes or until as brown as mushrooms, stirring frequently. Add 4 tablespoons flour and when smooth, add 1 cup boiling water with 1 chicken bouillon cube, stir until sauce boils. Add 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, few grains cayenne and the sweetbreads. Just before serving add ½ cup cream, 1 pimento.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

'Does Girl Have to Betray Her Standards to Keep Man Interested?' Asks 18-Year-Old.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am an 18-year-old girl, in my junior year at high school. I started keeping company at the age of 17. I went steadily with one boy for a year. Then we broke off, as I learned to dislike him. As a rule, I have many congenial girl friends, but sad to relate, misfortune has befallen six of them—so that they have brought disgrace on themselves and their families.

• • • •

This has caused my mother to become very suspicious of me, and she has threatened what she would do if I were to follow in their footsteps. I really hadn't thought of such a thing, although I have been troubled by the attitude of nearly all the boys I know. Some of them are of good family and some simply reckless. And none of them remain interested after they discover you have some moral standards.

• • • •

Seriously, does a girl have to betray her standards to keep a man interested? Please tell me the truth, for I am almost frantic. Since most of my girl friends have gotten into trouble, I am almost afraid to go with a boy. Maybe my mother's attitude has something to do with it. Any advice you give me will be greatly appreciated and strictly followed.

GRACE.

Preposterous Assumption.

DEAR GRACE: If nearly all your girl friends have come to grief through misplacing their confidence in reckless, immoral young men; and all the boys you know insist on illicit intimacy, you had better take warning and flee their company as you would that of the devil himself. Your whole social outlook is being warped by wrong association, and your chances of leading a decently normal and happy life reduced almost to zero. If your mother wishes to protect you from a fate similar to that of your erstwhile girl friends, she had better see to it that you make new friends among worthwhile young people who live by saner standards. Scolding and threatening won't help. She should remove you from an environment of destructive temptation. And if she doesn't realize the necessity of this, you must do it for yourself.

• • • •

Though you may not be able to persuade the family to move to another and better neighborhood, still you can use your own initiative and branch out into farther and finer fields of friendship. For one thing, get in touch with the Community Center and take part in its social program. Mrs. A. L. Irving is secretary of the program at Roosevelt High School. Her telephone number is CLeveland 5003. There is another program at Central High School, about which Mrs. E. H. Hunter can tell you. Her telephone number is CLeveland 6640. You can study various handicrafts, take part in outdoor sports, or join a dancing class. There are daytime and evening classes.

• • • •

Also, you should investigate the friend-making possibilities of the local Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest, telephone MEtropolitan 2100. And you should go to church and join a Sunday School class. Take an active part in young people's church work. In this column, under date of July 28, the Christian Endeavor Society of the Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church, Randolph street and New Hampshire avenue northwest, extended a cordial invitation to new members. It was explained that this is an inter-denominational organization; that such a society can be found at almost any Protestant church, and that "there is no other group of young people in a better position to help youngsters overcome unhappiness, sorrow, shyness—anything that is keeping them from enjoying life."

• • • •

It is pitiful and preposterous to suppose you have to buy a boy's favor by betraying your standards. Men themselves look with contempt on those low-principled scoundrels who attempt to seduce—by such argument—gullible girls in their teens. You might as well go out with a cut-throat, a thief or any other criminal as go with a boy who acts on such a belief. You are in just as much danger with one as with the other. The fate that has overtaken your girl friends should be sufficient proof of that. M. H.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Describing her 6-year-old son, the baby of the family, as "bad and mean," working mother says she would "like to send him to some school for the remainder of the summer, where he can get personal supervision." She says she "cannot handle him and feels like a nervous wreck." Her problem will be discussed here tomorrow. This column appears Sunday and daily.

Women's Position In World of Style Threatened by Men

THE women of America had better look to their laurels or the men will be running away with fashion honors in the future. Men are gradually becoming more and more style conscious, according to Jeremiah G. Hickey, a national authority in this field. Men, he claims, are emulating England and dressing for the occasion. Time was when it was difficult to get the men of the family to don formal clothes or even a tuxedo for dinner, but this is rapidly changing, and modern men are taking as much pride in new styles and colors as the American women.

Mr. Hickey, who had just returned from a buying jaunt to Europe, said coronation colors are a new trend in men's clothes for fall, and that all suit colors were going to be lighter in tone than they have been. For instance, a "lighter than navy" blue, forest green, and various shades of brown and tan. Haberdashery, too, maintains Mr. Hickey, is becoming more important in the men's fashion scheme of things; accessories such as ties and shirts are colorful and smart.

Contrasting accessories, he explained, would be a popular style note for the fall coronation-colored suits. One of the newest and most practical developments in men's clothes, says this authority, is the use of lighter weight fabrics—woolens, but not heavy and cumbersome.

Gowns to Match Walls.

Paris (AP).—Matching dresses to walls is a new idea which is in vogue here. The Countess Antonin de Mun, whose new house has yellow walls, has a Mainbocher evening frock of yellow tulle designed with a long, full train and finished with a big rose at the decolletage.

Westminster Horse Show Heads Social Calendar

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Biggest social and sports event on schedule around here this week-end is the Horse and Pony Show to be held Saturday near Westminster, Md., under the auspices of the Westminster Riding Club and the Horse Show Association of Maryland.

Sports lovers from Washington, Warrenton and Baltimore are expected to compete for silver trophies and ribbons to be presented in 28 classes. The Horse Show Association will donate two trophies—one to the owner of the pony and one to the owner of the horse winning most points for the event. Senator Millard Tydings and Representative William Cole, of Maryland, are among those who have provided trophies.

Luncheon and soft drinks are to be served on the grounds for the benefit of the Children's Aid Society throughout the day, beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning, when the first show will take place. In the evening the armory on the grounds will be the scene of a horse-show dance.

Miss Jane Davis To Ride in Show

Speaking of horsey events—the eighth annual Pocono Mountains show, to be held at Mount Pocono for three days, beginning August 19, promises to be the highlight of the summer season around those parts. Among participants will be Miss Jane Davis, daughter of Senator James J. Davis and Mrs. Davis, of Pennsylvania, who is spending the summer with her parents at Pocono Manor. She will ride Sir Clifford, the prize-winning jumper.

Any mention of horses reminds me that if I had my choice of resorts these days I'd rather be at Saratoga Springs than anywhere. A continuous round of entertaining before, after and between the races is the order of events every day, and has been since the first of this month when the sporting little town in the foothills of the Adirondacks became the mecca of thousands of turf enthusiasts. But the races aren't the only featured entertainment this season. Cocktail parties, teas, dinners and dances have enlivened the social calendar as never before in the history of the spa. What will probably be one of the most successful events of the year—a "Gay Nineties" festival—will be staged at Arrowhead Inn tomorrow night when an endurance rocking chair contest will be the featured entertainment.

The first "rocking chair brigade" will consist of six members from the younger social set. They will compete against half a dozen "old timers," veterans of the rocking chair era, who are being recruited from permanent residents at the Spa.

Summer Theaters Chief Social Centers

Word comes from Sugar Hill, N. H., and Mount Kisco, N. Y., that visitors there spend most of their evenings in the little theaters that are flourishing at both resorts. Lady Lindsay, wife of the British Ambassador, was in the audience that witnessed Tuesday evening's performance at Peckett's hayloft playhouse in Sugar Hill.

Also among the 300 present were Mrs. August Belmont and Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Blandin, all o whom are spending the summer in Neew Hampshire. The audience sat in weather-beaten sleighs, tally-ho coaches and broken-down buggies to see "Lady Audley's Secrets" presented by the New Jitney Playrers of New York, with Ethel Barrymore Colt in the leading role.

Visitors and residents in the horse-loving country around Mount Kisco exchange jodhpurs for festive garb each evening and flock to the little theater now enjoying its most successful season under the aegis of Day Tuttle and Richard Skinner, both of whom spent the past winter in Washington as director and business manager respectively of the Civic Theater. Also of interest there is the Skinner-Tuttle school for prospective young actors. It is there that Margaret Tallichet, who has been signed to play "Scarlet" in the film version of "Gone With the Wind," is studying for a few weeks before she heads for Hollywood.

Ocean Travel Lures Many Washingtonians

Justice James Clark McReynolds, of the United States Supreme Court, is carrying out his summer schedule down to the last detail. Six months ago he completed plans to spend the closing weeks of the summer in Europe. Yesterday he sailed on the Queen Mary. Among others on the same ship were H. O. Chalkley and Philip M. Broadmead.

On their way to new posts three American diplomats boarded the Manhattan yesterday. They were John Cudahy, Minister of the Irish Free State; George A. Gordon, Minister to the Netherlands, and Leo J. Keena, Minister to South Africa.

Farewell Party Will Be Given By Mr. Paredes

Philippine Commissioner Is Leaving August 21 for Manila.

A FAREWELL dinner dance for Quintin Parades, Philippine Resident Commissioner, will be held this evening at the Shoreham by a group of of his friends. Recently appointed by President Quezon to be vice chairman of the Filipino members of the Joint Committee on Philippine Affairs, Mr. Parades will leave August 21 for Manila, and it is expected that shortly after arrival he will resign his present post as Resident Commissioner.

Former Senator and Mrs. Harry B. Hawes and General Charles Burnett, Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, will be among the guests this evening. The committee on arrangements includes Dr. Urbano A. Zafra, Gervasio Sese, Mariano Erana, Florentino Calabia, Dr. Eugenio Fonbuena, Juan R. Quijano, Eduardo M. Yap and Pedro Villaton.

Commissioner Parades, formerly Speaker of the Philippine House of Representatives, is the first Commissioner from the Commonwealth of the Philippines to the United States Congress.

The First Lady of Ecuador, Senora Dona Adelaida de Paez, has arrived in this country with her daughter, 11-year-old Rita, for her first visit. She was met on her arrival in New York on the liner Santa Clara by the Ecuadorean Ambassador, Senor Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro.

After stopping overnight at the Mayflower with Capt. and Senora de Alfaro, Senora de Paez went to Leonardtown, Md., to place her daughter in St. Mary's Academy there. She plans an indefinite stay in that town.

Senor Paez, an engineer before he became military dictator of his country in 1935, was elected Provisional Constitutional President of Ecuador on Tuesday. This is his wife's first trip to this country.

Schools in the United States seem to be very popular among leading South American families. Senora de Francisco Benavides, wife of the President of Peru, came here last March to put two of her children in schools.

J. R. Pope Illness Cuts Off Vacation

Mrs. John Russell Pope and her daughter, Miss Jane Pope, have left their summer home at Newport for New York, where Mr. Pope is seriously ill at the Medical Center. He was ordered there from his villa, the Waves, after two physicians had flown from New York to examine him.

A dinner which Mrs. Henry Walters, mother-in-law of Mr. Pope, was to have given has been canceled, and she has joined her daughter and granddaughter in New York. Mr. and Mrs. Pope and Miss Pope spent last winter here when the well-known architect was drawing up plans for the much-discussed memorial to Thomas Jefferson.

Meanwhile, three dances are already scheduled to take place at Newport during Tennis Week, although no one has come forth to give the Tennis Ball made famous by the late Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, who died suddenly earlier in the summer in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker En Route to Capital

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker, jr., are expected to return on Monday from a ten days motor trip through New England. In Bar Harbor they visited the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker, sr.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker are now in New York at the Hotel Plaza for a brief stay en route to Washington.

Leaves for the Philippines

MISS LORA-MARIE HOOVER,

daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Hoover, will leave Washington today and will sail soon for the Philippines on the President Wilson. En route she will visit friends in Panama, San Francisco and Hawaii, and upon her arrival in Manila will be the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Lieut. and Mrs. Warren G. Hoover. She expects to remain in the Philippines for about a year.

Dr. Henry Teller Cox Officiates at Nuptials of D. C. Girl, Formerly of Asheville, and Italian Notable.

Miss Geraldine Ruth Hawkins, daughter of the late Capt. and Mrs. Lester Gerald Hawkins, of Asheville, N. C., became the bride of Albert Michael Candido, son of Michael Candido and the late Mrs. Candido, yesterday at All Saints Church in Chevy Chase, the Rev. Dr. Henry Teller Cox officiating. A wedding breakfast at the Shoreham Hotel followed the ceremony.

Several Guests From Out of Town

Mrs. Candido is a graduate of De Paul University in Chicago. She is descended from the Train and Gardner families, who came from England and settled in North Carolina. Mr. Candido's family has been closely associated with affairs of state in Rome, Italy, one of his great-grandfathers having been commander of the port by royal appointment. Both the bride and bridegroom have been making their homes in Washington for the past several years.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Canizaro, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ragusa, Mrs. Angela Fuccillo, Miss Victoria Candido, all of New York; Miss Katherine Raymond, of Hillside, N. J.; Mrs. James V. Candido, of Buenos Aires, Argentina; Edward Jubon, of East Orange, N. J., and Patrick Pasquale, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Miss Riordan Bride Of Francis Flemming

Yesterday morning at 7 o'clock Miss Katherine T. Riordan became bride of Francis C. Flemming at St. Michael's Church in Silver Spring, Md. The Rev. Thomas A. Calnan officiated at the ceremony which took place before an altar decorated with gladioli and palms.

Guests Discuss Summer's Heat At Meeks Tea

Representative's Wife Turns Party Into Summer Seminar.

Everybody has been doing so much talking about hot weather that Mrs. James A. Meeks, wife of Representative Meeks, of Indiana, decided a study of the subject might not be amiss, so she gave a party which she called a "Summer Seminar" at her Wardman Park apartment yesterday afternoon.

After all had exhausted the weather situation with a full program of games, old and new, they were rewarded with tea and good things to eat.

Among the guests present were Miss Ida Meeks, of San Diego, Calif., sister of Representative Meeks, who is visiting now in Washington, and Mrs. Edwin V. Champion, Mrs. Donald H. McLean, Mrs. Claude Pepper, Mrs. Paul W. Shafer and Mrs. Harry R. Sheppard.

The Secretary of the Yugoslav Legation, Nicolai Perazic, and Mme. Perazic, arrived in Washington after a stay in Europe. After landing in New York, they remained for a brief visit and stopped at the Ritz Carlton.

M. and Mme. Perazic will probably remain at a hotel until they find a house or apartment. Last season they occupied the Georgetown home of Alexander Kirk, former Counselor of the American Embassy at Rome and now assigned to Singapore for duty. Mr. Kirk will stop in Washington on his way to the Orient in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton l'Ecluse, of East Neck, Huntington Bay, Long Island, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Julia Manley l'Ecluse, to L. Livingston George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. George, of Englewood, N. J.

Miss l'Ecluse was graduated from the Cathedral School in Washington and Friends Academy in Locust Valley. Mr. George was graduated from Hamilton College in 1930 and from the Columbia University School of Architecture in 1934. He is with the firm of Grant & George in Westport, Conn.

The wedding will take place in October.

H. S. Wender to Wed Gertrude Schwartz

D. C. Attorney to Marry New York Girl in October.

Mrs. Fannie Schwartz, of New York City, announces the engagement of her daughter, Gertrude, to Harry S. Wender, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wender, of this city.

Miss Schwartz attended the College of the City of New York.

Mr. Wender attended George Washington University and is a graduate of Georgetown University law school. He is a practicing attorney in the District and is prominent in civic work.

The wedding will take place in October.

Mrs. E. M. Pickens entertained at dinner at the Shoreham Terrace last evening for her daughters, Miss Helen and Miss Winifred Rickens who are sailing Saturday on the Champlain for Europe.

Mrs. Wilkins Plans Vacation

Mrs. Edness Wilkins, secretary to Nellie Tayloe Ross, is planning to leave her work at the Treasury and plunge into a month's vacation, beginning Sunday. With her son, Charles, who now is in his third year at Randolph-Macon Military Academy, she will visit her father, W. F. Kimball, whose home is in Caspar, Wyo., Mrs. Wilkins' home town.

She also will visit friends at Fort Warren, near Cheyenne, Wyo. Mrs. Wilkins' husband, before his death, was an army man, so she has many contacts at various posts throughout the country.

The next lap of her trip will find her in Los Angeles, Calif., with side jaunts up and down the coast. She will return about the middle of September, with just enough vacation saved over for a trip, with her son, to Florida this coming December.

Mrs. Wilkins always takes her vacations with her son. Last year they did Wyoming and Yellowstone Park.

Saratoga Bound.

Strickland Gillilan will leave Sunday for Saratoga Springs to be the guest of Samuel D. Riddle, owner of Man o' War and War Admiral, and to attend the races. He expects to return to the Shoreham, August 23.

Representative Returns.

Representative Harold D. Cooley, of North Carolina, has returned to his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel after a few days' visit in his home in Nashville.

G. O. P. Call Is Answered By Women

Carlton Luncheon and Tea Follow Business Sessions.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Republican women are already at work on preparations for the 1938 campaign. Activity such as there has not been since last November was reported by the national committeewomen, here from 19 Staes, yesterday at the call of Chairman John Hamilton of the National Committee, for a conference on reorganization of the women's division.

Mrs. Wilma D. Hoyal, of Douglas, Ariz., director of women's activities in the 1936 campaign; Mrs. Grace B. Reynolds, of Cambridge City, Ind., who headed the women's work in the Western division, both national committeewomen, and Mrs. Helen Griffin, of Chicago, who was prominently identified with the pre-convention campaign of Frank Knox for the Republican Presidential nomination, were among those proposed for the directorshop of the division.

Mr. Hamilton discussed with the committeewomen to what extent co-operation could be given by the Women's Republican Clubs in raising funds; the advisability of having a paid director for the women's division; whether women should be used in divisional capacities as sub-directors of 10 or 12 States and whether or not there should be a separate publicity director for the women's division.

Social Affairs Follow Business

At the close of the morning session, which began at 10 oclock, the committeewomen had luncheon together at the Carlton Hotel and, following the afternoon meeting, went to the new headquarters of the League of Republican Women for a tea at which they were welcomed by members of the board of the organization.

Mrs. Virginia White Speel, national committeewoman for the District and founder of the league, was there yesterday as one of the committeewomen-guests rather than in the role of one of the hostesses. She returned for the meeting from Indiana, Pa., where she had been for a visit of several weeks, and is leaving again the end of this week to spend the remainder of the summer away from the heat of the Capital.

Mrs. Katharine K. Brown, of Datyon, Ohio, came down from her summer home at Nantucket and is returning there today for the rest of the season. Mrs. Doris K. Reynolds, of Sheridan, Wyo., was accompanied to Washington by her sister, Mrs. Milward Simpson, of Cody, and her mother, Mrs. Peter Kooi, of Sheridan, who were with her at the tea.

Mrs. Warren R. Austin, wife of Senator Austin, and Mrs. Consuelo Northrop, committeewoman from Vermont, and a resident of Burlington, which is also the Austin's home, were enjoying a conversation together. "It's time for the party to get started now," Mrs. Northrop declared, "and women are already at work in our State."

Board Members Greet Guests

In the absence of Mme. Cantacuzene, president of the league, Mrs. Frank Mondell, first vice president, and Mrs. Maurice Thatcher, vice chairman of the House committee, received the guests. Mrs. Flora McGill Keefer and Mrs. Warren J. Haines presided at the tea table, serving iced tea and fruit punch.

Other members of the board present included Mrs. E. E. Gann, who arrived toward the end of the afternoon; Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, Mrs. Charles Alger and Miss Ruth Brown.

Mr. Hamilton came with a group of the committeewomen and later had the support of two other members of the masculine contingent, Judge Thatcher, who joined Mrs. Thatcher at the close of the party, and Representative U. S. Guyer, of Kansas, who came with Mrs. Guyer. The committeewoman from their State, Mrs. Ralph Harris, is now in Europe. Other Washingtonians there were Mrs. Bruce Hoggson, Mrs. Chandler Hale and Mrs. Irene Obenour.

Democratic Women Give Farewell Party

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

Mrs. Robert Kirkpatrick Noble, who has been "on the job" all summer both as one of the National Cathedral Aides and as vice president of the Democratic Woman's National Council, leaves today for a vacation up where the weather looks like summer but feels like fall.

She is going by train to Toronto to meet her brother, Judge Frank E. E. Simpson and his daughter, Gwendolyn, and motor with them for a week along Georgian Bay. Their home is in Minnedosa, Manitoba.

Mrs. Noble is not only a member but a charter member of both the Democratic Woman's National Council and the Cathedral Aides and, for the past ten years, has also belonged to the Women's National Democratic Club.

GENEVIEVE THOMPSON SMITH, who is now in Europe, has been on a two weeks cruise to North Cape aboard the steam yacht Meten—with an all-English passenger list, a jolly one too, she writes, and the weather the best in three years, according to the natives. She is now on her way to Sweden, Finland and Denmark before returning late in September on the Berengaria.

PHYLLIS FERGUS HOYT, president of the National League of American Pen Women, is "carrying on" in the midst of her vacation. A few days ago she motored from her summer home in Vermont to attend the luncheon of the Pioneer Branch in Connecticut, given for her and Marjorie Hillis, author of "Live Alone and Like It." She also attended the fall fashion festival at Outpost Inn, Ridgefield, Conn., this week, and was the guest of Margaret Fitzgerald, a prominent Pen Woman of Riverside, Conn.

IF YOU TUNE IN ON WMAL at 11 o'clock Monday morning you will hear a brand-new voice—and a pleasant one, too, the Soroptomists will tell you, for they enjoyed hearing it at their weekly meetings a year ago when Ella Werner was their president. It will be hers. She is starting a regular broadcast "About the Town" in which she will talk of styles and other topics in which women are interested. It will be Mondays and Thursdays at the same hour.

Miss Werner is not only past president of the Soroptomist Club of Washington but also second vice president of the Washington Criminal Justice Association. She was accountant and credit manager of a large store in the Capital before becoming interested in radio.

OH YES, and the Soroptomists are having a picnic tonight in Rock Creek Park—providing it doesn't rain. They are not meeting officially in August but they enjoy getting together for informal outings during the summer recess.

WHEN WELLESLEY alumnae chat over their tea cups, one of their most distinguished members, Mme. Chiang Kai-shek invariably comes in for discussion. With the eyes of the world turned anxiously toward the Far East, this woman of China, Wellesley-educated, holds the spotlight.

The Wellesley graduates are proud of her leadership as wife of the head of the central government and herself secretary general of its air force. She has taken the lead in organizing civilian support for the army in the conflict with Japan and has been active with war plans for the Chinese Red Cross. She devotes several hours a day to her duties as head of the air force in preparation for whatever role it may play in the hostilities in the north.

Mrs. Edwin A. Early, the former Martha St. Claire, is one of the Washington Wellesley alumnae who knew her at college Mrs. Early recalls an informal gathering in her room one evening, when the little Chinese student told the American girls of customs in her homeland. Unlike the other Chinese girls then at Wellesley, Mme. Chiang Kai-shek usually wore Western dress rather than her native robe. The girls were impressed by her dignity and poise and she had many close friends among her schoolmates, with some of whom she has kept up regular correspondence, since.

Mrs. Early leaves today for Silver Lake, Pa., where her daughter, Martha and son, Edwin, are in camp for the summer. She will meet her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank St. Clair, of DuBois, Pa., who will also visit Martha and Edwin, and with them, will drive to New York for a short stay.

Rep. Caroline O'Day Back From Trip to Girl Scout Rally

Representative Caroline O'Day, who returned yesterday morning from the Girl Scout Jamboree in New York, may not do any vacationing until November. After the adjournment of Congress personal affairs will keep here in Washington until October, when she will attend the marriage of her son, Daniel O'Day, and Miss Ida Stadler, in Atlanta. Mr. O'Day was graduated from Princeton several years ago.

Representative O'Day, who lived in Savannah, also the home of Mrs. Lowe, who helped to found the Girl Scout movement, has always been interested in the Girl Scouts, and was one of those who sponsored the waiving of registration fees for those attending the recent Jamboree.

Mrs. Benson, Mrs. Schorr Party Guests

Members of the Absentee Voters' Bureau of the Democratic Women's National Council last night entertained at the headquarters, 1406 G street, in honor of Mrs. Barry T. Benson, recording secretary of the council, and Mrs. Harry G. Schorr, corresponding secretary, both of whom are leaving Washington. Mrs. Schorr is moving permanently to Fleetwood, N. Y., and Mrs. Benson to Calcutta, India.

Mrs. Schorr has been chairman of the New York State unit of the Democratic Absentee Voters' Bureau and is a member of the New York State Democratic Club and the District Democratic League. She also belongs to the Business and Professional Women's Club of Washington and, during the Scout Jamboree, acted as chief operator for their telephone exchange. Before coming to Washington three years ago, she made her home in Westchester County, N. Y.

Mrs. Benson, has been active in the Absentee Voters' Bureau as co-chairman for Texas and has also conducted classes in public speaking within the organization. She sails for India with Mr. Benson on September 7.

The farewell party last night was entirely informal. Among those present were Mrs. Harry A. Dodderidge, president of the council, Mrs. S. Jennings Asbury, director of the bureau; Mrs. Arthur D. Condon, director general; Mrs. Lacey Zapf, Mrs. Francis Sloan, Mrs. Florence Shreve, Mrs. Robert Kirkpatrick Noble, Mrs. Mattie Dunn, Mrs. George Cameron, Mrs. Charles Koenig, Mrs. Laura Lees, Mrs. R. C. Smith, Mrs. Martha McKee, Mrs. Elizabeth Lee, Miss Evelyn Raper, Miss Ruth Hutson, Miss Gertrude Backer, Mrs. Margaret E. Winn.

AUGUST FRIEND-MAKING REDUCTIONS

Q. When is a furniture sale more than a furniture sale?

A. When it's a sale of Mazor Masterpieces.

Bringing the price of Mazor Masterpieces down to near the prices of ordinary furniture is a true accomplishment in value-giving. Every Mazor Masterpiece is marked as low as possible the moment it enters the store. Still further reductions in the face of a rapidly rising market make this sale a genuine opportunity for lovers of furniture beauty. Mazor Masterpieces are in a class by themselves.

Old-Time Square Dance Enjoyed At First Interior Workers Party

Two orchestras played for dancing in two ballrooms last night at the first dance sponsored by the Interior Department Recreation Association. It was given in the activities space of the new building, with several hundred attending.

One orchestra played modern popular airs and the other, a "Hill Billy" band, played for old-time square dances. Miss Evelyn Adams, a member of the committee on arrangements, had been coaching a group of leaders for the old-fashioned steps and others in the crowd joined with enthusiasm. If a few persons swung their partners right when they should have swung them left, it made only slight confusion and even added to the gayety of the occasion.

In addition to the general dancing, there was a "floor show" by Interior Department talent which included tap dances by Betty Hartung and Mary Fulghan as one of the popular features.

Ian Forbes, of the National Park Service, was chairman of the committee, and members included L. E. Geyer, E. E. Gatzin and Miss Marguerite L. Hayes, of the Bureau of Mines; Miss Eleanor Millis and Miss Marion C. Sedberry, of the Bureau of Reclamation; Henry Prager and Mrs. Bernice Norris, of the Division of Grazing; Miss Eva Atwood and Milton R. Tinsley, of the Division of Motion Pictures; Kenfield Bailey and Miss Oneta Lutes, of the Division of Territories; Jack Hennessey and Miss Evelyn Adams, of the General Land Office; C. R. Graham and Miss Myrle Patschke, of the Geological Survey; Mrs. Mary Stack and Edward Stiles, of the National Capital Parks Service; Miss Edith Noyes and John Lang, of the Office of Education; Mrs. Buelah M. Searles and Thomas Hampton, of the Office of Indian Affairs; A. M. Reising of the Office of the Secretary; H. M. Edelstein and H. R. Stinson, of the Office of the Solicitor; Mrs. Leone Graham and J. L. Acuff, of the Public Works Administration, and Michael W. Strauss, assistant to the administrator of the FERA.

The president is Hillory A. Tolson, assistant director of the National Parks Service. First vice president is Charles E. Pynchon, of the Geological Survey; second vice president, Pierce M. Rice, of the General Land Office; secretary, Wesley R. Nelson, of the Bureau of Reclamation; treasurer, E. J. Armstrong, of the Office of Indian Affairs.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

At the Shoreham you can swim in mere trunks with your manly bosom untrammeled . . . But at the Wardman Park the hairy chest is too virile for the gentlefolk, and you must wear a shirt . . . By skillful badgering it's possible (and great fun) to force a New Deal Democrat to admit that Jefferson was really an economic royalist.

• • • •

There are 2,000 on the waiting list for $2-a-month-parking privileges at a big lot off the Mall . . . Which is more than there are on the waiting lists of all the country clubs in the Capital's suburbs . . . It's blond Magnuson, of Washington, who's such a ringer for Gene Raymond, of the movies.

Entranced by oratory as he occupied the Garner throne in the Senate the other day, Senator Clark, of Missouri, got so sleepy that he summoned another Senator to preside . . . D. C. Legion To March as Rally Opens

Reception, Dance Follow Election of Officers Saturday.

The sessions will last three days ending on Saturday with the election of officers. Boasting a membership of 6,800 with a total of 36 posts, the Legion headquarters have arranged elaborate plans which include a parade, banquets, dances, awards and other entertaining features.

The convention opening will be preceded by a parade starting at 7:15 p. m., rain or shine, from Fourth and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. The route of the parade will be up Pennsylvania avenue to Thirteenth north on Thirteenth to New York avenue, west on New York avenue to Fourteenth, north on Fourteenth to K street, west on K street to Connecticut avenue and disbanding after passing the parade headquarters at the Mayflower.

Parade Formation.

Col. J. M. Wainwright, Commandant of Fort Myer, will be grand marshal of the parade. The Legion marshal will be Grover Tribble, of Bunker Hill Post, who will head the second division. The first division will be composed of Regular Army troops; the second division will be composed of the Department Commander Horace W. Lineburg and his staff, with the visiting commanders from nearby States, with their staffs, marching units and bands. The reviewing stand will be located at Farragut Square.

Tonight's session will be called to order by Benjamin Aronsohn, who is convention chairman. He will turn the gavel over to Department Commander Lineburg who will preside throughout the balance of the three nights' sessions. Invocation will be pronounced by the department chaplain, the Rev. Howard S. Snyder, and "America" will be played by the band from the Interat Revenue Posts.

The address of welcome will be delivered by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways for the District, and the reply on behalf of the legion will be made by Commander Lineburg. Awards of legion prizes, music by the champion drum and bugle corps from the Fort Stevens Post, an address by Col. Wainwright, and the address by the principal speaker of the night, J. Fred Johnson, national vice commander of the legion, will complete the program.

Election of Officers.

Tomorrow night the legionnaires will nominate officers for the ensuing year. Thomas Mason, jr., of the Second Division Post, and Porter L. Bush of the Lincoln Post, are expected to run for department commander.

Election of officers will be Saturday, the last day of the convention. Following the adjournment, there will be a reception and ball in honor of the newly elected officers, under the auspices of the legion's honor organization, the Forty and Eight.

The general committee arranging the affair is headed by Benjamin Aronsohn with Grover Tribble as legion marshal of the parade and Ralph Kelly in charge of the convention program. Other members are, police committee, C. C. Schroth, chairman; Arthur Freddette, Alfred Pilgrim and William E. Spicer; badge committee, John J. Mulvey, chairman; Julia Long and Ellis R. King; reviewing stand, George Fox, chairman; Alfred Pilgrim and Fred Money; parade awards, John Gray, chairman; Joseph Giovannoni and Al Sugrue; float committee, William Slattery, chairman; Charles B. Buck, and George Rohrich; seating of delegates, E. W. Luther, chairman; George Rohrich, C. C. Schroth and J. Giovannoni; publicity, George Lee; decorations, Fred Money; supper and dance, R. J. Chaillett, chairman, and Albert Popkins, and the musical committee, under the direction of Richard Viancour.

Driving tests conducted by the club during recent months, according to Burton W. Marsh, A. A. A. safety director, show conclusively women are slipping.

"Brushing chivalry and mythology rudely aside," said Marsh, "these tests have demonstrated that Mr. Average Man is better able to handle the wheel, is equipped with better physical capabilities and is freer from emotional instability than women."

Then he gave the women a break by adding:

Among other things, the test showed men usually hear better, see better, react better and concentrate better than women drivers, said Marsh.

Boy Hit by Train Dies On Way to Hospital

Wilbur Robinson, 15, colored, 1111 V street northwest, was fatally injured by a freight train yesterday on the Barber & Ross siding, Sixth and V streets northeast. He walked into the plant and told workmen he had been struck. Rushed to Casualty Hospital, he was pronounced dead on arrival.

City Park Service Investigates the Death of Two Trees And 'Rotting at the Roots' of Others in Lafayette Area

Water Pumped Away While Cause of Blight Is Being Studied.

National Capital Parks yesterday began an investigation into the death of two large trees in Lafayette Park and the "rotting of the roots" of several others.

In an effort to save the threatened trees until source of the trouble is located, a system for pumping water from roots of the affected specimens is being inaugurated.

C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent, declared he is convinced excessive underground water is the cause of the trouble, but that it has been impossible to determine the source of the water. A magnolia and a beech were lost.

The waterworks system surrounding the park and running through it will be examined for leaks and seepage.

An "I told you so" attitude was taken yesterday by persons who strenuously objected when the park rehabilitation was put under way in 1935 and 1936, they opposed park walk changes, shrubbery and tree transplantings, and the removal of flower beds.

Finnan said that rather than put additional concrete in Lafayette Park, the amount of cement there had been reduced by the program from 75,000 to 69,950 feet.

He pointed out that the upper crust of earth in the historic park had not been turned and worked in 60 years until the joint PWA and WPA project was put under way.

Admittedly worried about the tree losses, however, the superintendent said the work of clearing up the "water mystery" would move rapidly.

A total allotment of $1,959,000 for rehabilitation of Washington's parks and recreation centers has been made since the park project was started.

Historic Lafayette, just across from the White House, was one of the first to taste the changes and "have her face lifted." Her surface was turned, changed, grassed; her walkways changed, and her shrubbery and tree arrangements altered.

None of the dead and dying trees was transplanted because of the program. All of them are old and representative of the fine tree collection the park has from many different States and countries.

"Of course," all trees will be replaced, but our aim is to prevent further losses," Mr. Finnan said.

Safety Crusade Cuts Accidents By 13 in a Week

By Howard F. Wentworth.

As Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, acting superintendent of police, again summoned his district inspectors for a traffic conference yesterday, Washington entered its second "safety week" with a marked decrease in accidents and injuries.

Since August 4, when Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen ordered a coordinated, continuing drive against recklessness, records show a day by day recession in casualties.

A total of 64 persons received minor injuries in the last seven days against 81 the week before—a decrease of 17. Accidents dropped from 227 to 214—a decline of 13.

Will Keep Hammering.

"We mean business," Edwards told his officers yesterday. "We are going to keep hammering with strict enforcement until the battle is won."

He warned motorists that police would not relax their rigid enforcement methods nor accept excuses for flagrant violations. But at the same time, Inspector Edwards cautioned his men against "wholesale arrests" and urged discretion in minor cases.

In spite of the decrease in accidents and injuries, two persons—both small children—have been killed since the drive opened.

With this in mind, Edwards ordered increased patrols of streets where large numbers of children play. He warned parents against permitting youngsters to cross streets unattended and asked for co-operation to safeguard boys and girls during the remaining vacation period.

Delay Angers Citizens.

Residents of Twenty-eighth street northwest, where 4-year-old Richard Levy was recently killed while running from between two parked cars, yesterday assailed an announced plan to "study" their appeal for a parking ban on one side of the thoroughfare.

All essential information pertaining to the problem, said Frank Levy, 2929 Twenty-eighth street, father of the dead child, has been in the hands of traffic authorities for nearly a year. There is no need for an additional survey, he added.

As a part of present efforts to reduce accidents and educate motorists, the Keystone Automobile Club will open a modern safety laboratory at the Bureau of Standards. At 2 p. m. today, the driver testing apparatus will be previewed by official and civic leaders.

D. C. Bloc Votes Five-Day Week To Firefighters

Committee to Report Bill Favorably; Pension Plan Supported.

The House District Committee yesterday voted to favorably report a bill establishing a five-day, 60-hour week in the Fire Department, a measure the Commissioners say will add $500,000 a year to the cost of the municipal government. The firemen now have a six-day, 72-hour week.

The committee also approved a bill for optional retirement of policemen and firemen. First, however, it approved an amendment requiring that the men be at least 55 and have served 20 years before being eligible to retire. As originally drafted, the bill would have permitted retirement after 25 years, regardless of the age.

Representative George J. Bates (Republican), tried in vain to have the committee lay the legislation on the table insisting that the city now facing a $7,000,000 deficit, was in no condition to meet the added expense.

The committee made a favorable report on the Senate bill requiring twice-a-year inspection of automobiles. The motorist would pay 50 cents an inspection. These fees would maintain three testing stations.

Another bill approved would remove the present $100 limitation on judgments against motorists before the traffic director has authority to revoke a permit. Under the terms of another bill approved, the name of the Police Court would be changed to City Court.

Picnic Is Next Week For Transit Employes

The annual picnic of the Capital Transit Co. Employes Association will be held next Thursday at Glen Echo Park and will feature swimming, dancing and amusement rides under the direction of Robert Dougan, chairman of the committee in charge of the outing.

First Antietam Memorial Coin Given to President Roosevelt

Mrs. James Findlay, of Hagerstown, Md., who remembers what a fine looking soldier Oliver Wendell Holmes was when he nursed his battle wound at her mother's home in 1862, yesterday presented the President with the first commemorative coin of the Antietam celebration.

The President, it was said, has a speaking engagement in Washington September 17—the highlight day of the two-week celebration—but Representative Lewis expressed belief that the President might find a way to appear at Sharpsburg or Hagerstown, although if only briefly.

Mrs. Findlay is a daughter of the late Dr. Howard Kennedy and was 10 years old when Lee's army met the Union forces under McClellan on the farmlands of Sharpsburg.

The United States Antietam Celebration Commission yesterday extended authorifiation to all of the 17,000 State and National Banks east of the Mississippi to act as distributors of the 50,000 half dollars minted for the Antietam celebration, which begins September 4 and continues to the seventeenth, when troops from Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia will re-enact the battle.

Instructions have been given the banks for issuance of the coins at the regulation U. S. Mint price of $1.65. The sponsor is the Washington County Historical Society, Hagerstown, Md. The face of the coin shows likenesses of Gen. McClellan and Lee and the bridge that was contested by Burnside and Boombs is on the opposite.

In all, four anniversaries will be celebrated. These are the 200th anniversary of Washington County; the 175th anniversary of Hagerstown; the 150th anniversary of James Rumsey's steamboat (recognized as the first by George Washington), and the seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle of Antietam. Elaborate pageantry has been arranged, one having a cast of 2,800 persons.

Rives Again Seeks Bigger Jail Here

Another plea for expansion of jail quarters was to feature the report of Supt. Thomas M. Rives, District jail head, when it reaches Ray L. Huff, superintendent of District of Columbia penal institutions today.

Overcrowding has featured all of Rives' monthly reports for years. Scarcely a month has passed when he has not told of prisoners being forced to sleep on floors.

Women Pick 9 Candidates For Pay Body

D. C. Retail Store Employes Meet in Labor Auditorium.

Three of Nominees to Sit on Minimum Pay Conference.

Women employes of Washington retail stores last night elected nine of their number as candidates for the District Minimum Wage Board conference. The meeting was held in the Labor Department auditorium. About 100 were present.

Three of those nominated will be selected by the board to represent employes in the nine-member conference which will recommend minimum wages in the retail field. Three others will be named as alternates.

Lucy Keisler, of 1008 East Capitol street.

Henrietta Nunnally, of 3817 Legation street northwest.

Mrs. Anna M. Thornhill, of 1303 Sheridan street northwest; Miss A. E. Milstead, of Hahn's Shoe Store; Martha Huie, of Lansburgh & Bro. Department Store; Miss M. E. Sparks, of Jelleff's, Inc.; Mrs. Mildred Raymond, of 712 Varnum Street northwest; Mrs. Agnes Winters, of 1232 Tenth street northwest.

Board to Set Minimum.

The three members selected by the board will meet with the wage conference, to be composed of three employe representatives, three employer representatives and three representatives of the public. This body will decide on an appropriate minimum wage to be paid shop girls.

The board will then decide upon a final wage and will publish notice of its decision in the daily newspapers. If no objections are raised after 60 days from first publication, their word will become law.

These provisions of the revived law were explained by Arthur L. Schoenthal, labor member of the Minimum Wage Board. The nominations then proceeded.

Effective in January.

As it stands now, any minimum wage for shop girls cannot become effective before January, 1938. Time will have to elapse for the wage conference to meet and for adequate notice to be published in the daily press.

It is expected that later on meetings of other groups of women workers will be called in order to elect representatives.

Separate wage board conferences will be held for each group.

Miss Marie Waite, of the Home Economics Bureau of the Agriculture Department, explained to the shop girls last night the importance of itemizing their various expenses. She distributed questionnaires designed to average the living expenses of working women dependent only upon their own income.

Man Crushed in Press Recovering in Hospital

The condition of Joseph Lochte, 30, who was partially crushed between rollers of a printing press Tuesday night, was reported as "good" at Casualty Hospital late last night.

Lochte, who lives at 326 A street northeast, was injured while working as a pressman for the National Capital Press, Third and N streets northeast.

Theater Bills For New Week Feature Music

"Mr. Dodd Takes the Air," the film version of another of Clarence Budington Kelland's amusing stories—this time having a radio background—will be the screen attraction at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. In this subject, by the author of "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," the principal role is taken by Kenny Baker, the youthful vocalist, supported by Frank McHugh, Jane Wyman and a considerable additional cast and ensemble. Kenny Baker will be recalled as the singer on the Jack Benny radio hour and for his personal stage appearances in Washington. The Earle's stage bill for the new week will be headlined by Bill "Bojangles" Robinson, greatest of the living tap dancers, and will include other acts of note.

Alice Faye, the Ritz Brothers, Don Ameche, Louise Hovick, Charles Winninger, Tip, Tap and Toe and others of stage and screen renown will be seen in the principal roles of "You Can't Have Everything," the new Twentieth Century-Fox filmusical, announced as chief feature of the screen bill at Loew's Capitol Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. A large supporting cast and beauty chorus, aided by Rubinoff and his violin, also will be seen and heard in this comedy-romance of the theater and playwriting. The stage bill for the new week will be headlined by Jimmy Dorsey and His Orchestra, one of the better known stage bands, with whom a number of specialists also will appear.

Comedy will reign at the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater next week, beginning tomorrow, when the feature of the screen bill will be "Marry the Girl," in which the costellar roles are played by Hugh Herbert and Mary Boland, supported by a long and clever cast of funmakers. This is the first teaming of Herbert and Boland and should result in an explosive lot of fun. The bill will be augmented by the usual short-reel subjects and full newsreel.

Paul Muni and Luise Rainer will continue for a second week on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, beginning tomorrow, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of Pearl S. Buck's novel of "The Good Earth." This mammoth subject, presented as a road show attraction at the National Theater last season, now is being offered at popular prices. Charles Grapewin, Walter Connolly and Tilly Losch are important members of the supporting cast. The short subjects also will be held over.

Edward Arnold, Frances Farmer, Cary Grant, Jack Oakie and their numerous and competent supporting cast are to be held over for a second week at the RKO-Keith Theater in "The Toast of New York." This rousing picture visualizes a story of the early days of Manhattan's emergence as a money center and involves several characters who were instrumental in founding some of America's richest dynasties. An added attraction for the second week of the run will be the latest issue of the "March of Time." Three topics of vital public interest are covered in the new release of "Time."

Variety of the most intriguing sort is said to characterize the bill of short subjects assembled for the Trans-Lux Theater for the new week, beginning tomorrow. A big Hollywood party is one of the pictured featurettes; "A Day in Venice" is another. Complete newsreel coverage of the world and selected cartoon comedies will round out the diversified program.

"Saratoga," the last picture in which Jean Harlow appears, and with Clark Gable as costar, will be the feature of the screen bill beginning tomorrow at Loew's Columbia Theater and continuing throughout the ensuing week. Lionel Barrymore, Walter Pidgeon, Una Merkel, Frank Morgan and Cliff "Ukulele Ike" Edwards are a few of the members of the supporting cast. Short-reel subjects and "Events of the Day" will complete the program.

H. G. Wells' fantastic romantic comedy of "The Man Who Could Work Miracles" will be the major feature of the bill at the Rialto Theater for the week begining next Sunday. The title role in this amusing film is played by Roland Young, last seen locally in "Topper," a story which this one is said to resemble in general texture. An all-British cast will be seen in the star's support. Short subjects and newsreel will round out the bill.

The Little Theater announces a revival of "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" as chief feature of its bill for the week beginning next Sunday. In this splendid comedy-drama the principal roles are taken by Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur, with a stellar cast in support. The bill also will include short subjects and newsreel.

The vacation period and recent hot weather have occasioned an over-capacity boom in attendance at Glen Echo Park, Washington's free admission amusement center. With the Crystal Pool, Spanish Garden Ballroom and more than 50 other diverting features in full operation, there is nothing in the way of amusement tastes that Glen Echo can not appease.

John Carradine Is a Real Artist

When audiences see John Carradine painting during several scenes of "Danger—Love at Work," the 20th Century-Fox picture featuring Jack Haley and Ann Sothern in which he portrays a surrealist artist, they shouldn't get the idea that, just because the canvas is turned away from the cameras, the actor is only going through the usual brush-and-palette motions.

Born in Greenwich Village, the cadaverous Carradine once made his living as a sculptor and quick-sketch artist.

Hobbies.

James Dunn, co-star of Universal's "We Have Our Moments," has discovered the fountain of youth if hobbies help to keep a person young. He has four—airplanes, dogs, guns and horses.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showsheps

Charles E. Kurtzman, Veteran Showman, Is Slated As the New Resident Manager of Capitol Theater

Here From St. Louis, Successor to Gene Ford Knows Washington From Earlier Contacts; Ford to Concentrate on "Going Native," Booked with Ace Film; H. G. Wells Filmed Wrong Story First; Roadside Is Flourishing; Notes of the Theater.

AT ANY rate, it is pleasant to have an old friend come back to town. If that is a little too cryptic, then you should know that announcement was made yesterday from the Loew executive offices in Washington that Charles E. Kurtzman has been appointed resident manager of Loew's Capitol Theater to succeed Gene Ford, who moves up to new responsibilities with the Loew organization in New York.

BELL.

Mr. Kurtzman, as a matter of fact, already is in Washington and has been for a day or two—long enough to lease an apartment at 2029 Connecticut avenue, where he and Mrs. Kurtzman will make their home in the Capital. He returns to earlier local contacts with a long list of successful managerial achievements behind him.

I say he "returns to local contacts" because Charlie Kurtzman is no stranger to Washington and the Capitol Theater. Back in the days of the Fox tenure of the F street property, when the then Fox Theater was under the management of David Idzal—in Detroit these many years now—Mr. Kurtzman was divisional manager of the chain of Fox theaters in which the local Fox was an important link. In this capacity he was a frequent visitor to the National Capital. But that is getting ahead of the story.

Charles E. Kurtzman was born in San Francisco and graduated from the campus of the University of California to the newsrooms of the San Francisco Press, where he was a "leg man," who wrote the theater gossip of the Golden Gate city for Sime Silverman's Variety as a sideline. It was this avocational stint that first brought the "smell of the theater" to his eager nostrils. He soon left newspaper work to become assistant publicist—press agent to you—for all Paramount theaters on the Pacific Coast. He remained with Paramount for several years, finally attaining the post of Paramount divisional manager on the West Coast.

This important assignment was relinquished for the divisional managership of all Fox theaters East of the Mississippi River. Included in the duties of this considerable job was the operation of the Roxy Theater, when the Roxy was the Roxy and the late Samuel L. Rothafel, for whom it was named, left this first of the modern "cathedrals of the motion picture" to cast his lot with the Rockefeller Radio City development.

In 1932 Mr. Kurtzman returned to Paramount and was identified with that company's Chicago and Ohio operations. When Paramount found itself in the throes of reorganization, he teamed with the former general manager of Fox Films in the organization of the Fanchon and Marco theaters in St. Louis. He has been in St. Louis ever since—until this week when he arrived in Washington to take up his new, but still familiar, duties here.

Charlie Kurtzman is recognized throughout the motion picture industry as an efficient and energetic executive and that rara avis of show business, "a right guy." His particular hobbies are handball and baseball. The American League Baseball Club was one of his accounts in St. Louis when he conducted an advertising agency in addition to his theatrical activities.

About two years ago Charlie married the former Mickey Halloran, of St. Louis, who accompanies him to Washington. They are still practically on their honeymoon. That will give you a rough idea.

Incidentally, it may be observed in passing that Mr. Kurtzman will assume his duties at Loew's Capitol immediately, thus permitting Gene Ford to devote his entire attention to the staging of the "Going Native" revue, scheduled to occupy the stage at the Capitol a week from tomorrow. The screen attraction for this red-letter week will be Shirley Temple in "Wee Willie Winkie," in which the diminutive actress shares honors—as much as honors ever can be shared with her in the cast—with Victor McLaglen. That, ladeez and gempmun, should make a week.

• • • •

One wonders if H. G. Wells did not permit the wrong story to be filmed first. While the two are poles apart in treatment and that intangible quality known as "audience interest," after previewing "The Man Who Could Work Miracles"—as was done yesterday afternoon in the private projection room of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film Exchange, under the gracious auspices of Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller and Manager Abe Tolkins, of the Rialto—the thought suggests itself that the same author's "Things to Come" would have had added forcefulness had it been released as a sequel to the present film.

"Things to Come," it will be remembered, dealt with the building of a social and economic Utopia that so transcended the comprehension of the casual spectator that it became merely a spectacular study in fantastic imagination and studio craftsmanship. "The Man Who Could Work Miracles" gets down to a much more human level by basing its plea for a better and more equitable world upon the experiences of a submerged little Englishman, a clerk in a small department store, who suddenly discovers that he has been endowed with the overwhelming power of achieving instantly anything that he may command to happen.

We see first the Giver of Power, ruminating among the stars of the firmament upon the weaknesses of the pitiful little living things peopling a minor planet he is studying below him. Against contrary counsel, he decides to make the experiment of bestowing upon one of these ineffectual creatures complete power over his world—just to see what he would do with it. His choice of a subject for his experiment falls upon little Mr. George McWhirter Fotheringay, who first discovers his gift in an obscure "pub," where he has stopped for a nightcap mug of ale.

Astounded at his sudden acquisition of an amazing faculty, Mr. Fotheringay at first can see no further possibilities for his power than the music halls. Then he falls, in turn, under the persuasive arguments of a store associate, the proprietor, a banker, a cleric and a soldier, all of whom wish to turn his miraculous gift to their own profitable accounts. Finally penetrating this purpose, Mr. Fotheringay decides to rebuild the world on his own. The outcome affords Mr. Wells a fine opportunity for one of his speculative bursts of prophecy as to the future of the universe. It is here, it seems to me, that "Things to Come" might have picked up the thread of thought as a sequel.

However that may be, "The Man Who Could Work Miracles," as produced by Alexander Korda for London Films and released on this side through United Artists, is an engrossing and, at the same time amusing, entertainment. A better selection than Roland Young could not possibly have been made for the title role. He is supported by a British cast of the first rank that aids materially in entitling this novel subject to top rating among contemporary releases.

It will be more fully reviewed next Monday morning, following its Sunday opening at the Rialto. In the meantime, it will be enough to say that "The Man Who Could Work Miracles" is an all-around fine job of picture-making.

• • • •

While all of these diverse developments are taking place in the cinema, the Roadside Theater is bulging along with capacity business in attendance on "The Haunted Mill," another of its melodramatic exhumations that has "caught on" with a vengeance, to coin a phrase. Standing-room patronage greeted the second night of this old-school thriller Tuesday. The novelty of the casting probably has something to do with it—the villain of the piece is a blond and the hero a dark young man. That is contrary to all precedent in this sort of business!

• • • •

Meteorological Note.

I suggest that the "Man Who Could Work Miracles" be given a place out at the Weather Bureau and set to work on this humidity!

Young Players to Swing the Fringe

Hollywood's younger set is casting a hearty vote for fringe trimming for late summer and early fall fashions. Betty Grable, Paramount player opposite Buddy Rogers in "This Way Please," is planning a fall street dress of black crepe with a deep "over-hem" of black silk fringe. The bodice of the dress is draped into a soft, high neckline and Miss Grable's turban of black velvet will have a side-trimming of the same silk fringe as used on the frock.

Recall Actor From Real Estate Office

Discovered in a business office in the center of Hollywood that acclaimed him as he red-headed, freckle-faced kid star of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," "Daddy Long Legs," "Penrod" and other cinema milestones, Wesley Barry was given a small role in "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" at Twentieth Century-Fox.

Barry plays the part of messenger boy in the romantic drama starring Loretta Bruce. After his cinematic star faded, Barry turned to real estate with marked success.

Add Fun to New Screen Comedy

When "Marry the Girl" is presented on the screen at the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater for the week beginning tomorrow, with Hugh Herbert and Mary Boland heading the cast, additional interest will be lent the humorous goings-on by Frank McHugh and the piquantly attractive Carol Hughes, pictured above in a moment of obvious complacence. Alan Mowbray and Mischa Auer also are important members of the comedy cast.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Aug. 11.—Settin' Around (RKO): Remember that old catch line—"which came first, the chicken or the egg?" Well here is a Hollywood puzzle just as confusing — do stars gradually assume the characteristics of a studio, or does a studio absorb the characteristics of its stars? I cannot answer the riddle, but I am always aware of the individual atmosphere which clings to each of Hollywood's picture plants—and to its contract stars as a group. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, for instance, is haughty, rather contemptuous—as insular as a British country squire. Twentieth Century is lusty, purse-proud, collegiate. This studio is just friendly. Almost everyone, from the hotels executive to the lowliest laborer, wears a smile.

ANNE SHIRLEY.

Eat lunch in the RKO cafe and you will find yourself caught in a cross-fire of good-natured greetings and banter. Ginger Rogers sits in a corner, waving to everyone she knows—and Ginger knows everyone. Anne Shirley scampers about like a friendly kitten. Fred Astaire and his gang, 20 strong around a table meant to accomodate 10, keep the place in an uproar with their shouts of laughter. When Ann Southern comes in, everyone shouts "Hi-yah, Annie," and she shouts a "Hi-yah" back at them. Jack Oakie and Joe Penner wander from table to table, clapping people on the back and leaving a wake of laughter behind them. Even Katharine Hepburn unbends and becomes a good fellow, well met.

The same spirit reigns everywhere on the lot. I like to visit RKO. It is an adventure back into the old, friendly Hollywood of prefefficiency days.

Nino Martini is due for a surprise when he attends the preview of "Music for Madame" and hears the audience howl at his most serious lines. He is being framed. The director wanted him to mispronounce American slang, and, knowing that Nino is far too proud of his painfully asquired English to butcher a word knowingly, took the whole company in on his conspiracy to convince Signor Martini that the mispronunciations are correct. Today, watching him make a scene, I had to fight for mirth-control when he called another actor a "Big Shoot." No one else cracked a smile—and the frozen mugs had me guessing until the director took me aside and explained the frame-up.

The set where RKO's football epic, "Saturday's Heroes," is being filmed is a mad house. Football sets always are, for the college gridders who are recruited for the big game scene look on picture making as a picnic designed for their special benefit. The boys in this picture have a new gag. One of them brags that he can lift three men at once—"you and you" —indicating two fellow plotters—"and you!"—pointing out the selected victim.

All three "yous" are then stretched on the floor, the fall guy in the middle. Before he catches on, the husky on either side has a scissors hold on one of his legs and he is powerless. And then comes the indignity—a pitcherful of ice water poured down his pant leg. They caught Jack Oakie the other day and for once the Oakie laugh was very forced.

Visited the "Forty Naughty Girls'" set—and found the beautiful 40—blondes, brunettes and redheads; big girls, little girls, medium-sized girls—"dressed for their big chorus number and lolling about the set waiting for their call. Yes, sir; tired business men should put this picture on your "can see" list. ZaSu Pitts and James Gleason are co-starred—and poor ZaSu, having made the mistake of announcing that she is writing a cookbook, is now taking an unmerciful ribbing. Everyone in the troupe keeps his mind off the heat by thinking up goofy recipes for her. Jimmie Gleason's contributions today were entitled "Pitts' Pitted Pippins," "ZaSu's Zestful Zatkas" and "Pitts' Pickled Pickerel." There are times when everyone in this town seems pixilated.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, Aug. 11.

THAT "DOROTHY THOMPSON Candidate for President" story, which made the front pages on Friday, broke simultaneously with the inaugural of Miss Thompson's new radio series. The stunt was conceived by her husband, Novelist Sinclair Lewis, and her press agent, Irving Mansfield.... Sam Rossoff, now in Saratoga, has decided to avoid publicity and to remain completely in the background. That's why he's limiting his dicetable bets to a mere $500 a roll....Konrad Bercovici is now recuperating and boasting to Hollywood about the merits of "For Immediate Release," his son Rion's first novel—which will be released on August 24. That date will be the twentieth anniversary of Bercovici's first book, "Crimes of Charity."

SOME TIME AGO a dancer approached George Hamid, the booking agent for outdoor amusements, who was arranging productions at the New Jersey State Fair. The dancer stated that she was on her way to Europe and would like a job at the Fair when she returns...."I'm afraid I wouldn't be able to use you," Hamid told her. "We're trying to get only big-name acts. So unless you do something spectacular abroad...Well, if you make a name for yourself, see me when you return."...That dancer was Jean De Koven, the American who, according to the press association reports, is now "missing" in Paris.

MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT picnicked at the Heywood Brouns. The other picnickers, Westbrook Pegler, F. P. A. and Quentin Reynolds, are disappointed because she didn't report it in "My Day"..."There's one question I would like to ask you," F. P. A. told her. "What do your sons call the President?"...Mrs. R. replied: "Pop!"

BILL ROBINSON who is providing an education for Roy Wright, one of the liberated Scottsboro defendants, presented a watch to Samuel Leibowitz, the attorney, as a token of gratitude...Tip, Tap & Toe, the dancers who were featured in George White's Scandals and who provide the only first-rate entertainment in "You Can't Have Everything," have been signed for the new Cotton Club show...Beryl Wallace, whose name has been linked for many years with Earl Carroll's, was replaced in "The Women" by Jacqueline Susan, daughter of Artist Robert Susan. Miss Susan won a Beauty Contest award from Earl Carroll five years ago.

PAULA STONE, who will appear in the Dick Merrill picture, "Atlantic Flight," raised a rumpus at the studio because the candid-camera men snapped her with her dress around her head....Merrill, incidentally, was to have been the subject of a Sat. Eve. Post article by T. C. McClary, who was to stress the safety of long-distance flying. Halfway through the writing chore, Merrill made a national tour, and so McClary pursued him to California, where the first rough draft was completed—on the day Amelia Earhart disappeared!

WARNER BROS. will screen "Swing Your Lady"—which concerns female wrestlers—and are trying to locate Lois de Fee, the Broadway Amazon night club bouncer, whose nose recently was broken by Lew Brice....Although Vernon Duke is now in Hollywood working on the score for the Goldwyn Follies, the only name mentioned in the screen-credits for writing the music will be George Gershwin's. Duke will not contribute any tunes. His work will be confined to touching up the uncompleted melodies Gershwin wrote....The British newspaper men assigned to the yacht races at Newport complained to their home offices that the hotel bills all were jacked up—because the tavern owners felt that Britain never will challenge for the America's Cup again.

NORMA SHEARER will have the Lynn Fontanne role in the film version of "Idiot's Delight"...MGM is worried about the whereabouts of Clark Gable. They've wired their N. Y. office to try and locate him. Gable, when in town, always stays at the New Weston...Jerome Weidman yesterday completed his adaptation of "I Can Get It for You Wholesale," which Jed Harris will produce...Louis Bromfield, who just came back to America but returns to France today for two months, liked it so much that he cabled his children: "This is great. Get in on it!"

Traffic Expert.

When Robert Kent asked Rochelle Hudson how she happened to win the sailboat race at Long Beach in Russell Simpson's (not the film actor, but the fruit magnate) boat, the leading lady of "Look Out, Mr. Moto" explained she was the "best keeper out of the way" who ever assisted Simpson.

Wants Rest.

With the completition of Universal's "As Good as Married," featuring John Boles, Doris Nolan, Walter Pidgeon and Tala Birell, Pidgeon has asked for a short vacation. He has made three pictures in rapid succession and feels the need of a little relaxation.

Lives, Learns.

The Washington Post Sports

Rippy Bows In 1st Round Of Tourney

Loses to Californian by 5 and 4; Oliveri Wins Opening Match.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Aug. 11.—Favorites toppled like tenpins today as a dwindling field punched through first and second rounds of the national public links golf championship.

Enough top fighters remained in the running, however, to make it a free-for-all battle as the varied squad of clerks, mechanics, factory workers, college students and whatnot carried their sharp shooting abilities into tomorrow's two match-play rounds.

Chief among today's casualties were a former champion and last year's co-medalist and runner-up. The long Harding Park course, a par 72 layout, well trapped and lined by trees, caused the downfall of Carl Kauffmann, Pittsburgh, who won the title in 1927, 1928 and 1929. He was ousted in the first round by a visitor from Hawaii, Alex Muragin, city champion of Honolulu.

The latter clinched it on the twenty-second by curling past a partial stymie for a 20-foot putt after Kauffmann had taken the last three holes of the regular round to even up the match.

Claude Rippy, Washington, D. C., clerk, bowed out, also in the first round, before the brilliant stroking of young Phil Gordon, Oakland, 5 and 4. Gordon was 3 up at the ninth with a 34, two under par.

He was one up at the ninth with a 37, one above par, and finished the match a stroke on the long side of standard figures. His first nine 34 in the initial round gave him a 3-up lead at the time.

Muragin, after putting Kauffmann out of competition, came back for an unexpected victory over Frank Russ, of Alameda, Calif., 5 and 4.

Sopwith Improved; Stricken on Yacht

Block Island, R. I., Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Confined to bed with colitis aboard his private yacht in New Harbor, the condition of T. O. M. Sopwith, unsuccessful America's Cup challenger, tonight was reported "considerably improved."

Spiked by a Pal, Travis Examines His Wound

Yanks Trim Bosox Twice; Widen Lead

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 11.—The New York Yankees' murderers' row turned back the challenge of the second-place Red Sox in the American League race today with a double-header victory that stretched their pace-setting margin to 11½ games.

They outlasted Tom Yawkey's three-million-dollar collection in a 14-inning thriller to take the opener 8 to 5 and then clubbed four flingers for a 10-to-4 victory in the nightcap, which was cut to seven innings by darkness.

Although it was a dogfight all the way, the Red Sox were on the defensive from the first inning of the opener, when Joe DiMaggio walloped his thirty-third homer of the season, until the Yankee's put on a six-run splurge in the sixth inning of the nightcap to break up the proceedings.

A crowd of 36,127, one of the largest week-end gatherings ever in Fenway Park, turned out to see the Yankees stretch their current winning streak to ten straight, and continue the runaway they have been making of the American League race for the past two weeks. Altogether, the New York swat squad landed on six Boston pitching hopefuls for 29 hits, 16 in the opener off Lefty Grove and Jack Wilson, and 13 in the abbreviated nightcap at the expense of Buck Newson, Fred Ostermueller, Al Thomas and Ted Olson.

Rival Defeats Betty Jacob in Tennis Final

Molly Thompson, the sturdy Chevy Chase Playground miss, yesterday achieved the triumph she seemed so certain of capturing on Tuesday by soundly trouncing blond Betty Jacob, of Montrose, 6—1, 6—3, to win the Department of Playgrounds junior girls' tennis championship.

Stroking the ball crisply and accurately, Miss Thompson quickly took the lead on her slightly built opponent and left little doubt as to her superiority. The sharp forehand strokes that had been Miss Jacob's forte in the Tuesday match, halted after two sets because of her illness, were wild and out of control during most of the match.

When she finally got them in hand, Miss Thompson, confident and clever, was able to return them consistently. For the most part, however, Miss Thompson was content to keep the ball in play and score on Betty's errors.

Their rivalry will be renewed today in the doubles finals at Chevy Chase at 10 o'clock. Molly will team with Margo Mink, of Chevy Chase, and Betty with Harriet Gordon, of Montrose.

Ferrell Hurls Route; Travis Slightly Hurt

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

They slugged across some runs for Wes Ferrell yesterday—not many, but enough—and the loose-jointed right-hander, whose presence on the mound is usually the signal for the Nats to stop hitting, ushered Washington to a third straight victory over the Athletics.

Joe Kuhel was the guy who presented Ferrell and the Nats with an early batch of runs that permitted 'em to beat the A's, 5 to 4. The southpaw first baseman who connects for a home run every so often, connected with one in the first inning with a fine disregard for a young gale that was blowing toward the plate.

He tagged one of young Bud Thomas' pitches at a time when two of his pals were champing restlessly on the bases and it sailed handsomely over the high rightfield wall to climax a four-run uprising in that first inning.

Thomas Suddenly Reforms.

This young Thomas, who graduated from the Washington sandlots into the big leagues a half-dozen years ago and then spent four years in the minors, suddenly reformed after that first inning and pitched four frames of utterly hitless ball but the A's could get only one run for him in the interim.

And then, all of a sudden, they reared up and bashed out three of their seven hits during the juicy seventh inning when they scored three runs and had the tying run on base before Ferrell brought 'em to a dead stop.

Washington's league-leading hitter, Cecil Travis, didn't hurt his .385 batting average any; in fact, he lifted it to .386, but he hurt his foot in a collision with Buddy Lewis on a ball hit toward third base and was forced from the game with an ugly spike wound low on his ankle.

Before that he had made a hit in two times at bat. Travis' wound is not serious enough to keep him out of action today, the Nats' club physician opined.

Score Four in Opener.

Washington crowded four of its eight hits off Thomas and Herman Fink into that fruitful first inning when they came up with four runs. They greeted Thomas with all the enthusiasm reserved for doddering old rich uncles, Almada, Lewis and Travis bashing line-drive singles into rightfield.

But one run was lost when Almada was out at third attempting to take two bases on Lewis' blow. Al Simmons rammed a fly to deep center to drive in the first run and after Stone drew a walk, Kuhel mopped up with his well-spanked four-master over the wall.

The A's first run was almost a gratuitous affair, eventuating from a ludicrous double by Pitcher Thomas after Peters had drawn a walk. Al Simmons was poised for the catch of Thomas' ball when his feet flew from under him on the wet turf and he attempted in vain to make the catch while in a sitting position.

What ultimately proved to be the winning run was scored by the Nats in the sixth when Johnny Mihalic, of Washington's line of slugging shortstops, thumped a two-bagger to the base of the left field wall after relieving Travis. He got home, after Simmons pushed him to third with an infield single, when Stone forced Simmons at second.

Macks' Runs Doubtful.

Those three runs that narrowed the Nats' lead to 5-4 and put the A's back in the ball game in the seventh inning were not exactly honest affairs. Brucker drew a walk and was safe at third on Peters' single only because Buddy Lewis dropped Almada's perfect throw. Peters dashed to second on the play and thus both were in a position to score on Newsome's drooping double that dropped at Simmons' feet in short left.

Wally Moses prolonged the rally with a single to center that scored Newsome but at that point Ferrell called a dead halt, retiring Finney on a short fly. Brother Rick helped him over the hump, when he threw out Moses on an attempt to steal.

After that, Ferrell didn't take any chances. In fact, the A's never saw first base in those last two innings. It was a pretty good ball game.

With Shirley Povich

If there is any lingering doubt about the scene of the 1937 World Series battling it is no fault of the Yankees and Cubs who are boiling along in their respective leagues at such a pace that New York betting commissioners no longer are quoting penant odds against the two teams.

The Yankees practically won the penant yesterday when they threw a double licking into the latest of their challengers, the Boston Red Sox. The Red Sox, late possessors of a 12-game winning streak and counted the most serious late-season threat to the Yanks, tonight are 11½ games to the rear of the league leaders.

That has been the Yankees' habit all season—overpowering the second-place team in every hand-to-hand clash. In early season affairs with first the Detroit Tigers and later the Cleveland Indians, the Yankees rose in all their might to dispose of those challenges and when the White Sox became ebullient and threatened to make a fight out of it, the Yankees beat them, too.

• • • •

The Yanks haven't fattened their winning percentage purely against the second-division clubs. They have beaten the Red Sox eight times in ten battles, they have taken 11 out of 18 from the Tigers and can show 10 victories in 18 clashes with the White Sox. Cleveland has been as pushover, the Yankees winning 12 of 16.

• • • •

In the other league, the Cubs have not been quite so consistent and actually show a deficit against the fourth-place Pirates who hold a 7-6 edge in 13 clashes with the league leaders. But against the teams that count—the Giants and Cardinals—the Cubs have rolled up a terrific edge with 21 victories against 8 losses.

• • • •

As certain as the probability that the Yankees will win the pennant are indications that they will be a top-heavy betting favorite against any team which happens to be representing the National League in the world series. Not since 1926 have the Yankees lost in a world series.

• • • •

They have been in 18 world series since that day in '26, when old Pete Alexander shuffled out of the bull pen to strike out Tony Lazzeri with the bases full and swing the seventh game of the series to the Cardinals, and 16 times they have beaten the National League standard bearers.

• • • •

The Yankees were back in the world series picture in 1927, when they mopped up the Pirates in four straight games, winning the decisive game, you remember, when John Miljus unloosed a story-book wild pitch, and in 1928 the Yanks obtained sweet revenge on the Cardinals.

• • • •

They won that 1928 series in four straight games, too, and then were out of the series picture for three years while Simmons, Foxx, Grove, et al. were winning three straight pennants for the Athletics. But in 1932 when the Yanks took on the Cubs, it was another four-straight victory for Ruppert's sluggers.

• • • •

Thus, the Yankees compiled the phenomenal record of winning three world series in 12 straight games and only mildly did their record suffer last fall against the Giants when the series went six games with the Yanks winning, 4 to 2.

• • • •

Manager Joe McCarthy can appreciate American League power because he was at the helm of the Cubs back in 1930, when the slugging staged that now-famous ten-run eighth inning to beat the Cubs in the world series of that year.

• • • •

And Charley Grimm, if he leads his Cubs into this fall's series against the Yankees, will never be able to make the claim that he didn't know what to expect. Because Grimm was managing the Cubs back in 1932 when the Yankee big guns, Lou Gehrig particularly, overpowered 'em in four straight games.

• • • •

In fact, methinks there is a fair chance that the Yankees will enter the 1937 world series on the short end of the longest odds that ever prevailed in a world series.

Dickey Is Fined.

Balestri Holds Stroke Lead In Typo's Golf

Baltimore, Aug. 11.—Joe Balestri, of Washington, clung to a one-stroke lead in the Union Printers International Golf Association tourney here today, but shared the day's honors with Ed Gabelman, of Cincinnati, two-time association titleholder.

Balestri turned in a card of 79 for the third 18-hole round of the 72-hole test for a 54-hole total of 238. Gableman rounded the three-quarter mark in 76 today, six over par, for the best card of the tourney. His 54-hole total is 239.

With Gabelman heading the printers' trophy fight, the Cincinnati newspaper compositor has an excellent chance of retiring the Hagen trophy, which must be won three times for permanent possession.

Ed Merkle, of Washington, the defending champion, had trouble today and finished with an 82 and a total of 245, seven strokes behind Balestri. John Klein, Lancaster, Pa., another early pacemaker, carded an 83 and a 54-hole total of 244.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH FINANCE, $17.20, $7.00, $3.00; SOCIAL ERROR, $4.80, $2.40; ZEVANAID, $2.20.

HIGH FINANCE followed along in closest pursuit of the early pace established by ZEVANAID, went to the front when the pacemaker began shortening strides and drew out in the last sixteenth. SOCIAL ERROR was restrained for the first three furlongs, moved up on the inside when making her effort and closed gamely, although unable to reach the winner. ZEVANAID went into a long early lead, faltering in the last furlong.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:50. Off 2:51. Winner, Mrs. F. C. Dunn's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COYA, $11.60, $5.80, $4.20; KENTUCKY EAGLE, $11.20, $5.20; CHARMED EYES, $4.00.

COYA, under steadying restraint while following the pace, moved up gamely in the stretch, wore down the leaders inside the last furlong and held safe the closing bid of KENTUCKY EAGLE. The latter came stoutly on the outside through the stretch. CHARMED EYES forced the pace of HI SUGAR, went to the front in the stretch and weakened slightly in the last sixteenth under punishment.

DAILY DOUBLE, HIGH FINANCE AND COYA, PAID $143.00.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 3:21. Off 3:24. Winner, W. C. Weant's ch. m. (5), by Misstep—My Premier. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $675; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14 1-5.

SAINT PIERRE	(Craig)	105	3	4	3^{nk}	$5^{1½}$	5^{1}	6	15.60

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS PREMIER, $22.40, $8.80, $4.60; DREEL, $4.80, $3.60; LADY BEWITHUS, $4.40.

MISS PREMIER was slightly restrained until leaving the backstretch, moved up to dispute the command with LADY BEWITHUS, wore the pacemaker down after passing the furlong pole, drawing out in the sixteenth. DREEL began moving up in the last five-sixteenths and finished with good courage. LADY BEWITHUS gained a prominent position in the opening sixteenth, disputed the early lead with ROUGH PARTY, cut over after rounding the far turn, forcing ROUGH PARTY to take up. She drew clear, but was unable to keep pace in the closing drive.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:53. Off 3:56. Winner, Coward and Coffey's b. g. (5), by St. James—Feminist. Trained by R. A. Coward. Value to winner, $675; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:40 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ST. MORITZ, $3.80, $3.00, $2.20; LAMBS WOOL, $6.20, $3.60; STARWICK, $3.00.

ST. MORITZ went to the front at once, was rated along under snug restraint for the first six furlongs, drawing out steadily in the last three-sixteenths. LAMBS WOOL, in nearest chase of the winner from the start, made a determined bid to get to the front down the backstretch, but was not good enough, although continuing willingly to the end. STARWICK, restrained until nearnig the far turn, moved up gamely, although unable to improve her position in the closing test.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $5,000 added. The Governor's Handicap. For 2-year-olds. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:28. Off 4:31½. Winner, Aeolian Stable's ch. f. (2), by Don Leon—Myrtle Bell. Trained by J. G. Wagnon. Net value to winner, $4,330; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $250. Time, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DONNA LEONA, $12.80, $6.40, $3.80; STAGE BEAUTY, $11.80, $4.80; DEEP END (entry), $3.00.

DONNA LEONA, away fast, was taken under steadying reserve while being rated back of the pace for the first six furlongs, moved up steadily on the outside in the last five-sixteenths, responded gamely to urging and wearing down STAGE BEAUTY in the last sixteenth, was clear at the end. STAGE BEAUTY went into a good lead in the opening quarter mile, increased her advantage around the turn and despite being placed to punishment, was unable to cope with the closing challenge of the winner. DEEP END, quickest to begin, was forwardly placed the entire trip.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 5:01. Off 5:03. Winner, J. H. Whitney's b. c. (2), by Pairway—Flying Fish. Trained by W. J. Norton. Value to winner, $675; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—UPSTREAM, $7.00, $4.20, $2.80; WEARY FLOWER, $7.80, $4.60; SCOTS GUARD, $3.20.

UPSTREAM was away slowly and badly outpaced until leaving the backstretch, began moving up in the last five-sixteenths and wearing down the leaders inside the last furlong, was going away at the end. WEARY FLOWER followed along in near pursuit of the pace, gained command nearing the stretch and held on well to the end, although unable to go along with the winner when challenged. SCOTS GUARD came willingly in the last quarter mile.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:32. Off 5:34. Winner, Mrs. W. H. Canes' b. g. (9), by Hourless—Martin Byrd. Trained by L. A. Brusie. Value to winner, $675; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:41.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STONE MARTIN, $7.00, $4.20, $3.20; PARALDA, $4.60, $3.60; CREDULOUS, $4.20.

STONE MARTIN went to the front at once, was taken under reserve straightening out on the backstretch, moved up on the inside nearing the half mile, fought it out willingly with PARALDA for the command all the entire half mile and outlasted the latter at the end. PARALDA was prominent all the way and fought it out with good energy to the close. CREDULOUS worked his way up steadily after rounding the far turn and came willingly on the outside through the stretch run.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 6:05. Off 6:06. Winner, Mrs. M. J. O'Brien's b. m. (7), by Prince of Bourbon—Mercia. Trained by J. Woods Garth 2d. Value to winner, $675; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:40.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KINDACORN, $12.00, $6.60, $3.80; JOLYON, $11.00, $5.20; MR. BUN, $3.20.

KINDACORN was never far from the pace, moved up gamely when reaching the stretch, wore down JOLYON, drawing out in the last furlong. JOLYON went to the front before reaching the backstretch, was rated along under slight restraint and held on well to the end, although unable to stave off the closing challenge of the winner. MR. BUN moved up gamely leaving the backstretch and finished going gamely.

Wightman Cup Player Beaten In East Tennis

By the Associated Press.

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The United States Wightman cup team selections received a severe jolt today as the women competitors in the Eastern grass courts tennis championships advanced to the semi-final round before rain put a halt to play in mid-afternoon.

Gracyn Wheeler, of Los Angeles, No. 4 in the national ranking but not named to the squad for next week's matches with England, rallied to eliminate Dorothy May Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., 20-year-old youngster who was selected to fill the sixth place, 6—4, 7—9, 8—6.

Gaining the semi-final brackets together with Miss Wheeler were Alice Marble, national champion from San Francisco; Mme. Sylvia Henrotin of France, the defending title-holder, and Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, the hard-hitting Polish star.

All of them scored in straight sets, with Miss Marble recording the most one-sided triumph, a 6—1, 6—1 defeat of Jane Stanton of Los Angeles. Mme. Henrotin never was pressed in eliminating Barbara Winslow, of Hollywood, Calif., 6—3, 6—4, while Miss Jedrzejowska, after trailing at 2—5 in the first set, got her terrific forehand under control and walloped fourth-seeded Mrs. Marjorie Van Ryn, of Austin, Tex., 7—5, 6—3.

Miss Wheeler was on top of her game only in the first set. She tied the second at 4—all, after losing the first two games, then was forced into errors.

Dear Al: Selections at Suffolk Downs.

I met one of the Benningites last night. He had a sour look on his face. I asked him why he was wearing the gloom mask. He told me his experiences of the afternoon. He dropped by one of the better known betoriums. He liked two horses in the steeplechase at Saratoga and couldn't make up his mind which one to play. So he played both. And both horses lost their rides at the break. He saw a horse he liked in the third at Saratoga and put a wager on him. This one won, apparently with ease, only to be disqualified. Next he took a flier at a horse over at Thistledowns. This one didn't get a call and after the race it was announced that the horse had broken down. Then he transferred his scene of action to Lincoln Fields. Again he figured the race between two horses and couldn't separate them. So he put a small bet on both. His horses were running first and second throughout. "Close finish at Lincoln Fields" was the announcement and then came the words "It's a photo finish." This was one that they couldn't beat him out of, he thought. In due time, the result was announced. And to add insult to injury, neither of his horses were in the money. Our friend left the place in disgust only to find the crowning blow outside. There was a nice, big, juicy flat tire on his car. BILL.

First race—Ubald G. has had many opportunities to wiggle out of the maiden ranks and is not a good thing in this field. However, the opposition isn't any too powerful and this one might turn the trick. Talkaway and Wild Holly appear to have an edge on the others.

Second race—Too Little, breaking off the rail, has the speed to take advantage of the inside position. Mary Senate gets in action with feather weight and is dangerous. Raymar to take care of the others.

Third race—Tha Bailiff deserves the call in this field. Needs only to run one of his good races. Good Dame turned in a smelly effort last out and I tossing that race in the gutter. Bristle for the show award.

Fourth race—Tinder Box showed excellent form in that recent win and if we can get a little consistency for this fellow we should have a winner. Apprentice and Easiest Way for the place and show.

Fifth race—Legion has worked well for this engagement and I'm going to string along. James N. has that good last to recommend and will score if the top one makes mistakes. Superwick for the minor money.

Seventh race—Beveau gets my call in this field of cheap platers. Gets in with steadying weight and is fit and ready. Happy Fellow and Eddie C. to lead the others to the wire.

Eighth race—U Demon, Aureate and Papena is the order in which I prefer them in the day's finale.

3—Easter Herald, Zippy, Keyed Up.
4—Stand By, Pirate Lass, Justa Gal.
6—Miss Alphonso, Vennie H, Fair Billy.
7—Best Policy, Ginger Hackie, Minna.
Best Bet—Miss Alphonso.

Marion Miley Gets Another Sub-Par Round in Tourney

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Marion Miley, the tall sharp-shooter from Cincinnati, all but shook off the opposition today in her quest for a third straight women's Western 72-hole medal-play golf derby crown by firing another sub-par round over the Onwentsia Club course.

The daughter of a former Lexington, Ky., professional, who opened her drive Monday with a 4-under-par 76 and backed it up with a 78 yesterday, connected with a 39-39—78 today to reach the 54-hole mark with a 232 total and a five-stroke lead over Minneapolis' Patty Berg.

Miss Berg, who rallied for a sensational 74, a new women's competitive course record, yesterday after using up 38 strokes Monday, eased off today to a 30-41—80. Her total, 237, gave her a margin of three strokes over Betty Jameson, of Austin, Tex., holder of the women's trans-Mississippi title, who jumped from a tie for sixth place to third, by turning out a 78.

Beatrice Barrett, of Minneapolis, conqueror of Miss Berg in the Minnesota State title tournament last week, added a par 80 to her 162 for 241 and stood fifth, a stroke behind Miss Jameson. Edith Estabrooks, 16-year-old Dubuque, Iowa, star, had an 82 to go with her two-day total of 160, and was tied for the next spot with Mrs. Dan Chandler, of Dallas, Tex., who shot an 83 for 242.

Miss Miley's card showed five birdies and three holes over par. Miss Berg had four birdies, but a balky putter caused her to go over par on three holes.

Miss Miley apparently had a new tournament record total clinched. Eight strokes under par to date, only a huge blow-up could keep her from bettering the record of 320 set by Mrs. S. L. Reinhardt, of Chicago, in 1932.

Men Past 40
Many men at 40, in perfect health, without an ache or pain, wonder why they aren't as strong and as vigorous as they were 5 or 10 years ago. Mental and physical fatigue is the cause in the majority of cases. Fortunately this condition can be helped by the use of a recently discovered hormone. This hormone stimulates the glandular system to greater activity—helps build up lowered vitality.
This hormone is now available, together with other valuable ingredients in Zo-ak Tablets (Blue Box for men—Orange Box for women) and are sold and recommended by Unity Drug Stores and all chains. Zo-ak is the formula of a well known American physician so you can take it with confidence. It contains no nux vomica (strychnine) or any other harmful drugs. A booklet called "For Men Who Want to Live," will be sent in a plain, sealed envelope by Zo-ak Co., 56 W. 45th St., N. Y. Ask for economy size. Save $1.

30,000 Fans Disappointed By Downpour

Historic Race to Bring Victor $37,912 Purse; Is Third Delay.

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 11.—For the third time in its 12-year history, the Hambletonian, richest of light harness racing stakes, was postponed today when spasmodic rainstorms made it impossible to race over Good Time Park's triangular-shaped racing strip.

The race, bringing together 12 of the Nation's outstanding trotters in a battle for $37,912.58, was called off shortly after noon when a heavy rainstorm, following last night's showers, broke over this jammed Orange County Capital.

The management still had hopes of staging at least two races, but when the showers continued at frequent intervals for the next two hours, the entire program was postponed. Today's program will be raced tomorrow with Thursday's card put over until Friday and the latter until Saturday.

The postponement came as a bitter disappointment to some 30,000 people who had come to Goshen with the prospects of seeing one of the greatest races in recent years. Thousands in the uncovered bleachers and other unprotected sections of the track were either drenched or sent scurrying to cover when the showers broke with unexpected suddenness following spells of brilliant sunshine.

A few minutes after the final announcement, the most severe of the day's storms broke in all its fury and came down in torrents, turning the track into a sea of slop. The ladies aid's large refreshment tent was blown down, others wavered while thousands of disappointer fans remained in the grandstand waiting for the storm to abate before wending their way out of the traffic-jammed track.

The Hambletonian was last postponed in 1931 when Calumet Butler won after rain had held up the event for two days. Previously, in 1927, the year Iosola Worthy was victorious, a week's rain at Syracuse finally neceessitated the staging of the race a month later at Lexington.

As the rain continued to fall heavily, horsemen wise in Goshen weather predicted that it would take plenty of sunshine to put the track in racing condition for tomorrow. Along the rail the water stood several inches deep while even along the outer rail the racing strip was fetlock deep in slop.

6-3, 9-7 Tennis Battle Is Lost By Sara Moore

By the Associated Press.

Oakland, Md., Aug. 11.—Sara Moore, Washingtonian, seeded No. 2 in the Western Maryland tennis tournament, lost out today in a hard battle to Grace Parker, of Baltimore.

The second set went to extra games, the Baltimore player finally winning, 9 to 7. She took the first set, 6—3.

Frances Grimes, No. 1 seeded player, had no trouble defeating Mrs. S. E. Webb, of Greensburg, Pa., 6—2, 6—0. Mrs. Webb previously had defeated Betty Watson, of Fairmount, W. Va., 6—0, 6—2.

Anne Dayette, of Baltimore, reached the quarter-finals by defeating Mrs. Adelaide Hurrelbrinck, of Baltimore, 7—5 and 6—4, and Mrs. Gertrude Roberts, of Baltimore, by default.

Feller Beats Browns, 5-2; Third Win

4-Run Splurge in First Aided by Lary's Homer Ices Game.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Aug. 11.—Cleveland opened a home stand today by mopping up St. Louis in a double-header. Bob Feller won his third game of the season in the opener, 5 to 2, aided by Lyn Lary's homer in a four-run first inning. Denny Galehouse copped the second, 7 to 2, with Billy Sullivan's three-run circuit clout in the sixth the clinching blow.

Cox Shoots 66 At Five Farms In Double Win

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 11.—A single stroke separated Wiffy Cox, Kenwood's professional, from an all time course record here today at the Five Farms course of the Baltimore Country Club, scene of two National tournaments. The Washington mentor was the big show of the pro sweeps with his 34-32—66, and paired with Maury Fitzgerald to win the pro-amateur with a 63 best ball.

The Maryland State Golf Association's twin bill was by far the most popular event of its kind ever held in the State, drawing some 135 entries from member clubs. Pairing with Arthur Urban Cox also tied for second in the pro-amateur with 64 best ball, with Frank Invernezzi, Forest Park, and Gene Bruning, but Baltimore golfers won six of the nine amateur handicap prizes.

Bruning also won the Class A handicap with his 71, a stroke over par, with a 5 handicap, while three tied at net 70s for second prize—E. Rhoderick, atCoctin, Frederick, 77-7, 70; Robert Goldman, Suburban. 78-8, 70, and Martin F. McCarthy, Beaver Dam, 73-3, 70.

A Manor Club member Ralph Pittman, former Baylor University gridiron star, won the Class B event with 83-14, 69, pasing J. E. Gisriel, Baltimore Country Club, and E. Scott, Rodgers Forge, by a stroke.

Cox's score, a shot higher than Ralph Beach's record 65, was fashioned from five birdies, a dozen pars and a single bogey hole, the seventh, where Wiffy three-putted from 8 feet.

The first hole, where he was a foot over the green, was the only putting surface that Cox failed to hit in regulation figures. He dropped an 8-footer for a birdie on the third, went over on the seventh, but sank a 6-footer on the eighth and was out in 34.

He nearly holed his second shot on the tricky tenth hole, easily making his birdie via a 2-foot putt, and went another stroke under par with a 12-foot putt for a birdie on 12. He parred the short thirteenth hole but chipped dead to the cup for a birdie on "Hell's Half Acre," the long fourteenth. He was par in for the 66.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Combining Clay Bryant's five-hit pitching with an 11-hit attack off Red Lucas that included Augie Galan's seventeenth homer and Gabby Hartnett's eighth, the National League leading Cubs defeated Pittsburgh, 5 to 1, before 11,363 today to even the series at one game apiece.

The triumph added a half game to the Chicagoans' lead over the second-place Giants, increasing it to 6½ games.

Armstrong, Feather Sensation, To Fight Tomorrow, Monday

Despite the postponement until tomorrow night of the match in New York between Henry Armstrong, sensational California featherweight, and Irish Eddie Brink, there will be no interruption in Monday night's boxing card at Griffith Stadium which will feature Armstrong and Johnny Cabello, the Puerto Rican, in a ten-rounder.

Copromoters Joe Turner, Goldie Ahearn and Earl McDonald, who are staging the Armstrong-Cabello bout here, talked with Eddie Meade, Armstrong's trainer-manager, last night upon learning of the New York postponement, and got full assurance that Armstrong would be in town Saturday to train for the Monday match.

Armstrong and Meade will fly to Washington immediately after the bout. Training quarters will be set up at Turner's Arena. The California colored flash will be seeking his fourteenth straight knockout in the battle with Brink. Rain forced postponement of last night's fight scheduled for Dyckman Oval, New York.

Meanwhile, Cabello, the lad who won 13 out of 17 fights last year, including a two-round knockout victory over Joey Archibald, was on his way to Washington to complete his training.

Added to the card yesterday was eight-round semiwindup between Buddy Scott, undefeated local light-heavyweight, and Frank Donofrio, Philadelphia's latest sensation.

Gordon Drops From National City Section

Vic Gauzza, president of the National City League, with dramatic suddenness last night issued another warning against infraction of rules when he announced the loss of one team's franchise, withdrawal of another because he upheld an umpire's decision, and the suspension of a player.

Instigated by the protest of Charles Sondheimer, manager of the J. C. Flood junior team, an investigation disclosed that Petworth used Tommy Doonis, a player under contract to Flood, in its game with Police Boys Club No. 5, Sunday. Petworth thus forfeited its franchise and Doonis was suspended for the remainder of the season. Doonis had signed with Flood at the beginning of the season, but quit several weeks ago and pitched for Georgetown Athletic Club in the unlimited section. As Sondheimer had not released him, he was not eligible to play with another junior nine. Doonis also will be suspended from action with Georgetown.

The decision dropping Petworth also automatically clinches the first-half junior championship for George's Radio. George's had a bye to play with Petworth, and since that team was dropped it automatically gains the victory.

Gordon's Cafeteria, which was accused Sunday of using stalling tactics while trailing Klein's Tavern, 3 to 1, in the fourth inning, and was given a forfeit loss by an umpire, announced its withdrawal from the A unlimited section when Gauzza upheld the arbiter's decision. Gordon threatened the withdrawal unless the game was replayed.

Wheat Rallies 5 Cents After 4-Cent Slump

Canadian Pool Purchases Offset Effect of Crop Report.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Sensational wheat market rallies today, 7 cents at Winnipeg and almost 5 cents here, resulted largely from reports of huge buying for Canadian relief purposes. Statements were current near the end of the day that the Saskatchewan wheat pool had purchased 7,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat to be used to succor community distress arising from widespread crop failure.

Previous to the late rallies, wheat values had tumbled an extreme of 4 cents here, chiefly on account of official announcement of domestic wheat production about 50,000,000 bushels larger than recent private estimates.

Some reaction from the day's top took place in the final dealings, and at the close wheat futures here were varying ½ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher compared with yesterday's finish, September $1.13¼@1.13½, December $1.14½@1.14¾, May $1.16⅝@1.16⅞. Simultaneously, corn was ⅝ off to ⅞ up, September $1.00¾, December 67@67¼, May 68½. Oats at ¼ decline to an equal advance, December 29⅞, and rye unchanged to ⅞ bulge, December 81½. For provisions the outcome was 5 to 22 cents setback.

New York, Aug. 11 (AP).—On the lightest volume in over two years the Curb Market wobbled to an uneven close today. Mining shares fell fractions while oils were generally on the upside. Utilities finished about even to a little lower. Some softening in metal prices today dampened most of the mining group. Newmont slumped a point to 108 and Consolidated Copper gave up a fraction to 11⅜. Down minor fractions were Hecla at 19⅞, Hudson Bay at 33⅝ and Eagle Picher at 22½. Gulf Oil with a spurt of 1½ to 59 led most of the oil division to higher levels.

In the industrial group Pittsburgh Plate Glass furnished the chief color advancing 1⅜ to 122. Otherwise industrials held to a narrow groove. Volume totaled 138,000 shares, the smallest since July 1, 1935, compared with transfers of 166,000 shares on Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 11.—Despite the possibility of further slight downward adjusments in steel operations this month, Iron Age cites indications of an active fall business.

"As steel shipments are running considerably in excess of the volume of new business," the review says, "backlogs continue to decline, with consequent improvement in deliveries.

"Steel ingot output for the country as a whole is estimated for this week at 84½ per cent, only a half point down from last week, but further slight adjustment downward is a possibility this month prior to the resumption of buying on a larger scale for early autumn requirements.

"The continuance of high operating rates in the face of the year's low in shipments to the automobile industry and a relatively small volume of steel consumption for building construction points to an active fall trade, in the opinion of steel industry sales departments.

"While total production in the last half may fall below that of the first half, the net return to the steel companies will be greater because of a higher average level of billing prices.

"Automobile buying for new models has not yet run into large tonnages, but some orders have been placed for initial production and larger orders are expected before the end of the month. With resumption of work at the Ford assembly plants this week following a three-week shutdown, 110,000 to 150,000 of the 1937 models will be turned out before production is started on 1938 models in early September."

Northern Securities Votes Dissolution

Hoboken, Aug. 11 (AP).—The Northern Securities Co., first of the great holding companies of this country, but in recent years a mere shadow of its old power, was dissolved today at a special stockholders' meeting. The dissolution session, held in a tiny water-front building, was a contrast to the organization of the company in 1901 following the stock market battle between E. H. Harriman, the Union Pacific and James J. Hill, J. P. Morgan's ally in the control of Great Northern and Northern Pacifis railroads.

The securities company was devised by Hill as a "peace pact" to neutralize control of the Northern Pacific, which Harriman had tried to get away from the Morgan-Hill interests, precipitating the Northern Pacific panic of 1901.

The Market

A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Drift to Irregular Close as Sales Volume Diminishes; U. S. Bonds Yield.

New York, Aug. 11.—Stocks again moved irregularly lower in a turnover of around 600,000 shares, the smallest in six weeks. Bonds were spotty. The Government list weakened. Business news included an estimate of railroad car loadings indicating some decline. The traffic last week fell 1½ per cent from the preceding week and its gain over a year ago was only 5.8 per cent. September wheat dropped a quarter of a cent to $1.13½ a bushel.

Events at Washington swung somewhat in favor of the markets. It appeared that the irksomeness of spending more time in Washington and the growing feeling of freedom from fear of strafing by the President for failure to carry out his legislative wishes might induce Congress to adjourn quickly and leave in the hopper the objectionable wage-hour and other reform bills scarcely calculated to aid economic recovery. On the other hand, the certainty of large grain and cotton crops is promoting the cause of unsound legislation designed to jack up doles to farmers who may not receive as much per bushel or per pound for their grain or cotton as they would like.

Spur to Business.

Cotton and grain loans, or gifts, whether coupled with restriction on production or not, merely assure trouble in the future, to say nothing of being expensive political expedients. The agricultural regions this year already are assured of many millions greater income than for a great many years. The spur that will give to business will be enormous, but the good effects might well be destroyed if some decline in prices now result in another year of scarcity planting. We need large crops at moderate prices to restore our export trade and to prevent its permanent loss through increased production, particularly of cotton, in other countries.

Meanwhile, in an interview with a news service in Boston, Chairman Landis, of the Securities and Exchange Commission, made out a pretty good case for the work of his organization in directing the flow of savings into legitimate investment channels. He estimated that the SEC had kept more than a billion out of the hands of swindlers in fraudulent enterprises attempted, but blocked, and many other millions through the mere fact of its presence on the scene.

Public Production.

Some persons may not agree with Mr. Landis that actual savings to investors, and consequent diversion of the investment into proper channels, can be totaled up by counting the face value of securities proposed for public sale. Unfortunately, a great many people wish to risk their savings in the vain hope that they can make easy money. That applies to the widows as well as to the wizards. Sale of securities that promise nothing but eventual loss still goes on, and the Stock Exchange itself has a goodly supply of punk stocks and bonds.

At the same time people buy that which is offered for sale and every job of keeping out of the market a bad security and of keeping from the business either of offering for sale or advising investors is worth while. It not only tends to hold down individual loss but aids the country's economy as a whole. On that subject, Mr. Landis gave figures for the raising of new capital by industry this year which also may be open to objection. He estimated that in the first half of 1937 new money raised by corporations amounted to $391,451,000.

SEC Halts Sales Of Cemetery Stock

The Securities and Exchange Commission announced yesterday that Emery H. Komlos and Herman H. Boyd, of Cleveland, Ohio, and several salesmen had been permanently enjoined in United States District Court from further misrepresentations in the sale of securities of certain companies engaged in the development of cemeteries, and in the sale of stock of the Garford Corporation. All the defendants except one, who was not available, consented to the entry of a decree granting all the relief sought by the commission and at the same time made answers denying the commission's allegations. Judge Samuel H. West signed the decree.

New Capital.

Mr. Landis no doubt is right in a technical sense. Corporations presumably have secured that much in funds on securities sold for other than refunding purposes and, as Mr. Landis seems to have drawn the line between new money and that raised for paying off bank loans of old standing and not those made merely in anticipation of early sale of securities, his figure may be taken as official. From it must be deduced, in arriving at a sum of new capital which corporations will have at their disposal which they would not have had except for the sale of new securities, the money which is merely a reimbursement of the company treasuries for excess dividends forced out to escape the undistributed profits tax. Excluding those sums, the amount of actual new capital raised in established industry by old companies must have been small.

Railroad Record.

Roads formerly controlled by the Van Sweringens have done pretty well as operating units. Not one of the original group— C. & O., Nickel Plate, Erie and Pere Marquette—went into bankruptcy during the depression, although about a third of the total mileage of the country fell into that condition. The principal unit, C. & O., has come through with the steadiest earnings of any road in the country, with the possible exception of Norfolk & Western. Only two later acquisitions, Missouri Pacific and C. & E. I., are in difficulties. In contrast to that record, four large roads of the Pennsylvania controlled system are in bankruptcy, namely, Seaboard, Wabash, Ann Arbor and New Haven. The great Union Pacific system hasn't been able to keep its satellite, the Chicago & North Western, out of receivership any better than the famous Southern Pacific kept its Cotton Belt controlled road above water.

Trusts Bring Suit to Halt Alleghany Deal

2 Investment Companies Are Holders of 36,500 Shares.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 11.—Suit to enjoin the proposed merger of Alleghany Corporation and Chesapeake Corporation, holding companies of the Van Sweringen Rail Empire, was filed in Baltimore today by Tri-Continental Corporation and Selected Industries, Inc., it was disclosed at the office of Tri-Continental Corporation here today.

The two companies, large holders of the common stock of Chesapeake Corporation, based their objections on the ground that through the merger the holders of that stock would find their position impaired. Tri-Continental Corporation held as of June 30, 18,000 shares of Chesapeake Corporation common. Selected industries on that date held 18,500 shares.

The proposal for consolidation was recently announced by directors of Alleghany and Chesapeake Corporations, headed by Robert R. Young, Frank F. Kolbe and Alan Kirby, who acquired control of Alleghany Corporation and the remainder of the Van Sweringen system through purchase from a charitable foundation set up by George A. Ball, Muncie, Ind., glass jar manufacturer.

Judge Edwin T. Dickerson, with whom the suit was filed in Baltimore, signed a temporary injunction and set a hearing before Judge Samuel T. Dennis for August 13. The merger of the two holding companies was proposed by the directors of the two organizations on July 8 for submission to the stockholders at a special meeting called for August 17.

Cord Corp. Holdings Listed by Manning

L. B. Manning, new president of the Cord Corporation, said that its future policy, yet undefinite, would be determined by the new board, which will hold its first meeting August 20.

"Cord Corporation itself does not actually control most of the companies in which it holds a substantial interest," he explained. "The corporation holds approximately a 29 per cent stock interest in Auburn Automobile Co.; a 30 per cent interest in Aviation Corporation; a 30 per cent interest in Checker Cab Manufacturing Co., and an interest of approximately 26½ per cent in the founders' shares of the New York Shipbuilding Co. Cord Corporation controls Columbia Axle Co., which manufactures automobile axles and other automotive parts, and owns 37½ per cent of the common and 75 per cent of the preferred stock of the Lycoming Manufacturing Co."

Woolworth Floats $10,000,000 Loan

New York, Aug. 11 (AP).—The F. W. Woolworth Co. announced today that it had sold to a large insurance company at par an issue of $10,000,000 of 10-year 3 per cent debentures for improvement and expansion of its Nation-wide chain stores.

The program, it was said, probably would necessitate acquisition of additional real estate in many communities. Since the company increased its price range to $1 top about a year ago, extra space was needed at many stores for merchandise displays.

Cab Insurance Bill Altered, Approved

A sub-committee headed by Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, yesterday approved a House bill to compel taxicabs in Washington to insure passengers and property.

The sub-committee made drastic changes in the House bill. As now written, it provides that every local taxicab has to have an insurance policy with a responsible company or that a number of cab owners may, under the 1922 marine insurance act, form mutual insurance associations. In either case, the cab must be able to meet a liability up to $5,000 for death or bodily injury or up to $1,000 for property damage.

The bill gives the Public Utilities Commission authority to make rules and regulations requiring that all cabs be kept in good mechanical condition and their interiors kept "scrupulously clean." Violations would make the owners liable to suspension of license up to 30 days and a fine up to $100.

Children to See Show At Tuberculosis Camp

Under the direction of Mrs. Ann Kloesius, a troupe of 12 marionette actors and actresses will entertain for the 125 boys and girls of the Bald Eagle Hill Camp of the Tuberculosis Association this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

One of the honor guests will be Miss Maud Parker, director of women's and girls' activities of the Playground Department, who made arrangements for the performance.

Suspect in Auto Theft Tries to Hang Self Here

Charged with stealing an automobile here several months ago, Samuel Miller, 21, of Norfolk, tried to hang himself in a First Precinct cell last night.

Printer Heir to Shop.

Grin and Bear It

By Lichty

"The alienist's report says you aren't really a criminal at heart and strongly urges you to repay your debt to society by having your tonsils and adenoids removed."

On Capitol Hill

Fish Quits Committee Headed by Wadsworth; Says Uprising Needed to Revitalize G. O. P.

ANGRILY, Representative Fish, of New York, resigned from the House Republican Policy Committee, of which Representative Wadsworth, of New York, is chairman. Fish said he believed Wadsworth is the only Republican in the House who would have accepted appointment to the New York World's Fair Commission after Speaker Bankhead refused to appoint Fish, despite recommendation of Fish by Republican Floor Leader Snell.

Linking Wadsworth to "the Liberty League and kindred reactionary groups," Fish said there must be an "uprising" of the rank and file and of the "progressive young element" in the Republican Party, if it is to "regain the confidence of the wage-earners." He pledged himself to a war on existing party leadership.

"I'm beginning to think Ham Fish doesn't like me," was Wadsworth's only comment.

APPROXIMATELY $3,000,000 annual Federal aid to the States for conservation of wild life has been voted by the Senate. The funds would be diverted from special excise taxes now collected on sportsmen's equipment. Federal and State governments would share the cost of wild life restoration projects which must be maintained by the State.

The aims of the proposal have the indorsement, Senator Pittman, of Nevada, said, of numerous conservation and sportsmen's organizations.

Bob Burns Says—

One of the greatest weaknesses us mortals have is tryin' to get somethin' for nothin'. I had one lazy uncle who never would work, but he would sit around all day and just dream of what he would do if he had plenty of money.

One day while he was sittin' there, dreamin', a friend rushed in and said, "Come on with me. I just heard where you can get all the gold you'll ever need." My uncle jumped up with a light in his eyes and he said, "That's just what I've been watin' for! Where is it and how do you get it?"

The man says, "It's over here on a hill and it's layin' all over the ground. All you have'ta do is pick it up!" My uncle's face fell and he says, "Oh, I thought there'd be a catch in it! You've got to bend over!"

THE FEDERAL DIARY

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

Steward Nailed It.

The President's view (it may be called the second rendering of his views) on the unionization of Federal workers, were kept from immediate public circulation by Luther Steward, of the N. F. F. E. . . . It was Steward who went with Jacob Baker, of the U. F. W. A., to the White House and obtained from the President a promise to express himself on the subject of Federal unions, a subject on which the President has heretofore spoken . . . But the wily Steward, it subsequently was learned, pinned down Steve Early to hold onto the statement until the N. F. F. E. convention in Springfield, Ill., next month . . . Later, the President indicated that he had no qualms against releasing the statement earlier . . . But Early said it wouldn't go out until Steward's convention came along . . . So it looks like the N. F. F. E. will have something to put in the electric lights outside its convention hall.

Admiral Irwin Funeral Rites Set Tomorrow

Services for Former Naval Air Chief Will Be Held in San Diego.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow in San Diego, Calif., for Rear Admiral Noble Edward Irwin, 67, U. S. N., retired, who died Tuesday of a heart attack at Warner Springs, Calif.

Director of naval aviation during the World War, Admiral Irwin received the Navy Cross with citation "for exceptionally meritorious service in a duty of great responsibility as director of naval aviation in connection with the development, building and operation of the naval air forces for war purposes." He also was awarded the rank of an officer of the Legion of Honor of France.

Admiral Irwin was born in Greenfield, Ohio, in 1869 and was appointed to the Naval Academy from the twelfth district of Ohio in 1887. Serving on the General Board of the Navy in 1915, he was appointed as Director of Naval Aviation in 1917.

During the Spanish-American War, Admiral Irwin served on the Baltimore, of Admiral Dewey's Squadron and participated in the Battle of Manila Bay. A member of the Allied Relief Expedition in China during the Boxer Rebellion, he has received the Philippine Campaign and the Mexican Campaign medals and was awarded the insignia and diploma of "Estrella de Abdon Calderon, first class" by the government of Ecuador.

In 1925, Admiral Irwin was given command of the Destroyer Squadrons, Scouting Fleet, and in 1928 was sent as chief to the U. S. Naval Mission to Brazil. Appointed commandant of the Fifteenth Naval District headquarters, Balboa, Canal Zone, in 1931, he was retired in 1933.

Rites Tomorrow For War Veteran

Funeral services for William Dougherty, 92, Civil War veteran, will be held tomorrow at his home, 1324 Monroe street northwest. Interment will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Dougherty was born in Coleraine, Ireland. He came to this country while still a boy and enlisted in the Union Army in 1862, serving under Gen. George H. Thomas until the end of the war.

Following the war, Mr. Dougherty went to Dubuque, Iowa, where he headed a wholesale grocery business until the beginning of the World War. He came to Washington then and was made a civilian clerk in the quartermaster department.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mary E. Kerr and Mrs. Blanche H. Kerr and two granddaughters, Blanche V. and Ruth D. Kerr. All reside in Washington.

Rites Tomorrow For Mrs. Marks

Funeral services for Mrs. Georgia M. Marks, 80, a native of Washington, will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, at St. Joseph's Church. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Mrs. Marks died Tuesday morning at her summer home at Colonial Beach. Since the death of her husband, S. A. H. Marks, many years ago, she had lived at 221 B street northeast.

Joseph Wilson Funeral Arranged by Relatives

Funeral services for Joseph Wilson, 56, for 30 years an employe of a downtown department store, will be held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's Catholic Church. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Tuesday, three days after Mr. Wilson died, police expressed the fear that he would be buried in the potter's field unless relatives came to claim the body. Notified of Mr. Wilson's death through newspaper stories, relatives yesterday made plans for the funeral.

Iturbi Denies Calling American Music 'Trash'

New York, Aug. 11 (AP).—Jose Iturbi stoutly denied today he called American music "trash" at Philadelphia Monday night. The rotund little Spanish pianist-conductor who directed the Philadelphia Orchestra at Robin Hood Dell in its stormy program, asserted the music he barred from broadcasting was not "weighty enough," but vehemently denied he had termed it "stuff."

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

D. C. Pair in Surprise Wedding At Foundation of Island Home

MR. AND MRS. HARRY W. ALLAN.

Under a canopy of leafy elms on a small island a mile up the Potomac from the District line, Harry W. Allan and Doris Carlton were married Tuesday night.

With only frogs and locusts to provide the music, the ceremony was performed on a wooden platform, erected on the foundations of the house in which Mr. and Mrs. Allan will live this winter. A hundred friends and neighbors sat on the sea-wall around the foundation and on temporary benches, watching the Rev. N. J. Gould Wickey, of the United Lutheran Church, perform the ceremony.

An hour before the marriarge the bridegroom, dressed in overalls, was sweating over the electrical wiring to illuminate the platform where the ceremony was held. He is an electrician by trade.

Bride in White Satin.

An hour and a half later, the ceremony began, at 9:30. A quick change transformed Allan into a romantic bridegroom, in white coat and black tie. With his best man, William Wright, he stood in a corner of the platform, gazing across the river, waiting for his bride.

The little groups of neighbors hushed suddenly as the bride, dressed in white satin and carrying a bouquet of gladioli, appeared on the arms of George Ohm, Allan's employer in a Baltimore contracting firm. With her was her sister, Phyllis Carlton, who had come from Chicago for the surprise wedding.

As the Rev. Mr. Wickey read the service, the breeze from the river set the electric lights swaying and cooled Allan's perspiring brow. A trolley, on its way to Glen Echo Park, rumbled by, half a mile away. The sound of water running over the falls from the river suddenly grew louder.

Guests Go Swimming.

After the marriage, as friends surged forward to congratulate the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Allan discussed their plans. She went back to work yesterday with the Social Security Board; he with the Baltimore contractor. After a few weeks, however, they are going on a sailing trip. When they return, they will live in tents on the little island, half a mile below Sycamore Island. He hopes to have their home finished by winter, working in his spare time.

For 30 minutes neighbors and friends toasted the couple with punch, and ate their wedding cake. Some clambered over the foundations for the house, hazarding opinions as to how long it will take to build the home. And a few wandered up to neighbors' houses, donned bathing suits, and cooled off in the Potomac.

Not even the "stand-up" strike of the three musicians failed to mar the wedding. They were there on time, but departed when they could find no chairs.

Rites for Mrs. Elkins To Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Ida May Elkins, 54, who died Tuesday, will be held tomorrow at her home, 1348 Potomac avenue southeast, at 2 p. m. Interment will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Elkins had been ill since January and died Tuesday in Mount Alto Hospital. She was the widow of Nathaniel Elkins. A son, Leonard B. Elkins, of the Potomac avenue address, is the only survivor.

Mrs. Lucille V. Sinagel Rites in Va. Tomorrow

Mrs. Lucille V. Sinagel, 29, of Alexandria, died yesterday after a long illness. An employe of Hecht & Co., she had been confined to the hospital for several weeks.

A native of Norfolk, Va., where funeral and burial services will be held tomorrow, she had lived in Washington for 10 years. She is survived by her husband, Louis P. Sinagel, 132 North Payne street, Alexandria, and a son, Edward C. Powell.

Funeral Set Saturday For Michael A. Healy

Requiem mass for Michael A. Healy, 54, engineer at Providence Hospital for 13 years, will be held in St. Peter's Catholic Church Saturday at 9:30 a. m. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Mr. Healy died Tuesday in Providence Hospital.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Poston and Mrs. Mary V. Madigan, both of Washington, and three brothers, Denis and Patrick Healy, of Washington, and John R. Healy, of Stockton, Calif.

MERCHANTS & MINERS Line

Debt of Million In Fiscal Year For District

In Red Despite $530,000 Gain in Collections of $36,133,000.

The District wound up the fiscal year just ended more than a million dollars in arrears, despite a gain in revenues last year of $530,000. Collections were near the all-time high of 1932.

Just what the final deficit will be cannot be determined for some time, as considerable bookkeeping remains to be done, but District Auditor Donovan believes it will be between one and two million dollars, he said yesterday.

Tax Collector Chatham M. Towers submitted his annual report yesterday showing receipts of $36,133,000 during the year ended June 30. This was $760,000 short of the record.

Real estate, which always carries the heavy burden, produced less revenue than last year by $586,000. But still real estate owners paid in $17,489,000. The more than half million dollar loss was attributed to aggressiveness of collectors in closing up delinquent accounts. Penalty interest collections were down $219,000.

There still remains uncollected $1,588,000 in real estate taxes. Most of this is expected to be in the city coffers before January 1.

Stockholders Sued By Bank Receiver

Seeking to obtain sufficient money to pay 100 cents on the dollar to its depositors and creditors, the defunct United States Savings Bank, through its receiver, Frederick J. Young, yesterday in District Court began suit to compel recalcitrant stockholders to pay a 100 per cent assessment on their stock.

The receiver stated he had served notice on shareholders who failed to pay their assessments on February 24. Even so, he said, there is outstanding some $97,500 which will enable the receiver to pay out an additional dividend and will liquidate the bank's accounts.

The institution, closed in the banking holiday in March, 1933, originally owed $1,853,459.17. Ninety per cent of that has been paid. The largest stockholder was Col. Wade H. Cooper, who at one time was president of three banks here, the Continental Trust Co., the Commercial National Bank and the United States Savings. He owned 560 of the 1,000 shares outstanding of the United bank.

Camp Scholarships To Be Announced

The names of winners in a camp contest conducted by Barney Neighborhood House will be announced tomorrow at 8 p. m. at that institution, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, president of the board of trustees.

A two weeks' scholarship to Camp Reeder will go to the 12 boys who have excelled in "work, co-operation and good sportsmanship" during vacation school. Prizes for girls will be given on the basis of attendance and excellence in sewing or craft.

A musical program preceding the presentation will feature "The Nightingale and the Rose," adapted by Miss Dorothy Wright, head of the music department, and sung by a group from the girls' and boys' glee clubs.

Alleged Sex Murderer Cries at Victim's Plight

Los Angeles, Aug. 11 (AP).—Albert Dyer, 32, wept today as Deputy District Attorney Eugene Williams described to a jury of six men and six women the mutilation of the bodies of three young Inglewood girls he is accused of slaying in a sex orgy.

Speed Governor Set High, Driver Gets 3 Months

James A. White, Baltimore cab driver, claimed in police court at Hyattsville yesterday that a "governor" made it impossible for him to drive at a high rate of speed, but Judge George B. Merrick was not convinced. He sentenced him to three months on a charge of exceeding 60 miles an hour on Washington-Baltimore boulevard.

"I didn't have any regulating device on my motor and I had to drive 82 miles an hour to catch him," Carrigan said.

Tobacco Market Continues Strong In Heavy Selling

By the United Press.

Fair Bluff, one of the smallest markets on the belt, claimed honors for the highest opening day price average—28.5 cents a pound on sales of 175,000 pounds. Cheaper grades were from $5 to $10 higher than last year.

Wanted Man Walks By Headquarters; 45 Days in Prison

Wanted on a warrant charging him with obtaining $12 by false representation, Gibbons was seen walking down the street by Detective Sergt. Jack Dalglish from a squad room on the third floor.

Dalglish called Sergt. Chester Stepp who had the warrant. Stepp ran from the building and seized Gibbons in a restaurant across from headquarters.

Yesterday, Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court sentenced Gibbons to 45 days in jail.

New Helium Ore Field Confirmed By Expert

Bakersfield, Calif., Aug. 11 (AP).—The California's correspondent at Mojave reported today that Harry Condon, a geologist, verified reports helium gas may be obtained from ore found in the El Paso range.

The ore was found near the property of Mrs. Josie Bishop on which radium bearing deposits were reported discovered recently. Helium gas is produced now almost wholly in Texas.
